UNWRITTEN LAW PLEA GAINS SWIFT ACQUITTAL OF MOTHER WHO KILLED "OTHER" WOMAN

QUEST STARTED FOR WITNESS IN NURMI'S DEATH

Man May Be Only One to Have Seen Census Worker Slain.

ROCKVILLE INQUEST SLATED FOR TODAY

Second Autopsy Braces Murder Theory; Third Friend Grilled, Freed.

COUNSEL CHOSEN BY M'GUIRE AND O'BRIEN

Parents of Victim Believe Brawl Preceded Killing; Rites This Afternoon.

A tip on a man who looms as the only witness to the slaying of Aarvi Nurmi, 24-year-old Census Bureau clerk and former Business High School student, during a liquor party at his home in Takoma Park, Md., sent Montgomery County authorities on a mysterious quest yesterday after three major developments in the speedy investigation.

Grilling and subsequent release of a third man, decision of police to hold an inquest today, and the finding of another autopsy strengthened the theory of murder came in parid succession before a tip from an undisclosed source commanded immediate interest. While a tight-lipped silence was maintained, dovetailing of reports indicated that a man, not now a principal in the case, witnessed what may prove to be significant occurrences at the Nurmi home.

Meanwhile authorities held for action of the coroner's inquest today Nurmi's two companions, who were taken in custody for investigation at the man's home when the body was discovered about 10 o'clock Wednesday night outstretched on the narrow grassway between the two cement lanes of the driveway, beneath the side window of Nurmi's second-story room, with a bullet in his skull.

Inquest This Morning.

They are Henry W. McGuire, 29 years old, a fellow clerk of Nurmi in the construction section of the Census Bureau, of Columbia road near Fourteenth street northwest, who is held at the Rockville Jail; and John J. O'Brien, 26 years old, of Chapin street near Fifteenth street northwest, who is lodged in the Bethesda substation of county police.

Both are to appear at the inquest to be held at 9 o'clock this morning in the Rockville Courthouse by Justice of the Peace John J. Jones as acting coroner. It was called by State's Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., after the series of developments yesterday and indications pointing to a slaying.

Arthur N. Murphy, 27 years old, of O street near Ninth street northwest, a Census Bureau employe, entered the case for a brief time yesterday afternoon when he voluntarily surrendered himself to Washington police, who promptly turned him over to Chief Aible A. Moxley and Sergt. Earl H. Burdine, of Montgomery County police, for a questioning that completely satisfied both of the man's innocence.

Bought Liquor Here.

Chief Moxley said Murphy told them that he, Nurmi and O'Brien "had been to a bootlegging place in Southwest Washington about 2 or 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and that liquor was obtained and taken to Nurmi's house." The chief quoted Murphy as saying that the three consumed all the liquor that had been purchased and later motored into

30 Deaths Listed In Albanian Quake

Four Villages Across From Tip of Italian "Boot" Are Struck.

Tirana, Albania, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Thirty persons were reported killed during a violent earth shock at 3 o'clock this morning in the aVlona region. Most of the damage occurred in the towns of Mesaplik, Palase Terkoel and Dermi. Many others were injured and numerous houses were destroyed.

Vienna, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—A government dispatch from Tirana reported tonight that a violent earthquake had caused 30 deaths in the Albanian village of Teigac, district of Valona.

The dispatch added that great numbers were injured in the collapse of numerous houses, with heavy material loss.

The Valona district of Albania is a mountainous region in the southern part of the country along the Adriatic Sea. It is directly across the Strait of Otranto from the heel of the Italian boot.

Jersey Governor Weds Companion of Mother

Perth Amboy, N. J., Nov. 21 (N. Y.W.N.S.).—Miss Ada Schmidt, 25, a slender girl who came to New Jersey five years ago from Denmark and who had been employed for the last two years as companion to the aged mother of Gov. Morgan F. Larson, became the first lady of New Jersey Thursday night, to the surprise even of Mr. Larson's family.

The marriage of the governor, a widower of 48, took place at his home here, where members of his family had met for a sort of prepared thanksgiving gathering, since Mr. Larson had decided to go to Florida for a three-weeks' vacation.

"Well, now that we are all here, Ada and I will b married," said the governor, and then the Rev. Robert Schlotter knew why he had been invited for dinner. Dr. Charles S. Thompson, Perth Amboy's registrar of vital statistics, had issued the license and had been sworn to secrecy.

10,000 WATCH G.W.U. WIN THRILLER, 18-13

Fenlon Runs 45 Yards in Final Quarter to Beat Catholic U. Team.

CARDS FIRST TO SCORE

By JACK ESPEY.

Catholic University's spell over George Washington in football was broken and put to rout after five years when Coach Jim Pixlee's Sophomores came from behind twice last night in Griffith Stadium to win a heart-breaking game, 18 to 13, before 10,000 wildly enthusiastic spectators.

The result was foretold by the wise boys, but they failed to reckon exactly with Catholic's highly charged fighting spirit and the lads from out Brookland way held the upper hand until after three minutes of the fourth quarter had elapsed.

Finally the superior attack of the Colonials bore fruit as Johnny Fenlon, chunky quarter back, ran 45 yards for the decisive touchdown while George Washington supporters roared their delight.

This Fenlon was a running, bucking fool from start to finish in a game featured by open football that was calculated to produce all kinds of excitement. Billy Wells, who substituted for Sammy Berkowitz at one of the half back positions in the second quarter, shared George Washington honors with Fenlon. It was Wells who did the passing on the first and second Colonial touchdowns, which were scored respectively by Fred Mulvey and Lee Carlin.

Catholic put up the close battle that it did largely through the great running and passing of Tommy Whalen, sophomore half back, who ran 62 yards in the first quarter, to give his team its first six-pointer and the lead and passed to Buster Sheary for another touchdown, tying the score in the third period. Carl DeMello, C. U. kicker, sent the Cards into the lead for the second time by place-kicking an extra point, following Sheary's score.

George Washington's versatile offense failed to bring expected results until Wells got into the fight. From that point on the Colonials were ever dangerous. His passing caused the Card defense to open up and when this occurred, Fenlon, who was calling signals, directed the attack at

Former Detective Head To Quit Chicago Force

Chicago, Nov 21, (A.P.).—One familiar figure in Chicago police circles announced his retirement today as another was answering the questions of a grand jury. Capt. John Stege, head of the detective bureau until the changes that followed the slaying of Alfred Lingle, announced he would quit after March 4 rather than wait three more years to get his full pension. He said there was "no use" of staying on the force in virtual exile.

Acting Commissioner of Police John Alcock, swept into office on the same wave that washed Stege out, was called to explain his conduct of the department to the grand jury.

PLAN TO SLICE DEBT PAYMENT HIT BY HOOVER

Opposes Proposal Aimed to Allow Continuation of Lower Tax.

HOLDS REDUCTION OF RETIREMENT UNWISE

$395,000,000 Must Go Into Sinking Fund This Year.

WATSON, SMOOT AND FESS IN AGREEMENT

Action Blow to Agitation for Low Levy in Face of Treasury Deficit.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover is opposed to the idea of tampering with the law covering retirement of the American public debt. To reduce or curtail the annual sum which the law provides must be applied to the debt, he believes, would be unsound Government finance.

The President made his views known late yesterday in the following statement:

"The administration is opposed to any encroachment upon the statutory provisions for retirement of the public debt. The sinking fund now amounts to something over $430,000,000 a year.

Hold to Sinking Fund.

"Hitherto we have allocated various funds, such as surplus or foreign debt payments, &c., to retirement over and above the statutory provisions, which excess sums would, of course, be available for current use without encroachment upon the statutory requirements.

"It is sound Government finance to hold to the sinking-fund provisions of the public debt."

The law stipulates that the amount that goes into the sinking fund for the retirement of the debt shall be 2½ per cent of the Liberty bonds and Victory notes outstanding on July 1, 1920, plus a certain amount of interest.

Follows Deficit Announcement.

This year the sum of $395,000,000 must go into the sinking fund and be applied to the debt; and next year—that is, the fiscal year of 1932—the sum of $430,000,000 must be covered into it.

The greater part of the money that has gone to retire the public debt under the Mellon policy has come from the surpluses or foreign-debt payments. The 2½ per cent paid each year in the sinking fund has reduced the debt by $3,178,468,000, and the surplus and foreign-debt money has dented the debt to the extent of $7,223,884,000—more than twice as much.

The President's statement yesterday afternoon came exactly a week after his announcement that a small Treasury deficit was in prospect this year.

Tax Cut Agitation.

That statement of last week was taken to mean that all thought of continuing the 1 per cent reduction in taxes had been abandoned.

It also stirred up agitation for a curtailment or a suspension of the public debt. A suspension of payments on the debt for the remainder of the fiscal year, it was argued, would make $300,000,000 or more available for other purposes. Not only would this sum head off a deficit, it was argued, but it might even make possible a continuance of the 1 per cent tax reduction.

The latest Treasury figures show that receipts are $191,000,000 behind what they were this time last year, and that expenditures are about $89,000,000 ahead of what they were this

WOMEN SCORE IN CLASH OVER CHILD BUREAU

Miss Abbott Is Conceded Better Than Even Chance to Win.

BATTLE FOR CONTROL GOES TO COMMITTEE

Decision to Be Rendered After Conference Ends Work.

WILBUR SETS AIMS FOR WELFARE BODY

Urges Rising Generation Be Made Adequate to Cope With Its Future.

The battle over control of the Children's Bureau, which has threatened to disrupt the White House Conference on Child Welfare, flared up yesterday on another front. When the smoke had cleared away the women's banner was planted well within the enemy's lines.

On motion of Prentiss Murphy, of Philadelphia, two resolutions were unanimously adopted yesterday afternoon by the section on the handicapped child. One of these called for reenactment of the Sheppard-Towner act of 1921, which expired in 1929.

The other commended the work of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor and urged that it not be transferred to the Health Department.

Victory for Women.

It was this latter resolution which was regarded as a signal victory for the women delegates to the conference, who vigorously opposed adoption by the committee on public health organization of a resolution recommending the transfer. When the resolution was first presented in an open meeting of the health committee Thursday it was defeated, largely by the vote of women present. Later Thursday night it was taken up and passed in a committee caucus.

The net effect of yesterday's action of the section on the handicapped child is to force either the committee on procedure or the continuing committee to make a decision in the matter. As it stands now, each committee will include its recommendation in its report to the committee on procedure. That committee may either reject both of them or forward both of them to the continuing committee. In the former case, things will remain just as they now are, the Children's Bureau remaining in the Department of Labor.

Should the committee on procedure pass both on to the continuing committee, they will stand on an equal footing before that body. Thus, the women, who have been supporting the Children's Bureau and Miss Grace Abbott, its chief, have better than an even chance of carrying the fight to success. The committee on procedure can not reject one recommendation without the other under terms of its own statement of Thursday, in which it declared that all controversial matters will be decided after adjournment by the continuing committee.

Protest Action of Committee.

A preliminary skirmish yesterday morning which concluded the open session of the public health section gave an inkling of a battle to follow. At this session, many women and several men protested the action of the section's committee in reaffirming its

SOVIET BARS LEAGUE CONTROL OVER ARMS

Litvinoff Also Denounces Draft as Incapable of Reductions.

BUDGET PLAN EXTENDED

Geneva, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Russia today served notice on the preparatory disarmament commission that any attempt to place supervision of the treaty in the hands of the League of Nations or any of its organs would be unacceptable to that country.

This pronouncement by Maxim Litvinoff, chief Soviet delegate, followed upon submission of two proposals, one by the British and the other by the French, to place supervision of the treaty's execution in the hands of a permanent disarmament commission under league auspices.

Litvinoff also expressed dissatisfaction with the draft so far adopted, which he held inadequate. He asserted all efforts of the Soviet delegation have been in vain and held the chapters as drawn up incapable of even serving as a framework for decisions for any real armament reduction.

The commission finally placed both British and French proposals in the hands of a subcommittee for study. Under the British scheme the permanent supervisory commission would be composed of the current members of the League of Nations Council, who are parties to the treaty, and the United States and Russia. The French would leave the general disarmament conference to determine the commission's personnel.

The two proposals also differ in that the British would have experts on the commission independent of their governments and reporting directly to the league, while the French

Capt. McNeil Thanked at City Hall by Mayor Walker.

Ovidia's Chief, Wife, and 26 of Crew Reach Port.

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Back from the sea saved from a watery death today came Capt. Axel Carlsson, his wife and cat and his crew of 26 from the little Swedish freighter, Ovidia.

Three hundred miles off Newfoundland Wednesday afternoon, Capt. Carlsson said good-bye to the little ship he had commanded for two years; calmly rowed to the towering side of the Cunard liner Mauretania and climbed a rope ladder 45 feet to her deck.

The sun had come out as he stood on the bridge of the "Old Lady of the Sea," once the speed queen of the North Atlantic, and looked back to where two empty lifeboats were bobbing in a heavy swell beside the sinking freighter.

"His heart was broken," Capt. S. G. S. McNeil, skipper of the Mauretania, said today of Carlsson in describing the scene. Then, as he too, thought of the abandoned little freighter:

"A very nice little ship, lovely little ship she was."

Full bodied, full blooded, 6 feet of man, Capt. Carlsson recounted in English broken only a bit by Swedish accent the loss of the Ovidia.

Her cargo of pitch pine shifted Tuesday, probably weakening her hull. That night a heavy sea hit her. She heeled over and sprang a leak. Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 Carlson gave up the unequal fight and at 2:16 he was on the Mauretania's bridge looking upon his ship for the last time.

No heroics from Capt. Carlsson. He was sad, yes, grateful too. He asked the press to give his thanks to the Mauretania's captain, her officers and to the passengers who contributed $500 for himself and his men. He had been at sea too many of his 48 years to believe that cursing fate did any good.

Dressed in the uniform of a first officer of a Cunard liner he sat in the conservatory of the Mauretania

SELF-GOVERNMENT FOR INDIA PLEDGED

MacDonald Stirs Delegates to Applause as Tense Debate Is Ended.

DEFINITE DATE NOT SET

London, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, in words which rang with hope for India's restless millions, today ended the five-day debate which had set the momentous Indian round-table conference in motion.

Welcoming the almost unanimous opinion of India's spokesmen that the federal system of government is their country's goal, the prime minister once more pledged Britain to the principle of responsible self-government in India, as in other units of the British commonwealth.

The great question during the coming weeks will be how—and, more important to the Indian delegates, when—that goal is to be achieved.

There was an atmosphere of tense expectancy in St. James' Palace when Premier MacDonald rose to speak. The Indian delegates hesitated even to applaud lest they miss one of his words. He told them Britain never would welch on any of her pledges and referred specifically to the Chelmsford declaration of 1917, pledging the development of self-governing institutions in India.

Hardly had he begun before he used a phrase which Americans who heard him in the United States last year will remember.

"Ah, my friends," said he, "do remember this, that the first thing you have to do regarding this conference is to assure yourselves that we have reached a milestone which indicates a different future from what the past has been."

The great circle of Indian delegates broke into applause.

Extremist Indian Nationalists were frankly disappointed with what followed, for it proved to be largely a

Mrs. Lulu Mae Gamble Freed in 30 Minutes in La Plata.

JURY VISIBLY MOVED AS SHE TELLS STORY

Handkerchiefs Flutter in Crowded Courtroom at Testimony.

BURST OF APPLAUSE FOR DEFENSE HALTED

Son, 11, of Defendant Proves to Be Best of Witnesses for Parent.

By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

La Plata, Md., Nov. 21.—Freed in less than 30 minutes by a jury which upheld a woman's right to slay the rival who wrecks her home, Mrs. Lulu Mae Gamble, 45 years old, last night rejoined her four small children when southern Maryland justice administered the unwritten law.

Before a jury, visibly moved by her pathetic story of an unwanted wife toiling in hher husband's tobacco fields, Mrs. Gamble confessed to firing the shot that killed Mrs. Elsie Davis last September 19. She "didn't want to kill anybody," but sought only to frighten the woman to make her relinquish her hold on Joe Gamble, Mrs. Gamble said.

The courtroom was jammed to capacity as Charles County sought to learn details of the tragedy. As the prisoner unloaded the story of her unhappy domestic life, telling of the abuse heapd on hr by the Davis woman and of threats on her life, there was a flutter of handkerchiefs and the sound of choked sobs as women spectators wept in the courtroom. Two jurors wept.

Two of the jury, which was composed of men, were so moved by the eloquence of the "unwritten law" appeal of Defense Attorney John P. Mudd, that they blinked tearfully when the lawyer pleaded:

"In the name of the Christian homes of this county I am asking you to send this unfortunate woman back to the little children for whom she has suffered.

"To my mind," he shouted, "it makes no difference at whom she aimed that pistol. I am not asking you to consider the statutes in this case. I am making a direct appeal to your hearts and to your innate sense of justice."

Crowd Applauds Speech.

A heavy silence settled over the crowded courtroom at the close of Mr. Mudd's plea. He was followed by his associate counsel, State Senator Walter J. Mitchell, who in quiet tones urged that the jury ignore the legal aspect of the case and "free the defendant whose life already has been shortened by her terrible misfortune."

A burst of applause greeted this closing argument and presiding Judge W. Mitchell Digges rapped his gavel, sharply calling for order. He threatened to clear the courtroom if not obeyed.

Standing with his around the tragic figure of his mother was 11-year-old Billy Gamble, whose testimony figured strongly in the case, corroborating all of Mrs. Gamble's story. He was at her side when the fatal shot was fired, having remained up with her in the early morning hours that preceded the tragedy.

Indictment Is Read.

Sitting on the bench with Judge Digges were Associate Judges Joseph C. Mattingly and William Neverell Loker, of the Seventh Judicial Circuit.

At 10 o'clock Warren M. Allentain, clerk of the court, announced the opening of court and the indictment charging first degree murder was read a few minutes later. Two panels of jurors, of 25 each were

Burglar Attempts to Enter Breckenridge Long's Home

Second Story Window in Rear of Residence Is Found Broken, After Prowler Asks About Mansion; Thief Frightened Off, Police Think.

An attempt to break into the home of Breckenridge Long, formerly Assistant Secretary of State under President Wilson, was frustrated last night when a burglar alarm was set off.

Detectives found that a rear window had been broken. Footprints were discernible in a small courtyard in the rear. Evidently the thief had been frightened away after breaking a window on the second floor of the house. He had reached the window by climbing up bars that protect windows on the lower floor.

Investigation showed that a man about 35 years old had been seen prowling about the place on Thursday. A neighbor told authorities that the man had approached him and asked whether there were any windows in the rear of the Long home.

When the police arrived last night the neighbor recalled the incident and told them of the man's question.

The Long home was built by Mrs. John B. Henderson, owner of Henderson Castle on Sixteenth street and widow of the late Senator Henderson. For a time it was leased to the Netherlands government for the use of its legation.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Nearly every day the current news reports some item that indicates how great this country is and how great are its resources. We are sometimes criticized for putting too much emphasis on size. It is true that quality is often more important than quantity. But greatness in nearly every direction indicates power, and power is capacity for making progress and doing good.

Recently it was announced that the banks were about to pay $632,000,000 to the Christmas clubs which make regular savings deposits during the year in order to provide funds for the needs of the holiday season. This great sum is more impressive because it is so representative of the earnings and savings of the people. It would pay many times over the national debt at the end of the Revolutionary War.

The beneficial effect that will be secured from putting a large proportion of this money into circulation is important. It will be used for cash purchases. If its owners will buy merchandise currently produced which in the future will require replacement the present needs of business and of the unemployed will be best served. The reserve power of the people, of which this is a good example, always helps to relieve any situation.

Gabbe, Ohio Dry, Comes Out For Repeal of Prohibition

Author of State's Enforcement Code Declares Rigid Control System Would Promote Temperance and Restore Respect for Laws in General.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—C. C. Crabbe, former Ohio attorney general and author of the State's prohibition code, today declared that he favored repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, also modification of the State prohibition enforcement code to permit the sale of light wines and beer, under Government supervision.

In advocating repeal of national prohibition, Mr. Crabbe said he favored leaving the matter of control to the States. In urging a change in the State enforcement code, he declared that he favors "modification rather than nullification," but opposes the return of the saloon.

Still for temperance, the former dry leader said he does not feel that the present prohibition law has been respected by the people or enforced by public officials. It has been and is being practically nullified, he asserted.

"I am still an advocate of temperance," Mr. Crabbe said. "I am, therefore, opposed to the complete abolition of laws designed to curb the traffic and use of liquor, but I am firmly convinced there should be quickly examined to complete the jury. This process required only about an hour and a quarter, as the veniremen seemed eager to fill places in the box.

The second man questioned was accepted and became foreman. He is John H. Reeder. Prosecution and defense counsel uses challenges freely. A number were excused because of already formed opinions regarding the case.

Husband State Witness.

The first witness called was Joseph Gamble, husband of the accused. Although admonished by Judge Digges that the law could not compel him to testify against his wife, the man willingly took the stand.

Under questioning by District Attorney Edward J. Edelen, Gamble told of the automobile ride he took with Mrs. Davis on the night of the tragedy, leading up to the moment when his wife thrust a gun in the car and pulled the trigger, as he parked near his home on returning from the trip. He said that Mrs. Davis had asked him to take her out in an effort to locate Raymond Grim, in whose house she was living. Grim lives about 100 yards from the Gamble residence.

Denies Wife's Warning.

Gamble denied that his wife had ever warned him to stay away from Mrs. Davis. While he was out with the woman that night Gamble said he drove to Popes Creek and Glymont, Md., seeking Grim, who is a son by a former marriage of Mrs. Gamble. They returned about 12:45 a. m., he said.

As the car stopped, Gamble said that his wife, shouting, "I've got you this time! Right is right, and wrong is wrong!" thrust open the car door and shot Mrs. Davis.

"The gun was so close to my face that I thought at first that I had been shot," the witness declared. The testimony brought out that the weapon used was owned by him and was kept in a table drawer at home. It was never produced at the trial.

Sobs Life Story.

Taking the stand in her own defense, Mrs. Gamble narrated a life of misery and unrewarded devotion to her husband, Joe. "I begged and entreated him to give up the company of the Davis woman," she sobbed, "but he refused to do so, and when I remonstrated with Mrs. Davis she threatened to kill me if I messed in her business."

Mrs. Gamble told how she had borrowed a pistol and waited for her husband and Mrs. Davis to return from the fatal automobile ride of September 19. Accompanied by her 12-year-old son, she said, she rushed up to the car, opened the door and shot Mrs. Davis in the head. "I didn't mean to shoot," she cried. "I just meant to scare them." Mrs. Davis died at a Washington hospital four days later.

One of the strongest witnesses for the defense was her son, Billy, who corroborated his mother's tale in every detail.

One of Few Delays.

Gamble said that it was a .38-caliber automatic pistol, using steel jacketed ammunition. He told how Mrs. Davis slumped in her seat in the car, and of driving to the office of a physician, Dr. Newman, who ordered her taken to Providence Hospital, in Washington. Dr. Newman followed in his own car.

One of the few delays marking the case was occasioned by a question asked Gamble by Mudd. "Did you ever see your wife at the Grim home prior to the shooting?" he was asked. The question was allowed after a conference of the judges, who ruled that any test to show the state of mind of the defendant before the shooting was admissible.

Dr. Fred R. Sanderson, of Providence Hospital, gave a brief account of the arrival of the wounded woman, who died several days later without regaining consciousness. Town Bailiff Michael Cochrane told how Mrs. Gamble, shortly after the shooting, appeared at his house to report firing the gun.

He said that she did not believe that she had wounded either her husband or Mrs. Davis and asked him to go and arrest them.

CRABBE, OHIO DRY, CALLS FOR REPEAL

some modification of the existing laws."

He explained that to obtain modification of the State enforcement code, it would be necessary to repeal the national prohibition laws as with national prohibition in force, State laws could not conflict with national.

Modification of the enforcement laws to meet the wishes of the majority would "command the respect of the people," he averred.

(lasomevO

"The present prohibition laws have not prevented the use of intoxicating liquors but, on the contrary, have brought about a condition where more people are drinking now than ever before," Mr. Crabbe said.

With reference to the State enforcement code which bears his name and which was approved by a referendum vote in November, 1920, he stated: "I believe modification to permit light wines and beer would bring a situation preferable to the present condition. If the law had been or could be enforced I would oppose tampering with it."

In his advocacy of repeal, Mr. Crabbe said: "The individual States then could enact and enforce laws that meet the wishes of the people of the States. That would, I believe, do much to eliminate conditions that exist today, restore respect for laws and in the final analysis promote temperance."

Under a system of State control, Mr. Crabbe would have all liquor dispensed under strict supervision and delivered to the homes instead of permitting it to be drunk in saloons.

HOUSE ACTION SEEN AGAINST GANGSTERS

BLOW AT DRUG TRAFFIC

(Associated Press.)

Gangsters, racketeers and narcotic smugglers are to get a dose of preventive medicine from the law enforcing branches of the Federal Government.

Direct Congressional action against the machinations of the lawless may add potency to the Government's ministrations before it finishes.

As the Customs Bureau announced yesterday it was going to concentrate expert narcotic agents on the Pacific Coast to combat smuggling, a member of Congress said he would demand legislation specifically authorizing Federal agencies to harmonize with State and Federal governments in their work against racketeers.

Mentions Al Capone.

Representative Woodruff (Republican), Michigan, has under formulation a measure he will present to the House ordering direct action to prevent what he termed the alarming spread of racketeering.

"When Al Capone can go from Chicago to California, as the papers have it, and threaten the life of a man who is selling grape juice, something must be done," Woodruff said.

The Michigan representative said the racketeers received most of their revenue from the man in a legitimate business "and he is entitled to protection."

West Coast Plans.

He added that in many cases, city, county and State officials had failed to halt racketeering. He commended Attorney General Mitchell for fortifying Federal forces in Chicago for work against gangsters.

The Custom Bureaus' staff of narcotics experts is to be headed by Melvin L. Hanks, credited with the successful prosecution of the Lau Lee opium case in Honolulu.

He will have agents in Seattle, Portland, San Diego and Los Angeles in addition to his San Francisco headquarters. The work will be to eradicate narcotic smuggling along the West Coast and across the Mexican and Canadian borders.

CAPT. AMMEL HURT IN CRASH AT ANCON

Plane Wrecked in Hop-Off; Injured Man Is Flown to Panama Hospital.

SHIP BREAKS IN THREE

Panama, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Capt. Roy W. Ammel, broker and veteran flier of Chicago, was injured today in an attempt to take off on a nonstop flight to the Illinois metropolis.

An examination by physicians at Gorgas Hospital here showed Capt. Ammel suffered contusions about the left shoulder and clavicle, the spine and chest, but no definite fractures were indicated by the X-ray and no paralysis was shown. The patient was conscious.

The accident occurred on Anchon Airfield when Capt. Ammel was attempting to lift the heavily loaded plane, Blue Flash, which recently carried him on a nonstop jump from New York to the Isthmus. He roared down the runway for 500 yards and then a waterhole, with the ships nose-eng into the ground and breaking into three parts.

Capt. Ammel was unconscious when first removed, but as he was lifted aboard an Army transport plane for the trip to Gorgas Hospital he asked for and smoked a cigaret although in great pain. The transport sped him to Paitilla Airport here and he immediately was transferred to an ambulance for a rush trip to the hospital.

The flier originally intended to start for his home city yesterday, but before final preparations were made discovered a leak in the gasoline line. A double crew of mechanics from France Field, the Army post, worked until nearly 2 o'clock this morning to reassemble the plane after virtually taking it to pieces to find a 4-inch break in a seam of the line. The New York-Panama flight was believed responsible for it.

Today friends and officials attempted to have Capt. Ammel postpone his flight, but he was eager to be off, saying he wished to finish the round trip before winter closed in on the Great Lakes region too severely.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT PEEVED AT WILSON

Resents His Charge That She "Put One Over on Drys" With Grape Deal.

AROUSED BY INTERVIEW

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The equanimity and self-assurance which have characterized Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt through thick and thin, as Assistant Attorney General, as politico-prohibition crusader, and more recently as gracious mistress of her Georgetown salon, left momentarily yesterday as she perused the report quoting Dr. Clarence True Wilson as saying she had put one over on the drys.

But it was only for the moment that she was disturbed. After expressing her strong feeling against those who discuss her "private affairs," which is the category in which she places such matters as getting the Farm Board to underwrite the California "wine" industry, her happy smile returned and she was once again her carefree self.

The story which aroused her was an interview with Dr. Wilson, of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals. Referring to Mrs. Willebrandt as a "very shrewd lawyer," Dr. Wilson had said:

"We have had a very shrewd lawyer put a deal over on us. The dry forces were not looking for it. We had the idea that anything Mrs. Willebrandt did would be about right. Evidently she was working for her clients, and not us."

Declared Serious Blow.

Dr. Wilson gave it as his opinion that the marketing of grape concentrates, to which water may be added to get wine, struck the most serious blow at prohibition since the thing was put into effect.

This is understood to be Mrs. Willebrandt's view. She is understood to believe that the home wine industry will go a long way toward temperance and toward checking agitation for repeal of the eighteenth amendment—just a discreet letting down of the bars, so to speak.

And while it is apparent that she has made no headway in impressing Dr. Wilson with this view, she has sold the idea to other dry leaders.

Dr. Wilson is the first to comment adversely. Mrs. Ella Boole, head of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, who, with Dr. F. Scott McBride and the Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, broke bread at Mrs. Willebrandt's table with Donald O. Conn, representative of the California vineyardists, is reported subsequently to have become indignant over the way the matter looked in print and to have written Mrs. Willebrandt to that effect. This, however, can not be confirmed.

Only Public Dissenter.

At any rate, Dr. Wilson is the only public dissenter among the drys to the wine plan. It may be that he is just a controversialist by nature. If he hoped to provoke a controversy with Mrs. Willebrandt, however, he failed.

She had only this to say for publication:

"My attitude is the same as it has been for the last year and a half. I will not conduct private law in the press."

As an example of how Mrs. Willebrandt's views on the temperance good in encouraging the grape marketing impressed some of the dry leaders, one said to this writer:

"After all, we've got to be broad-minded about this thing."

This was a decided change in his attitude, which formerly had been to pounce on anything that even smacked of a let-down in the Government's arid policy.

DEPRESSION IS SEEN IN SPIRITUAL REALM

Bishop of Colorado Holds Science Diplomacy and Finance Gain Rule.

URGES GOSPEL OF LOVE

"Like in the stock market, there are signs of depression in the spiritual world," said the Right Rev. Irving P. Johnson, Bishop of Colorado, in a sermon delivered last night at St. Stephen's Church, which was broadcast over Station WMAL.

"An overoptimistic belief that hysterical emotion can create real values, either in financial or spiritual areas, is responsible for the slump," he said.

"For the last 60 years we have become aware that the multitude has not worshipped the God of Love, but the trinity of science, finance, and diplomacy."

"The Great War was not the breakdown of Christian morality, but, rather, the creative act of that hierarchy of scientists, financiers, and diplomats which possessed a very casual recognition of God and a pronounced rejection of the Gospel of Love.

"Scientists have certainly increased efficiency, but with a profound disregard of the laborers displaced, so that one wonders whether the machines exist for men or men should be sacrificed to machines."

Obsolete Navy Vessel Will Be Put on Block

(Associated Press.)

Although she's 54 years old, comparatively small and heavy, she's been around a lot.

On December 17 initial steps to divorce her from the Navy will be instituted when she is offered to the highest bidder adjudged capable of treating her kindly in her old age.

She's the U. S. S. Essex, oldest steam-propelled ship of the Navy, and the last of her name on the Navy register.

Born in the navy yard at Kittery, Me., she was christened in Boston on otober 3, 1876, and intrusted to the command of the late Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, of Spanish War fame. Her ramblings round the world took her to ports of all sorts.

During the last three years she has instructed young naval reservists of Minnesota in the art of sailoring.

NORRIS AND CAPPER PRESS POWER ISSUE

Nebraskan Declares Four Other Bills Must Pass at Short Session.

KANSAN FOR GRAIN DOLE

(Associated Press.)

The power issue, Government or private control, was advanced yesterday by two Republican senators fresh from victories in the West, as one of the outstanding problems confronting Congress and the presidential campaign of 1932.

Senators Norris, of Nebraska, and Capper, of Kansas, joined in this opinion and in demanding action by Congress at the short session on the controversy between the Senate and House over operation of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power and nitrate plant.

The Nebraska senator is sponsoring the Senate bill for Government operation of Muscle Shoals. President Hoover is sympathetic to the House measure for private operation.

Names Four Other Bills.

Coincidentally, Senator Norris yesterday demanded votes upon four measures at the short session as the drive for avoiding an extra session of the new Congress in the spring. In addition to Muscle Shoals he named the constitutional amendment for elimination of short sessions of Congress, the measure to curb the power of courts in issuing injunctions in labor disputes, and the Wagner unemployment bills as legislation upon which he would insist that both the Senate and House vote.

"If the administration ceases its delay on these measures," he said, "this talk of a filibuster will fade away. But these all come under the heading of unfinished business, and if the administration does not permit a vote on these we may have an extra session."

Senator Capper also advanced a proposal that 50,000,000 bushels of wheat held by the Farm Board be used to feed the unemployed. Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, looked favorably upon this idea, remarking that "what haunts me is the fact that wheat is rotting in the warehouses and 90,000,000 people are hungry."

Holds Voters on Record.

Senator Norris asserted his belief that the power issue would be the outstanding one in the 1932 campaign and said "the citizens have spoken in unequivocal terms for Government operation in the recent election." He referred to referenda on water power in several States.

The Nebraskan said he was going to inquire into the primary campaign expenditures of Senator-elect Davis, of Pennsylvania, but he was not prepared to say he would object to the seating of Davis when his credentials are presented December 1.

Both Capper and Norris urged more time for a trial of the Farm Board before seeking to amend the law. Their position is expected to end any attempt to force an extra session by insistence upon the export debenture principle of farm relief.

All of the bills named by Norris already have passed the Senate except the anti-injunction measure. The House has under consideration a substitute for the Norris constitutional amendment to do away with the short sessions of Congress after elections in which a new Congress has been chosen.

Blames Power Trust.

Discussing his strenuous campaign in Nebraska, Norris accused the "power trust" and the administration of "disreputable, underhanded methods" in the campaign against him. He said it had been shown that Walter Head, an Omaha banker, to whom Norris referred as "a close friend of President Hoover," and Samuel McKelvie, a member of the Farm Board, had contributed to the campaign against him.

"However," added the senator, "I don't accuse every one who opposed me of using disreputable, underhanded methods. Many fine people and many fine Republicans opposed me and did so honestly and openly."

19 Held in Seizure Of Barge With Rum

Coast Guard Captures Ship With 150 Cases Off Maine Coast.

Boston, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Nineteen men were detained here tonight facing charges of conspiracy in connection with the seizure by Coast Guardsmen of what officials of the service at first believed was a record seizure of liquor on the seas.

The Coast Guard took the ocean tug Murrell and two barges, the Edith and Eagle Hill, into custody off Monhegan Island, near the Maine coast, Wednesday. While the crafts were resting in the harbor preparatory to a search of them today, the Coast Guard officials estimated they had close to $1,000,000 worth of liquor aboard. The search revealed 150 cases of liquor, the officials said, and brought the estimated value down to $10,000. They said the liquor was found on the Eagle Hill and none on either the Edith or the Murrell.

The nineteen men were not formally arrested, but were detained and will face a Federal commissioner tomorrow to answer to the conspiracy charges. Capt. Lewis H. Fisher, of the tug, denied all knowledge of the liquor found aboard the Eagle Hill. The barges carried cargoes of stone.

MRS. HOOVER MAKES GIRL SCOUT APPEAL

Pleads for More Leaders in Work at Banquet in New York.

MORE THAN 300 ATTEND

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover tonight made a plea for more leaders for the project which is said to be nearest her heart—the Girl Scouts.

"It is such fun to work and play with them," she said in an address at a dinner given in her honor at the Hotel Biltmore to celebrate the federation of the Girl Scouts of the five boroughs of New York City into one group.

"One of the finest things about Girl Scouts—and Boy Scouts, too—is that the organizations give girls and boys an opportunity to make friends with their elders. Young people often miss so much by not having friends among the older generation."

More than 300 men and women, many of them prominent in the social and civic life of New York attended the dinner and a large group of Girl Scouts in uniform sang choruses.

Mrs. Hoover was to start for Washington early tomorrow.

last night and heard Riola Tree, the English actress, sing John Masefield's beautiful poem: "I Must Go Down to the Sea Again."

He smiled at that, passengers watching him said.

Capt. Carlsson had no plans. The immediate futures of himself, his wife, his cat "Pyta"—who was born aboard the Ovidia and has known no other home—his men, were all in abeyance.

Capt. McNeil was thanked and commended today by both the City of New York and the Swedish government.

Consul General Olaf H. Lamm, of Sweden, met the Mauretania when she docked and thanked the British captain. Later Mayor Walker received Capt. McNeil at City Hall and expressed the admiration of New Yorkers for the rescue.

"I am informed that on the receipt of the call for assistance from the Swedish vessel Ovidia, you immediately hastened to her side to aid her crew in their distress," Mr. Lamm said.

"For your instantaneous response and for this generous, unselfish display of seamanship, I beg to express to you, on behalf of the government which I have the honor to represent, my heartfelt thanks. In this deep gratitude I join the captain and the crew of the Ovidia."

Meeting Place Changed For Model Plane Test

The new Adams School, Nineteenth and California streets northwest, will be the scene of this morning's model aircraft contest, rather than Macfarland Junior High School, as originally announced. The meet will open at 9:30 o'clock and will feature indoor planes of the hand-launched type.

Monthly contests will be held by the District Model Aircraft League at various schools. Clubs are also being organized in the schools.

DISTRICT ASKS RIGHT TO SETTLE DAMAGES

Claims Up to $500 Would Be Paid by Commission Under Proposed Measure.

BRIDE SUPPORTS PLAN

A bill authorizing the District Commissioners to settle small claims and suits against the District, in amounts up to $500, out of an appropriation of $25,000 to be provided, was prepared yesterday by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride for submission to Congress at the opening of the coming session.

This proposed legislation developed from recent recommendations by Mr. Bride, who pointed out that the Commissioners should have an available fund out of which to settle minor claims, because the present procedure under which claimants must lay their cases before Congress, adds to the cost of administration, delays settlement, and "materially irks the citizen."

Mr. Bride explained that the District is sued frequently because claimants prefer to take their chances in the courts rather than wait a year or more for congressional action. He called attention to the psychological effect of a cash settlement in avoiding suits and damages.

"Cash payments secure splendid advantages," Mr. Bride declared, adding that settlement would be made only where the Commissioners had specifically approved the legality or justice of the claim, and the specific amount. A provision to that effect is provided in the tentative measure approved by the Commissioners yesterday.

RAS TAFARI IS BROKE, BUT HAD GOOD TIME

Fancy Coronation Has Left Addis Ababa Flat, Yet Everybody's Happy.

DEFICIT TOTALS MILLIONS

Paris, Nov. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Weeks of gorgeous feasting and celebrations in connection with the coronation of Ras Tafari, Emperor of Ethopia, has left the treasury of the country as flat as a pancake. The king of kings is broke. Half his private army has to go without wages this month, and many important officials of the empire are quitting to go and seek their fortunes else.

The unpaid expenses of the coronation amount to several million dollars, but it is expected that this difficulty will be amply covered when the Lion of Juda's Tribe, as the emperor is called, shares out some big concessions to the world's largest oil companies, who are waiting in Addis Ababa for the emperor's word to commence operations and inaugurate a new era of commercialism and industry for Abyssinia.

No spite is held against the emperor by the people and chiefs of the Abyssinian nation for his lavish expenditures during the celebrations. All are satisfied, according to members of the French military mission, which returned to Paris after attending the coronation. Everybody has a good time and looks upon the paying of the bills in a sportsmanlike manner.

Parisian Chorines Please.

The first to be paid off are the 40 Parisian ballet dancers who were imported from Montmartre to entertain the emperor and his illustrious guests. The gay chorines from Paris simply danced away all cares and brusqueness of temperament.

The ballerinas were paid 20,000 francs in gold each in advance, plus first-class traveling expenses. But they have so pleased the emperor and his paladins that they have been given the choice between a bonus and permanent attachment to the imperial court of Ethiopia. Half of them are reported as having voted for a prolongation of their sojourn in Addis Ababa.

Gambling Casin Open.

The four Parisian traffic cops whom Ras Tafari imported to direct the flow of automobiles and camel caravans in his capital during the snow have declined the request to stay on. They claim they can't stand the heat, but there are also rumors of a misunderstanding on the score of salary.

The Greek casino remains open, and there is heavy gambling nightly. Feudal lords accompanied by their retainers are riding into town daily after having traveled immense distances. The hills are ablaze with the campfires of thousands of fierce hillmen.

In order to prevent a possible coup d'etat, Tafari has insisted that no feudal lord bring more than twenty retainers into the town, and each tribe must camp 20 miles away.

Doctors Assert Bishop Cannon Out of Danger

Physicians attending Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, who has been a patient at Sibley Hospital for several weeks, yesterday pronounced him out of danger. Complete recovery will require considerable time, however, they said.

Bishop Cannon has been suffering from inflammatory arthritis. The disease has been checked, physicians declared. It will be a few weeks before Bishop Cannon will be able to sit up.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IN a few weeks there will be another flurry of speculation as to what the National Law Enforcement Commission intends to recommend and that will be the end. It will gradually fade out of sight and memory except to serve as another line in the Who's Who biographies of those who served on it.

It is always thus with commissions. About the nearest parallel to the Wickersham committee, in importance and public interest, was the famous coal commission of a few years ago headed by John Hays Hammond.

* * * *

THE situation in the coal industry had been agitated so much that it was generally agreed that here was a matter for a body of fact finders, a group of disinterested, nonpartisan searchers after the truth.

So Mr. Hammond and his associates labored ponderously for months. Into the mine depths they went, into the miners' homes. There was hardly anything about the industry that the commission was not determined to know.

The time for making a report approached. The speculative reports on the commission's conclusions and interpretative articles reached fever heat.

* * * *

NEARLY every day the newspaper boys, as Senator Pess calls them, would meet with Mr. Hammond for a profound discussion of this phase of the forthcoming report and that. And what pleasant gatherings those were!

But the conflicting reports now about the conclusions of the Law Enforcement Commission vividly recall those concerning what the coal commission was about to say. There were writers to assure us that nationalization of the industry was to be recommended and there were other just as convincing statements that the commission would recommend no such thing.

For days and days the impending report was discussed on the front page. Then suddenly the flurry stopped, and there has been little or no reference to it since.

* * * *

IN due time the report appeared in person, so to speak. It was a foot wide and just about as long. If there was anybody in town who had any desire to revive the controversy over its contents one look at the bulk of the thing was enough to dissuade him.

The think is in the archives now somewhere and the coal industry is just as bad off as it ever was.

It should be said for the coal commission, however, that it retained its dignity almost to the very end.

The Law Enforcement Commission lost its poise after but a brief while of operation when in response to a political clamor it grabbed a few recommendations that had been lying around here for years and rushed out, saying: "Here—here is our preliminary report."

NURMI INQUEST SCHEDULED FOR TODAY AT ROCKVILLE

Washington to buy more liquor. Murphy, according to the chief, explained that he met his brother-in-law, who took him to the latter's home.

"We have no reason to believe that Murphy was implicated in the shooting in any way, but we believed it to be good policy to question him inasmuch as he had been with the party all afternoon," declared Chief Moxley. "His story agrees with that told by the other two men, and we have found that he was in downtown Washington at the time of the shooting, which has been placed at around 10 o'clock Wednesday night."

Second Autopsy Held.

Murphy, against whom no charges had been placed, was released. Police said Murphy advanced the opinion that Nurmi had a temperament which had led him to commit suicide.

A second autopsy was conducted unexpectedly yesterday afternoon by Dr. William T. Pratt, Montgomery County coroner, at the undertaking parlors of Warner Pumphrey, in Rockville, where he issued another report strengthening his autopsy report of Thursday that Nurmi was murdered. Dr. Pratt explained that information showing that Nurmi did not possess full use of his right arm led to the second official examination.

This new autopsy, according to Dr. Pratt, found that "a restricted motion of the right elbow, due to an old break in the bone just above the elbow, would have made it possible for the man to raise his arm to shoot himself if he had bent his head, but it would have been extremely awkward. The bullet, from a .25 caliber pistol, entered the right side of the head 1 inch above and 1 inch behind the ear.

Points to Murder.

"But if he had bent his head, the bullet would have been deflected downward, instead of going as it did straight across his skull to lodge itself in the left side," he continued. "In my opinion, the physical facts pointed to the shot having been fired by some one else."

Dr. Pratt, in his initial autopsy, announced that the lack of powder burns and the cleanness of the wound indicated that the bullet which killed Nurmi had been fired from a distance. The .25-caliber pistol, which police determined killed Nurmi, was found close to the man's head.

Both McGuire and O'Brien, although frankly admitting that they were companions of Nurmi on the drinking party at the man's house continued to protest their innocence and held to their belief that Nurmi apparently committed suicide.

McGuire Tells Story.

McGuire yesterday elaborated on his original statement, which showed that the death occurred after Nurmi and O'Brien, joining with McGuire when Murphy left them in downtown Washington, returned to the house.

"Nurmi, O'Brien and I were in a Washington bootleg joint about 6 o'clock Wednesday night and then went to Nurmi's house, where O'Brien was going to spend the night," McGuire was quoted by police as saying. "This was the first time I had met O'Brien. We had done considerable drinking, but I sort of held back because I had to drive the car back to Washington. While we were on our way to the house Nurmi told us about a new pistol he had bought and after we reached there he showed it to us. It was a .25 caliber, pearl-handled pistol. Nurmi fired two shots into the floor of the kitchen and then he fired another one into the cellar. Those are the only shots I know of.

"After that," the story continued, "O'Brien passed out and Nurmi went upstairs. Later O'Brien woke up and then I got ready to leave. But before I left, I went upstairs to look for Nurmi, but I could not find him. I searched the house and then I found his body on the driveway underneath his window. Then I called O'Brien, and we got police. I assumed that Nurmi had fallen out of the window. I have known Nurmi about six months."

Victim's Parents Return.

Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, former State's attorney of Montgomery County, and Kenneth Lyddane, both of Rockville, were retained as counsel yesterday by McGuire, while O'Brien retained H. Stine, Washington attorney.

"We are not going to attempt to secure the release of McGuire until the State's attorney has had full opportunity to complete his investigation," declared Capt. Cissel. "I believe that when he has done that he will find that neither McGuire or O'Brien have anything to do with Nurmi's death."

Nurmi's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew G. Nurmi, who recently went to Rochester, N. Y., where the former took a carpentry job, returned yesterday and established their residence temporarily with a close friend, John J. Stanley, of 6638 Eastern avenue, Takoma Park, who acted as spokesman for both in their inability as natives of Finland to speak understandable English.

Funeral Rites Today.

Stanley was quoted by police as saying that the parents are convinced that the young man, their only child, was "murdered in a runken brawl." He confirmed the fact that Nurmi had only partial use of the right arm, broken when he was a child and set improperly. He said that Nurmi formerly attended Business High School, where he won a medal in typewriting, and that neither he nor the parents had ever seen Nurmi with a woman companion. Police said Stanley admitted that Nurmi often had been on "drinking bouts" and that Stanley said he had "gotten Nurmi out of trouble several times."

Stanley said that Nurmi, before working with the Census Bureau, had been employed as a file clerk in the Navy Department here.

Funeral services for Nurmi will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Fort Lincoln Cemetery. Stanley said the officiating clergyman probably would be the Rev. G. E. Lenski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, Sixteenth and Varnum streets northwest.

would have the members direct representatives of their governments and under instructions from their governments.

The subcommittee to study the two plans consists of the representatives of the United States, Belgium, Great Britain, China, Finland, France, Greece, Italy, Japan and Turkey.

The commission today also placed its stampe of approval on the budgetary method of limitation for all divisions of the fighting forces. It previously had approved this plan for naval armaments as supplementary to direct limitation and as one method.

Hugh S. Gibson, American representative, who has consistently announced the unwillingness of the United States to adopt the budget method for herself, today voted for naval forces. In this he was joined by Japan, the only other opponent against the proposal.

The proposal as adopted declares the parties agree "to limit and so far as possible reduce the total annual expenditure on land, sea and air forces." Immediately thereafter, however, the commission by a seven-to-eight vote declined to approve separate budgetary limitation for each service arm respectively.

One Killed, Four Hurt In Fresh Spanish Riots

Barcelona, Spain, Nov. 21 A.P.).—One man was killed and four were injured today as rioting broke out anew between striking workmen, the police and a group of strikebreakers.

The clash took place in one of the industrial suburbs where disorders have continued for the past two days despite strike headquarters' orders that a general strike be discontinued. Today's riot occurred unexpectedly, as police were escorting the strikebreakers to their places of employment. The rest of the city remained quiet.

$250,000,000 ROAD PROGRAM INDORSED

Federal Appropriation Urged to Hoover Committee as Jobless Measure.

RESULT YET IN DOUBT

(Associated Press.)

A $250,000,000 Federal appropriation for highway construction to aid the jobless was urged yesterday to the President's emergency committee for employment by representatives of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

In addition, the delegation advocated a change in present law to permit the Government to contribute to the States 50 per cent of the cost of road construction instead of a maximum of $15,000 a mile.

It urged also that Congress authorize advancement of funds to be used in lieu of State money for meeting Government aid provided the money be repaid later. The States must match Federal appropriations.

The delegation which called upon Chairman Woods, of the employment committee, was composed of Henry H. Blood, chairman of the State road commission of Utah and president of the highway association; W. C. Markham, Washington; Grover C. Dillman, Michigan commissioner of highways; L. H. Wentz, Oklahoma highway commission chairman, and Samuel Eckels, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania department of highways.

If the recommendations are accepted by Congress a total of $375,000,000 would be immediately available for road building, since a $125,000,000 balance of Federal funds already is available.

No official comment was made by the employment committee, but it is known to regard road construction as a practical and economical means of furnishing relief through added employment.

WOMEN WIN POINT ON CHILD WELFARE

recommendation to transfer the Children's Bureau.

John P. Fry, secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, began the discussion by deploring a situation which made it impossible for those in opposition to the transfer to express themselves. He pointed out that the Children's Bureau had been placed in the Labor Department upon recommendation of the A. F. L., and that that body had pushed legislation to have it made a Federal bureau.

Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, of New Jersey, chairman of the committee on organization for the handicapped, declared that her committee would have recommended in its report prior to the conference that the Children's Bureau be left where it is, except that it had been told that no controversial matters would be contained in any report.

Others Deplore Transfer.

Numerous other delegates expressed their regret at the turn matters had taken and deplored possible transfer of the bureau.

Dr. C. Carstens, chairman of the section on the handicapped child, stated after the section had adopted the two resolutions that they had been adopted Wednesday, the first day of the conference, by the committee on dependency and neglect, but that they had not been presented because the section wished to avoid controversy.

If the public health section had remained silent, he continued, the committee on dependency and neglect would never have disturbed the peace of the conference. He added that since the adverse recommendation had been adopted, it was necessary for his committee and section to act to make a case for the Children's Bureau.

Judge Cabot Talks.

At luncheon meetings during midday, several groups heard brief talks from delegates. Judge Frederick P. Cabot, of the Juvenile Court of Boston, addressed the committee on juvenile delinquency, of which he is chairman. Delving into his experience, he pointed out that juvenile courts should be regarded as parents to the children brought before them. He declared that special classes for "feeble-minded" children bring humiliation upon themselves and their parents and recommended centrally located schools where no other types of children would be taught.

Other speakers at the luncheon were Judge James Ricks, of the Juvenile Court of Richmond; Judge Herbert C. Cochran, of the Juvenile Court of Norfolk, Va.; Judge Mary Bartelmy, of the Juvenile Court of Chicago; James S. Owens, director of the division of probation, Department of Correction, New York; Frederick A. Moran director of the Parole Commission of New York, and Judge George M. Read, of the Probate Court, Detroit.

Another luncheon meeting was held by a group interested in the relation of the school to delinquency. Thomas M. Balliet formerly of the University of New York, declared that all children should be allowed to go forward in school regardless of their marks. If there is a conflict of temperament between a child and its teacher, the child should be transferred, he said.

Urges Scientific Bent.

In his address Secretary Wilbur urged his hearers to help America educate children in the ways of science, to the end they may cope eventually with science.

"The purposes of the conference," he said, "are to steady our children against the high-power impact of new forces which have developed in our modern civilization; to protect them physically and mentally, to the utmost of our abilities and with the widest possible application of scientific knowledge; to extend and strengthen those community forces which stand to the child in the place of many of the earlier responsibilities of home and parents."

"To evaluate our school other objects in the light of rapid changes in our social scheme, expanding their functions at those points where the modern home is no longer equipped to train children. And at the other end of the line, to find ways and means to strengthen the hands of parents through education, as rapidly as possible, equipping them with new knowledge concerning children as it develops.

"To discover the machinery by which the benefits of preventative medicine and sanitation, of community social and cultural agencies, can be extended to all children—in the country as well as in the city—which, too often now are enjoyed by the privileged few.

Hits Overzealousness.

"And in the midst of our crowding eagerness to help lift our children to higher levels, to guard them against our own overzealous programming—to leave them sufficiently wide margins of free time and free space for the great and joyous adventure of growing up as personalities, operating under their own motive power."

The same meeting was addressed by Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, director of the College of Home Economics at Cornell College, who pointed out that the task immediately following the present conference will be to turn into actual practice the immense amount of facts it has brought together.

Education of parents in parenthood was stressed by Miss Van Rensselaer as especially necessary in this day of rapid change. "A woman may have completed a college course," she said, "and yet she may not know how to bathe her first baby."

"The next adventure," Miss Van Rensselaer continued, "is the marching forward, armed with new knowledge and inspiration, of this great army of adults."

COMMITTEE FAVORS JOB QUESTIONNAIRES

Cards for Circulation to Householders Asked as Unemployment Aid.

BANK HELP SUGGESTED

A request for 15,000 questionnaire blanks to be distributed to home owners, to locate jobs painting, repairing and redecorating homes, was submitted to the Commissioners' Committee on Unemployment yesterday by William A. Roberts, chairman of the Unemployment Committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

If the public cooperated more fully with its bankers in times of prosperity, the recurrent periods of business depression would be more limited in their extent and intensity, according to Edwin S. Hege, chairman of a subcommittee appointed to investigate how unemployed persons owning real estate might be able to meet their taxes and finance home repairs.

Blank Aid Offered.

"It appears," said Mr. Hege's report, "that several weeks ago the bankers, on their own initiative sought to discover and adopt ways and means of helping home owners and others, because they desired to do all in their power consistent with good business practice and their accountabilities to the Treasury Department to help through a period of distress depositors and makers of real estate notes with banks for collection.

"A real estate note maker, finding himself short of funds for urgent needs, would do well to call promptly on his banker for a full and frank discussion of the problem. Most banks welcome requests from customers for advice on financial matters, and were such requests made more generally in times of prosperity, the periods of business depression, that recur after spans of time of varying length, would be limited in their extent and intensity."

Use Christmas Funds.

Mr. Hege also suggested that Christmas savings funds could be used "to do some plastering, papering, painting, carpentry, or other work around the home."

Mr. Roberts suggested that about 15,000 cards would be needed for his committee to circularize, through the local citizens associations, for work to increase business activity and relieve unemployment. He suggested that the cards be made so that the recipient could advise the committee that he has work to offer for certain types of laborers.

Announcement also was made by Mr. Roberts of appointment of various chairmen of subcommittees. Mr. Hege was named as chairman of the committee on banking and financial arrangements; Miss Etta Taggart, committee on household repairs and inferior decorating; W. I. Swanton, committee on questionnaires; and Charles I. Stengle, committee on ways and means.

RUMOR THAT STALIN WAS SLAIN PERSISTS

Vienna, Austria, Nov. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Reports that Joseph Stalin dictator of red Russia, has been assassinated in Moscow are in persistent circulation here today, but are denied by the Soviet Embassy in Vienna.

The reports were first made public on the Stock Exchange here and in the Prague by persons who stated that they had been in telephone communication with various Russian cities.

It is pointed out by those best informed regarding present conditions in the Soviet that dispatches of this character could never get by the Moscow censor, and that the absence of press reports confirming the assassination is therefore no proof that the private messages are false.

See Bitter Contest.

White Russians here who have been keeping in close touch with friends in Russia are emphatic in their declarations that a bitter struggle is undoubtedly on between Stalin, who is determined to put through his program for industrializing the country at all costs, and other powerful Russians, who fear that the Soviet state may crumble under widespread starvation. They declare that the circumstantial character of the messages received here is highly significant.

One message reaching Vienna today reports that the entire crew of a Soviet battleship at Kronstat, including the captain, has been arrested for refusing to sign a protest against the tactics of the rirght wing of the Communist party. The name of the battleship was not given in the report. All the other officers, as well as the captain, are said to have associated themselves with the stand of the crew and to have been put in irons.

This message is interpreted in some quarters here as evidence that the unrest in the Red army, indicated by the previously reported revolt of two battalions at Islailowo, a town near Moscow, has spread to the navy.

Generals Resign.

Meanwhile, Vienna hears, Gen. Kork, commander in chief of the military district of Moscow, and Gen. Tuchachewsky, commander in chief of the Red forces in the Lenigrad district, have both been forced to resign their commands, pending investigation by the Kremlin into the circumstances of the mutiny at Islailowo.

Discontent has recently been spreading through the forces commanded by these two generals, it is understood, and the revolt at Islailovo was the culmination of a series of acts of insubrdination.

Gen. Kork has been ordered before a special tribunal to answer personally for the mutiny of his men.

The Soviet authorities are taking all possible measures to keep news of disaffection among the troops from trickling out of the country. One telephone conversation today between a Berlin and a Moscow correspondent was smothered by the whistling of someone on the line.

EXTRA WHEAT SEEN AS MEALS FOR IDLE

50,000,000 Bushels Gotten by Farm Board Viewed as by Capper.

CITIES' NEEDS STRESSED

The suggestion that the Government utilize 50,000,000 bushels of the wheat accumulated through the stabilization efforts of the Federal Farm Board to feed the hungry and jobless was advanced yesterday by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas.

The senator plans to suggest this at the farm relief conference called for Monday by Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, chairman of the Senate agricultural committee. If a practicable scheme can be worked out, he indicated, he will introduce a bill to authorize this use of the Government wheat as soon as Congress reassembles.

So far, Senator Capper said, he has not attempted to devise a method for distribution of the flour to be made from the wheat, but since the need for such relief would be most acute in the larger cities, he is inclined to think that municipal agencies or private charitable organizations might be utilized.

"We have shipped a lot of corn to Russia and food to other parts of the world in the past when there was suffering," the senator said. "I don't see any objection to taking care of our own people as well."

In addition to providing food for the hungry, it was pointed out, the senator's scheme would also tend to improve the agricultural situation by reducing the amount of wheat available for ordinary commerce. The taore of wheat accumulated by the Farm Board is viously estimated up to 104,000,000 bushels, all acquired in the board's efforts to stabilize the market.

Senator Capper is of the opinion that the board has no authority to utilize this wheat for relief purposes without directions from Congress.

Body of Murdered Man Fired With Gasoline

Bartlesville, Okla., Nov. 20 (A.P.).—Found dead in a blazing motor car near here, with a bullet through the heart, the body of a man was believed identified today as that of B. T. Farley, of Lawton, Okla., a construction company employe.

Officers believed the man had been shot to death his body saturated with gasoline from the motor car tank and then ignited. The car was found last night on a road 6 miles northwest of Bartlesville.

Suicide Sits at Radio To Drown Noise of Shot

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The radio in James Novak's room played far into the morning today. Deciding something was wrong, Novak's landlord entered.

Novak was in a chair beside the radio, a revolver in his right hand, a $20 bill in his left hand, and a bullet wound in the right temple. He had written this note:

"Poy: All my insurance is paid up. Put me away. Use $200 for a dinner for my gang. I got a $20 bill in my hand. Take it from Jim to Pete Nikola."

The radio prevented others in the house from hearing the fatal shot.

Snake Expert States Fish Originated Smoke Screen

Dr. Witmars Shows Geographic Society Films of Sea Denizens With Electric Defense and Others Having Device for Spraying Acid Against Enemies.

Sea creatures, in the incessant war that goes on beneath the waves, originated both chemical warfare and the smoke screen, Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of mammals and reptiles of the New York Zoological Park, told members of the National Geographic Society last night in an address at the Washington Auditorium.

Motion pictures showed cuttlefish spreading a dark fluid, in which they had, and sea caterpillars blowing out acrid fumes to drive away their enemies. The efficient electric defense of the ray was shown in other pictures. After a huge octopus had wrapped its tentacles about a ray, the latter hurled the creature aside by an electric shock.

Among the other queer sea denizens shown by Dr. Ditmars were fish that squeak, parachute-like jelly fish, echinoderms which have the appearance of animated pin cushions, tear fish that dissolve the shells of mussels, and crabs that walk about in the cast-off shells of other creatures or under sponges.

The photographic studies presented by Dr. Ditmars were made before huge glass tanks at the biological station at Naples, Italy, and the oceonographic Museum at Monaco. This method of studying sea life gives a more intimate insight into the habits of the creatures than descent under sea with a camera, Dr. Ditmars declared, because when their domain is suddenly invaded the creatures are shy.

CHURCHES TO HOLD THANKSGIVING RITES

Diplomatic Corps Will Be Present at Services in St. Patrick's.

FREEMAN TO BROADCAST

In accordance with a time-honored custom, many of the churches of Washington will hold Thanksgiving Day services Thursday morning. There was a period in the history of the human race when these services drew crowded churches, but with the coming of football and turkey dinners and golf and the automobile, the interest in them has seemed to wane. The attendance, however, has not fallen off to the same degree that the midweek prayer service has shrunk, and the probability is that those churches which are open for this festival will be comfortably filled.

Thanksgiving as a regular feast day of the American churches had its real beginning with President Andrew Johnson, who revived the custom of issuing a proclamation and calling the people to church to praise God for what He had done for them during the past year. Mr. Johnson was not a member of any church. He worshiped with the Methodists, to which communion his wife belonged, until his impeachment trial, when he began attending St. Patrick's Catholic Church, whose pastor was his good friend. This probably was the origin of the custom of the noted Pan-American Mass at St. Patrick's Church, which was attended by a number of our Presidents, notably Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson. That custom has not been followed since the last Democratic administration.

Service at St. Patrick's.

The Pan-American service at St. Patrick's is a diplomatic affair, attended by the Diplomatic Corps of Washington, many of them dressed in their vivid official uniforms. The service has all the dignity and grandeur that is typical of the Roman Mass. The Right Rev. Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of the Catholic University, will pontificate, and the Right Rev. Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University, will preach.

In some of the churches the President's Thanksgiving proclamation will be read to the congregation. At Grace Lutheran Church, on Sixteenth street, Representative Paul Kvale, of Minnesota, the lone Farmer-Labor member of the House of Representatives, who holds the balance of power in the next House, will perform this service. In addition to a special musical program, the pastor, the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, will preach on the subject, "How Shall the World's Most Favored People Prove Themselves Grateful?"

Union of Lutherans.

Bishop James E. Freeman, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Diocese of Washington, will preach at the Cathedral in Bethlehem Chapel at 11 o'clock. His sermon will be nationally broadcast over WMAL. Communion will be celebrated at 7:30 a. m. in Bethlehem Chapel and at 9:30 a. m. in the Chapel of the Resurrection. The offerings taken on this day will be distributed to the poor through the Episcopal City Mission.

In some of the Protestant churches the beautiful feast of the harvest will be celebrated, and in others gifts of a different sort will be brought and laid on the altar for distribution among the poor.

There will probably be no more touching observance of the day than the union of old St. Paul's Lutheran congregation with Luther Place Memorial, which is the child of St. Paul's. The celebrated Dr. Butler, who founded the Memorial, was pastor of St. Paul's at the time, and in leaving St. Paul's to become pastor of the Memorial he carried a number of his old parishioners with him and left behind him some ill will, which time has happily dissipated.

In Mount Pleasant.

In the course of years it happens that now both St. Paul's and the Memorial have brilliant young ministers, who are so fortunately placed with their flocks that they are stirring up the Lutheran community.

This union service will be at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Snyder, pastor of St. Paul's, will conduct the service, and Dr. Rasmussen, pastor of the Memorial, will preach the sermon.

Another union service that is likewise unusual will be that of the churches in the Mount Pleasant neighborhood. It will be held at All Souls' Unitarian Church on Sixteenth street, and Dr. J. J. Rives, pastor of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church South, will preach the sermon. All of the ministers of the cooperating churches will participate in the services. In this service the Universalist National Memorial Church will unite.

Takoma Park Union.

Only one of the Protestant communions will hold an exclusive service, this in accordance with its usual custom. All of the Baptist churches will unite in this service, which will be held at the National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth street and Columbia road northwest. The Rev. C. B. Austin, pastor of the West Washington Baptist Church, will preach the sermon.

In the Petworth community the Protestant churches will hold a joint service in the Petworth Methodist Church. The Rev. C. E. Hawthorne, minister of Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, will preach the sermon.

The ministers of Takoma Park have planned a union service, which will be held at Takoma Park Presbyterian Church. All of the ministers cooperating will participate in the services. The Rev. Elmore Turner will preach the sermon.

Offerings for Needy.

Most of the Presbyterian churches, following their custom, will hold services in their own houses of worship. At the Church of the Covenant, the minister, Dr. Albert Joseph McCarthy, will preach at 10:30 o'clock. At Washington Heights Dr. John C. Palmer, the minister, will preach at 11 o'clock. At the Church of the Pilgrims Dr. Andrew Reid Bird, the minister, will preach at 11 o'clock on "The Secret of Thanksgiving."

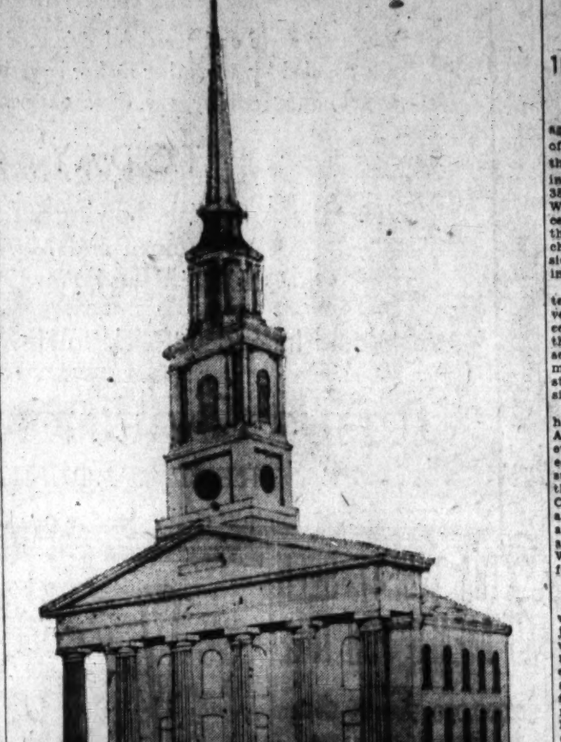
At Metropolitan Baptist.

At Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, the pastor, Dr. W. A. Shelton, will hold forth, breaking the bread of life in his usual scholarly manner.

On Sunday evening at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Dr. John Compton Ball, pastor, a harvest home and Thanksgiving service will be held. Donations of canned foods, groceries, vegetables, fruits, &c., will be received for the benefit of the Baptist Home for Aged Ladies. These donations with shocks of corn and farm products will decorate the platform.

All of the churches at Chevy Chase which have been holding union Sunday evening services, will hold a union Thanksgiving service at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church. The Rev. J. T. Spicknell will preach.

Church Is Preparing For Sesquicentennial



This is the original plan of the first Presbyterian Church in Georgetown, known as the Bridge Street Church. It succeeded the log church which Dr. Balch built to house his tiny group. The name of the architect is unknown. The plans were drawn in 1815, and the estimated cost of the building was $30,000.

Mr. Niles, the minister of the present church, found these old plans, badly worn and moth eaten, and they were restored and mounted by Mr. Sidney L. Wardwell, the Washington architect. It is the intention to have the plans framed and hung in the church as a memorial.

Celebration to Start Soon at Georgetown Presbyterian.

Handsomely engraved invitations have gone out from the old Georgetown Presbyterian Church, inviting Presbyterians of the community and others to attend the 150th anniversary of the founding of the church. This is probably the oldest congregation in point of continuous service in the District of Columbia, though the Rock Creek Episcopal Church was founded earlier and there was a congregation of Lutherans at Georgetown when Dr. Stephen Bloomer Balch, the founder of the church, came there. The Lutheran church disappeared, according to a record left by Dr. Balch's son, though its members may have organized the Georgetown Lutheran Church, of which the Rev. Harold E. Beatty is the popular pastor.

Beginning with the last Sunday in November and extending through Sunday, December 7, the celebration will be a notable affair. On the first named date the Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, D. D., LL. D., president of Princeton Theological Sminary and former moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, will be the guest preacher. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Frank Sergeant Niles, taught for a while in Princeton before accepting the call to his present pastorate.

On this occasion also a tablet will be unveiled to the memory of Dr. Balch, who had the rare distinction of being not only the founder of the church but also of having served it as minister for fifty-two consecutive years, a longer pastorate, perhaps, than any other minister ever served in Washington.

In the evening the celebration will continue, with a beautiful musical recital given by Miss Evelyn Scott, violin; Miss Sylvia Meyer, harpist; and Mrs. Frank Akers Frost, organist. The guest preacher for this service is the Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

On Wednesday night the historical celebration will be observed, at which the Rev. Harold E. Beatty will deliver greetings and Dr. William Knowles Cooper will make the historical address. This occasion will also be enriched with a splendid musical program.

On Friday evening the commemoration exercises will come to a close, at which time the Rev. Dr. Robert G. Leetch and the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will be the guest speakers. Dr. Sizoo will preach the sermon.

On Sunday morning, December 7, the Communion of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated by Dr. James T. Marshall, pastor emeritus of the church, assisted by Dr. Douglas Putnam Birnie.

Last Saturday The Washington Post printed on the church page the names of the pew holders of this church of a century ago, and many readers of the article for the first time realized how closely they were identified with the old house of God. From some of them came as an offering the first Communion cup used during Dr. Balch's time and other pieces of Communion sets. The church is gathering up these precious relics and will display them on Wednesday evening during the celebration.

Presbyterian Juniors Will Visit Synagogue

Dr. Abram Simon's Sunday school will be hosts tomorrow morning of the children of the junior department of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Sunday school.

With their teachers the latter will go in buses to the Washington Hebrew Synagogue, and there Dr. Simon will explain to the children the various symbols and the Hebrew service of worship.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By DR. SAMUEL JUDSON PORTER

(Pastor of First Baptist Church)

The Art of Encouraging People

"AND Jonathan went to David into the wood, and strengthened his hand in God." "And Peter took him by the right hand and raised him up." "Lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees, and make straight paths, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed." Men skilled in the art of comforting and encouraging others are given a large place in the Bible record.

It has been said of Jesus that of all men the world has ever seen, He knew how to put heart into people. He knew and practiced the art of encouraging. The gospel story bears out the statement in a wonderful way. There can be no other explanation of the scene so often witnessed during the years of His ministry, when all sorts of broken and needy and discouraged people crowded about His pathway. This fine art of encouraging makes bigger demands upon faith and courage and personality than all the other arts combined. And if it were so fine and splendid and difficult for the Master, what must it be for us! The throngs that flocked about Him 2,000 years ago show how much the gift of encouragement needed exercising then, but there are many things that reveal the fact that it needs exercising almost as much today.

We might all make a straightforward confession that there is nothing we need much more than that the art of encouraging should on occasion at least be practised on us. It is not flattery that the sincere soul wants, the saying of sweet nothings, trying to please by telling a host of things that are not true; but what we all need—what I need many, many times—is some touch of courage or faith or renewal that shall lift me out of my discouragements and falterings, and help me still to believe in the good and press on to its realization with all the freshness and frankness of childhood. And what I need I know I should be trying to give to other people.

A certain fine man used to say that if he had been given his choice of any role in history, he would have chosen to be the angel sent to strengthen our blessed Lord in His agony in Gethsemane. Yet even that task is open to us all. There was a bluff but kindly soldier who held up a sponge with vinegar to the parched lips of the Saviour when he was dying. "Let be," the others cried. But he would not desist; rough fellow though he was, he did what he could for Christ. What the angel did in Gethsemane, and what the soldier did at Calvary, we also may do. Hear the Master's own words: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

PREACHING MISSION DECLARED SUCCESS

Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes Heartened by Response to Efforts.

10,000 ARE ATTENDING

Ten thousand persons on an average have been attending the services of the Diocesan Preaching Mission of the Episcopal Church which has been in progress throughout the week in 35 mission centers in the Diocese of Washington, according to reports received from the different centers by the Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, chairman of the Diocesan Commission on Evangelism, which is conducting the mission.

Speaking of this attainment yesterday, Dr. Stokes said that it was very gratifying to members of the commission and the missioners to feel that this spiritual impulse has been so pronounced. He said that the mission has aimed at religious instruction and a deep spiritual impression rather than numbers.

Bishop S. B. Booth, of Vermont, is having most successful missions at Aquasco with about 175 coming out every evening and about 40 at the early Communion service. Equally successful missions are being held by the Rev. John J. Queally at St. Mary's City at Upper Marlboro, at Rockville and many other places. The services at Olney, Anacostia, Takoma Park and similar residential centers near Washington are exceptionally successful.

Bishop Freeman to Preach.

The eight-day preaching mission, which began last Sunday with the joint meeting in Constitution Hall, will close tomorrow with early Communion services in all churches, generally at 8 o'clock, morning prayer and sermon at 11 o'clock by the missioner, and the final address by the missioner at 4 o'clock in the evening. Bishop Freeman will preach at the close of the mission at St. Andrew's Church, Sixteenth and V streets northwest, at 11 o'clock when he will conduct confirmation. At Ascension, Thirteenth and Massachusetts avenue northwest, where the mission services ended Wednesday night with the transfer of the Rev. Robert S. Chalmers to St. Andrew's Church in accordance with previous arrangements, Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington Cathedral, will preach at the morning service at 11 o'clock and the Rev. W. T. Snead, of Philadelphia, at the 8 o'clock service.

The Very Rev. D. Wilmot Gateson, of Bethlehem, Pa., who has been conducting a successful mission at Rockville, accepted the invitation to Washington on condition that he would have to get back to Bethlehem for Sunday. His mission consequently closed last evening as did that of Bishop Freeman at St. Mark's. All other missions are continuing through Sunday.

The Rev. Frederick G. Budlong's mission at St. Alban's Church, Wisconsin and Massachusetts avenues, has been well attended all week and during recent evenings has been crowded to the doors. Bishop Philip Cook, of Delaware, the missioner at St. John's, Georgetown, is continuing to attract full congregations.

Among the other very largest congregations have been those at St. Stephen's, where Bishop Irving P. Johnson, of Colorado, the head of "The Seventy," is the missioner, and at Epiphany, where Bishop Strider, of West Virginia, is the missioner. These will close the mission with the two services tomorrow.

Dr. Oliver's Method.

Father Spence Burton, at St. Luke's Church, Fifteenth and Church streets; Father Shirley Hughson, Order of the Holy Cross, at St. James' Church, Eighth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast; the Right Rev. William P. Remington, of Oregon, at Rock Creek Church, Rock Creek Church road, are among the other missioners in the heart of the residential sections of Washington with large and growing congregations.

Two of the most successful missions are those of St. Thomas,' Eighteenth and Church streets northwest, under the Rev. John Rathbone Oliver, M. D., the well-known psychiatrist, and that of Bishop Clinton S. Quin, of Texas, at All Souls,' Connecticut and Cathedral avenues northwest. Dr. Oliver makes his appearance with the vested choir, preaches a formal sermon from the pulpit, then, after intercessions in response to special requests for prayers, appears in the middle aisle in his cassock answering questions.

Church Federation To Aid Unemployment

The appointment of a committee on unemployment was voted at the meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches on Thursday. Its membership will be designated by the president, Dr. A. R. Bird. The personnel of a committee already in existence in the woman's council will comprise a part of the number chosen for this service.

The group will not act independently, but will cooperate with other local bodies having the same objective in every way possible. Pastors in the city will receive shortly an information sheet carrying suggestions as to what local congregations may do in the present emergency. These will be sent from the office of the federation.

Leadership Training Class Is Organized

Under the direction of D. Roland Potter, chairman of the Young Peoples' Committee of the Federation of Churches and for years an expert in young peoples' work, a leadership training class has been organized at the National City Christian Church to meet each week, with various speakers coming to each meeting to speak on special phases of leadership.

The particular objective of this group is to train leaders to take care of the increased number of members coming to the church school or other organizations of the church. Miss Eula Mae Emick is president of this training class; Evan A. Wilder, vice president; and Miss Rachel Miller, secretary.

New York Pastor at Howard Chapel.

The Rev. William Lloyd Imes, pastor of the St. James Presbyterian Church, of New York, will speak at the religious service in Howard University Chapel tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Imes is a graduate of Fisk and Union Universities and is a member of the interracial committee of Philadelphia and is the author of several books concerning the Negro.

Attorney to Address Missions.

Paul Cromelin, prominent Washington attorney, will be the speaker tomorrow night at 7:45 in the Central Union Mission Chapel, 613 C street northwest. Special music will be furnished by Mrs. Roy W. Prince, soloist, and Miss Annabell Sanford, violinist.

MISSIONER

FATHER SPENCE BURTON, of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, who has been conducting the mission at St. Luke's Church, Fifteenth and Church streets.

Large Attendance Heartens Pastor

Every Seat in Chapel Filled for Dr. H. W. Snyder's Midweek Service.

Dr. Henry W. Snyder, the able young minister of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, was agreeably surprised Thursday evening to be greeted with a congregation at the midweek prayer service that filled every seat in Epiphany Chapel. This is a record, it is said, making the largest prayer meeting attendance in Washington.

This tribute was personal in a way, for it commemorated the beginning of Dr. Snyder's second year in this important pastorate. A special program was arranged by the Christian Endeavor Society, and the minister and his wife covered with flowers, real and figurative.

Dr. Snyder thanked his people for their splendid loyalty and cooperation, and prophesied still greater things for the coming year.

Former Washingtonians Honored by Adventists

Three former residents of Takoma Park will hold the leading offices in the recently organized Far Eastern Division conference of Seventh Day Adventists, which will have its headquarters in Manila, Philippine Islands.

They are Prof. Frederick Griggs, former secretary of the educational department of the general conference, who will be president.

The Rev. J. H. McEachern, formerly connected with the publishing department of the general conference, who will be director of the publishing work.

The Rev. W. P. Bradley, a graduate of Washington Missionary College, who will have charge of the educational and young people's departments.

Dr. Wilkinson to Discuss Bible.

"Is America's Future in the Bible," will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of Washington Missionary College, Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock, at Mount Pleasant Hall, 1813 Columbia road northwest. The health lecture will be at 7:15 p. m., with musical program.

CHURCH TO SEARCH FOR NEW MEMBERS

Luther Place Memorial Will Start Big Missionary Work Tomorrow.

100 PLAN VISITATION

Every member of the congregation of Luther Place Memorial Church is expected to start out tomorrow on a great missionary enterprise. They will visit every nook and cranny of Washington and its suburbs looking for new members for this church. This is one of the highlights of the remarkable membership campaign that this church is making. At a final meeting last night, 100 visitors met in the church parlors and reviewed plans for their Sunday visitation. Tomorrow morning in a special service they will be solemnly invested as ambassadors of the congregation.

On last Sunday 69 new members were taken into the church. The scene is said to have thrilled the congregation, for it was the largest class ever taken in at one time in the history of this church, and was probably the largest single class ever taken in by any Lutheran church here. This one class is reported to be larger than any Lutheran church here took in during the whole of 1929.

During the brief pastorate of Dr. Rasmussen, which is not yet nine months old, the membership of this church has doubled, and on last Sunday the Sunday school attendance was 430 per cent greater than on the same Sunday a year ago.

Dr. Rasmussen is a pulpiteer of signal ability, scholarly and eloquent, and his coming has revived interest in religious affairs among the downtown churches.

Huguenot Society Will Hold Annual Service

The annual services under the auspices of the Huguenot Society of the District of Columbia will be held at the Central Presbyterian Church, Sixteenth and Irving streets northwest, tomorrow morning. The Rev. Dr. Florian Vurpillot, the chaplain of the society, will be present and take part in the service. The sermon will be preached by Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church. The Young People's Chorus will sing the Huguenot hymn, words for which have been arranged for the occasion.

At the 200th anniversary of the landing of the Huguenots in the Province of Carolina, which was observed at Charleston, S. C., last April, Dr. James H. Taylor preached the sermon. Dr. Florian Vurpillot was formerly pastor of this Huguenot Church in Charleston, S. C., the only Huguenot Church now in America. Dr. Vurpillot came direct from France to take that pastorate.

Chinese Missionary Crisis to Be Discussed

The missionary crisis in China will be discussed at a conference to be held Monday and Tuesday, afternoon and evening, at the Fourth Presbyterian church, Thirteenth and Fairmount streets northwest. The Rev. James H. Miers, minister of this church, will be the host.

The speakers will be: The Rev. Robert E. Glover, home director in North America; the Rev. James Stark, Shanghai, secretary of China council; the Rev. H. Edwin V. Andrews, secretary in Philadelphia; the Rev. Herbert M. Griffin, missionary in Shansi; Miss Maude Moler, missionary in Chekiang. This conference will be open to the public.

Ladies Aid Society Plans Loyalty Service

The religious service at Washington Heights Presbyterian Church tomorrow night will be under the direction of the Ladies' Aid Society, and is the fourth in the series of loyalty month services.

Mrs. H. O. Plugge, a niece of George Ade, the Indiana humorist, will deliver an address on "Duty and Loyalty, Love and Light." Miss Helen Augusta Colhoun, daughter of the late Admiral Colhoun, will recite Longfellow's poem, "Sandalphon," and Mrs. J. Harry Cunningham's chapter of the Eastern Star will furnish special music.

Baptists in Brookland Will Hold Revivals

Evangelist Joe Jeffers and wife, who have been holding revival services in Washington for several weeks, will begin another revival with Brookland Baptist Church, Monroe and Sixteenth streets northeast, tomorrow morning at 9:30.

The subject for the evening sermon, 7:45 o'clock, will be "God's Program for a Revival." The 11 o'clock subject will be "The Biggest Business of Life." Mr. and Mrs. Mark Short, noted gospel singers from Texas, will assist in these meetings.

Federation Sets Christmas Service.

The annual Christmas Service conducted by the Federation of Churches will be held this year in the National City Christian Church on Thomas Circle. The sermon will be preached by Dr. W. A. Shelton, the new pastor of Mount Vernon M. E. Church South.

Last Lecture on Travel.

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will conclude his travel lectures tomorrow night.

CHURCH TO DEDICATE ORGAN NEXT SUNDAY

Program of Sacred Music Will Be Given Nov. 30 at St. Dominic's.

CARNIVAL PLANS MADE

On Sunday evening, November 30, at 8 o'clock a sacred concert will be conducted at St. Dominic's Church, Sixth and E streets southwest. This concert has for its purpose the dedicating to the cause of sacred music an organ which has been rebuilt and modernized during the past year. Mr. Constantino Yon, organist of St. Vincent Ferrer's Church, New York City, assisted by a double quartet of male singers, will present the program.

Among the distinguished patrons of this event are Prince Albert de Ligne, Ambassador from Belgium; Mr. Katsuji Debuchi, Ambassador from Japan; M. de Freye de Santander, Ambassador from Peru; Count de Montefuerte, Charge d'Affaires of the Spanish Embassy; Dr. R. T. Holden, Dr. Francis Marsden, James F. Shea and Capt. A. J. Taylor.

The concert will close with solemn benediction, at which the Very Rev. Raymond Meagher, O. P., S. T. L., will be the celebrant.

Thanksgiving Carnival.

On Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the church hall, the Holy Name Society of St. Jerome's Church, Hyattsville, Md., will hold its annual Thanksgiving Day carnival for the benefit of the building fund. There will be prizes fitting for the Thanksgiving season. All are invited.

First Negro Bishop.

Colored members of the Roman Catholic Church in Washington are deeply interested in the news that comes from Rome of the confirmation of the first Negro bishop of that world-wide church. He is the Right Rev. Chiudane Marian Cassa, D. D., Bishop of Abyssinia. The consecration services took place in the Chapel of the Ethiopian College, Vatican City, with impressive ceremonies, as a Titular Bishop of Tibari, having full jurisdiction over the Catholic people of Ethiopian Rite.

The rite of his consecration was performed by His Eminence Cardinal Sincero. High dignitaries of church and laity were in attendance. For the occasion the new bishop was the recipient of many congratulations and beautiful presents.

Sodality Union.

The Sodality Union of Washington will hold its twenty-sixth semiannual demonstration in honor of the Blessed Virgin at St. Peter's Church tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Edward R. McAdams, pastor of St. Joseph's Church.

Solemn benediction will follow with the Rev. Joseph J. McLaughlin, S. J., director of St. Aloysius' Junior Sodality, as celebrant, the Rev. J. G. McCourt, director of St. Stephen's Sodality, deacon, and the Rev. Thomas F. Sweeney, director of St. Anthony's Sodality, subdeacon.

The music for the services will be by the choir of St. Peter's Church, under the direction of Prof. Christopher Tenley.

A memorial mass for the sodalists of Washington who died in 1930 will be offered up at St. Patrick's Church, Friday, at 7 o'clock.

Mission Crusade.

A new unit of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade is being formed to follow the same plan of work as the two well-organized veteran units. Its object is to aid the home and foreign missions. This unit is to be called the Shahan Unit, in honor of the Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan.

The unit will be under the spiritual guidance of the Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, director of missions in the archdiocese.

Public Novena.

A special public novena in honor of our Blessed Mother, invoked under the title of Our Lady of Prompt Succor, will be held in the chapel of the Ursuline Convent, 519 Fourth street northwest, Washington, D. C., beginning Sunday evening, November 30, at 8 o'clock, and closing the evening of December 8, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Prayers of the Devotion and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, also a sermon every evening by the Rev. Herbert Kennedy, O. S. M., of the Catholic University.

Bishop Will Confirm Class at St. Andrew's

Bishop James E. Freeman will visit St. Andrew's Church tomorrow and will preach and confirm a class. This is the concluding service of the preaching mission which has been held during this week in connection with the Church of the Ascension.

Songs of Thanksgiving At Trinity M. E. Church

Music will fill Trinity Methodist Church, Fifth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, Sunday evening, when "Songs of Thanksgiving" will be given by a quartet and a chorus choir of 25 voices under the direction of Mr. Guy Skinner. The minister, Dr. Dan L. Ennis, will be on the program.

Chevy Chase Church to Celebrate.

Chevy Chase Baptist Church plans to celebrate the seventh anniversary of its organization in December. A fitting program will be arranged. One of the features will be a visitation evangelism program for new members.

Mrs. H. W. Snyder to Speak.

Mrs. Henry W. Snyder will deliver an address to the women's missionary society of Georgetown Lutheran Church Sunday evening. The women have charge of the evening service at this church. Miss Frances Dysinger will conduct the devotional exercises.

Cathedral Canon to Preach.

Canon Joseph Fletcher, of the Cathedral, will be the guest preacher at the Church of the Transfiguration tomorrow, in the absence of the rector, the Rev. J. J. Queally, who is completing a mission in southern Maryland.

Will Address Bible School.

At the Columbia Bible Training School, 1724 H street northwest, tomorrow afternoon, at 2:30, and in the evening the Rev. B. Dunwoody Walker will be the speaker. His night topic will be the Jewish question and Anti-Christ.

French Pastor to Preach.

The Rev. Florian Vurpillot, pastor of the French Congregation which meets every Sunday afternoon at St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, will preach tomorrow at 4 p. m. on "Jesus ou un Autre?"

Will Preach in Hyattsville.

Dr. Ray Palmer, of Washington, will preach at the First Baptist Church at Hyattsville Sunday morning.

REPRESENTATIVE PAUL KVALE, who will read the President's Thanksgiving proclamation at Grace Lutheran Church Thursday.

FOUNDRY METHODIST USING NEW BUILDING

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Pastor for Six Years, Is Congratulated.

HOOVER'S BEST WISHES

A few days ago old Foundry Methodist Church, Sixteenth near P street northwest, dedicated its new church building. In Episcopal churches it is called a parish house; in Baptist churches it bears the name of school of religious education; in Unitarian churches it is called the church house, and old-time Methodists would name it a Sunday school building. But it is more than that, for it houses the various activities of the church, having 30 rooms devoted to that purpose.

In the midst of this celebration the eminent pastor, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, passed his sixth anniversary in this pastorate, and was the object of many warm congratulations. Some of these came from those high in public life. Vice President Curtis and Secretary Hyde sent letters.

"I send congratulations," our Quaker President wrote, "and good wishes to you and the congregation of historic Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church on the opening of the new church parish house.

"Such a strategic center from which to surround youth with character building and influences can not help but be an asset to the spiritual and moral forces of the Capital City."

Dr. Harris is a former president of the Washington Federation of Churches, and is prominently known throughout the Methodist denomination.

Gen. Ballington Booth Speaks Twice Tomorrow

Gen. Ballington Booth, founder and president of the Volunteers of America, will speak tomorrow at the Metropolitan Memorial M. E. Church, John Marshall Place and C street northwest, at 11 o'clock a. m., as the guest of Dr. James Shera Montgomery, and in the evening at 7:45 at the Calvary Baptist Church as the guest of Dr. William S. Abernethy.

Gen. Booth comes to Washington in the interest of the local program of the Volunteers of America for relief work among the unemployed. Adjutant Richard L. Grainger, local commander of the Volunteers, is in charge of the arrangements.

Luther League to Give Comedy, 'And Mary Did'

A comedy, entitled "And Mary Did," will be presented under the auspices of the Luther League on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets. The title role will be taken by Miss Helen Swygert, with Robert Leech playing opposite her.

Others in the cast are Misses Dorothy Burr, Lillian Lindquist, Dorothy Lesch, Dorothy Riess, Irene Lerch, Elinor McRae and Messrs. Edward Stevlingson, George Monk and Louis Hoover. The play will be under the direction of Herman Riess.

St. Andrew Brotherhood Is Host to Missioners

At the weekly luncheon sponsored by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the national organization of men in the Episcopal Church, the bishops and other clergy who are conducting the preaching mission now being held throughout the Diocese of Washington were entertained informally.

HUMANE BODY ASKS SUIT BE DISMISSED

Answer to Injunction Plea Defends Fees for Dog and Cat Shelters.

SOCIETY CITES CHARTER

The Washington Humane Society and nine of its members, named in a suit for injunction filed last week in the District Supreme Court by Victorine B. Elmore and others, point out in their answer recorded yesterday that the society is a charitable corporation and if its proposed actions are beyond its powers, they can be prevented only "at the suit of the United States," since it is incorporated by act of Congress. The defendants ask that the suit be dismissed.

Mrs. Elmore, president of the organization, and the other plaintiffs seek to restrain the society and its executive committee from paying $600 to the Humane Education Society for operation of a dog farm in Maryland, from paying $200 to a cat home at Brandy, Va., and from expending $300 monthly for veterinarians to treat the ill and disabled animals of the poor. The plaintiffs allege that the executive committee and the society are without authority to make such donations.

In their answer, however, the defendants point out that the size of the District makes it almost impossible to obtain a site for an animal shelter within its boundaries and so on that account it is necessary to maintain a shelter for dogs in Maryland and one for cats in Virginia. The proposed expenditure of $300 monthly to care for the ill and disabled animals of the poor is for "preventing cruelty to animals which otherwise would suffer for want of such treatment," an action authorized by the purposes of the organization as set forth in the original charter, the answer asserts.

Attorneys George C. Page and Vincent A. Sheehy filed the reply for the defendants.

Parent Education Offered in Course

Columbia Bible School Joins in Spiritual Enterprise.

At a recent conference of the officials of the Parent-Teacher Association and Columbia Bible Training School plans were made for launching study group courses in spiritual training throughout the District of Columbia. "Education in Parenthood" is the main object of the course, which is planned to extend from January 1 to June 10, 1931, with classes meeting once each week for one and a half hours' sessions, each of which will be divided into two 45-minute periods.

The curricula and instructors are as follows:

Spiritual training of children (graded course), the Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor Albright Memorial Evangelical Church; Bible (methods of teaching and literary and spiritual appreciation), Miss Elsie Wade Stone, president Columbia Bible Training School; story telling (how and what to tell children), Mrs. Raymond F. Crist, member faculty; child study (graded course), Mrs. William T. Bannerman, New York State Normal School graduate and teacher; music (what parents should know of children's music), Miss Edith B. Athey, organist Hamline M. E. Church; care of mother and child, Dr. W. Sinclair Bowen.

Geodetic Survey Report Presented

Need of Further Work Is Expressed in Summary by Capt. Patton.

Expression of appreciation of J. Pierpont Morgan's donation of the yacht Corsair, and a discussion of the necessity for extending hydrographic work further from coast lines are included in the annual report of Capt. R. S. Patton, director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. In his report to the Secretary of Commerce, Capt. Patton points out that many of the surveys made by his organization have become obsolete, due to the shifting of reefs and the "stern requirements" of modern navigation.

The report also calls attention to the program for expediting completion of the control surveys of the United States, explaining that when this work is finished the country will be divided into a number of small areas, each outlined by exact geographical points which will control the accuracy and reduce the cost of more detailed surveys.

Another important item listed in the report is the airway map, compiled to meet special requirements of the aviator.

MASONS LAY PLANS FOR BICENTENNIAL

Leaders Confer With Bloom on Fraternity's Role in Washington Fete.

LODGES AID COMMITTEE

Plans for bringing fraternal organizations into active cooperation with the George Washington Bicentennial celebration in 1932 were discussed yesterday by Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the bicentennial, and prominent Masons of the country. This meeting was the first of a series planned for the immediate future. At the conference were J. Claud Keiper, of Washington; Representative Roy O. Woodruff, of Michigan; Col. John H. Cowles, of Washington; Charles H. Callahan, of Alexandria, Va.; Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois; James H. West, of Washington; Elmer Rogers, of Washington; Percy J. Burrell, of Massachusetts.

Tentative plans were adopted whereby Masons of the District and Alexandria, in cooperation with lodges in Maryland and Virginia, will outline a program of cooperation with the bicentennial committee.

Hundreds of thousands of Masons are expected in the city for the dedication of the George Washington Masonic Memorial at Alexandria, which is expected to be the center of Masonic ceremonies not only during the week of the dedication but throughout the year of the bicentennial observance.

U. S. Marshal to Speak To Bible Study Group

United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder will address the Harrison Bible Class of Congress Street Methodist Protestant Church, 1228 Thirty-first street northwest, tomorrow morning at 9:45 o'clock.

Mr. Snyder will speak on "Ideals." Inspector William H. Harrison, of the District Police Department, is president of the class.

Officer Elopes On Way to Georgia

Baltimore Resident Wed by Col. Robert Knox, Friends Learn.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—While en route to Fort Benning, Ga., Col. Robert S. Knox, U. S. A., stopped off long enough to marry Miss Florence Drysdale Gillet, at Rockville, Md., on November 1, it was learned by fellow officers at the Third Corps Area headquarters today.

Col. Knox, who is 57, is the C. M. T. C. officer of the corps area. He left November 1, to take a month's course at Fort Benning preparatory to taking over his command of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, one of the two Negro infantry regiments in the country, at Nogales, Ariz., on January 1. He will return to Baltimore December 1.

Miss Gillet, of Newport News, Va., a clerk in the quartermaster's department at Third Corps headquarters here, met the colonel in Rockville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. M. F. Minnick, rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church. Mrs. Knox is a sister of Lieut. Norman D. Gillet, chemical warfare service, stationed in Washington.

MRS. HOOVER HONOR GUEST AT BANQUET

Attends Dinner Given by Greater New York Girl Scout Federation.

HER DAY IN CITY BUSY

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—After an energetic day, in the course of which she visited friends, held a number of conferences, attended a luncheon, and went to an art gallery, Mrs. Herbert Hoover was guest of honor at a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore inaugurating the Girl Scout Federation of Greater New York. Mrs. Hoover is honorary president of the Girl Scouts of America.

Wearing a plum-colored suit trimmed with gray fur, Mrs. Hoover arrived in New York early in the forenoon. She first paid a call on Suzanne Silvercrys, a sculptress, who in private life is Mrs. Henry W. Farnham. They became friends while President and Mrs. Hoover were living in Belgium.

After several conferences at the Colony Club and the Hotel Biltmore, Mrs. Hoover attended a buffet luncheon at Girl Scout headquarters. She then paid a visit to the Engineering Women's Club, of which she is a charter member, stopped at the headquarters of the Army and Navy football committee, and proceeded to an art gallery on Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Robert G. Mead, president of the New York Girl Scouts Federation, and Mrs. F. Louis Slade, State president of the League of Women Voters, were the principal speakers at the dinner tonight. Mrs Hoover spoke briefly and informally.

Alumnae Association To Give Dinner Tonight

The Grinnell Alumnae Association of Washington will give a dinner tonight at the Dodge Hotel in honor of Dr. J. H. T. Main, president of Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, and Dr. Charles Noble, for 28 years head of the English department but now retired and living in Washington. Mr. Edward Merrill will preside.

After the dinner moving pictures of the Grinnell campus will be shown. Dr. Main and Dr. Noble will make short talks.

Groups to Draft Radio Plans for Madrid Event

(Associated Press.)

Three committees to draft a program for the United States to propose at the international radio conference in Madrid in 1932 were appointed yesterday at a meeting of Army, Navy and commercial radio engineers and executives, called by Chairman Charles McK. Saltzman, of the Federal Radio Commission.

The problem of distribution of world radio channels, which is expected to be brought up at the Madrid conference, will be studied by one committee as one of the major points to be discussed.

149 Enlisted Navy Men Given Academy Chance

(Associated Press.)

High hopes of wearing the gold braid of a commissioned officer were increased yesterday for 149 enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps. They were ordered to report at once to the Navy Preparatory School at Hampton Roads for study intended to fit them for the Annapolis Naval Academy.

The law authorizes the appointment of 100 enlisted men to the academy each year. After their training at Hampton Roads, they take the usual Annapolis mental and physical tests and, if successful, become midshipmen.

Three Cited for Fishing In Gun-Infested Waters

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Undismayed by 105-millimetre howitzers and 14-inch railway guns, Chesapeake Bay fishermen, the Federal grand jury charges in three indictments, have been pushing their craft into restricted waters at the Army proving ground at Aberdeen. The danger signals displayed during target practice have had little effect on the more venturesome of the fishermen, but the gunners have been made nervous, according to O. Norman Forrest, acting district attorney.

Four artillerymen were injured recently, he said, when a 14-inch gun was hurriedly unloaded just as fishermen got within range. The men indicted, Howard Jackson, John Cooper and D. Franklin Beck, had been warned several times, officials said.

$1,150 in Old Money Found Among Antiques

Maftinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Continental paper currency, with a face value of $1,150, most of it in a fairly good state of preservation, was found yesterday by antique collectors here in some furniture purchased from a family living west of here. The currency is all marked redeemable in Spanish milled dollars of value in good silver at the rate of one for 40 at the Treasury of Virginia on or before December 30, 1792. A large part of it was issued in 1776.

The same collectors said they had recently bought for $1 from the same family four goblets of the Baron Steigel pattern, made in Mannheim, Pa., which later brought $1,000.

UNCLE SAM TAKES A HAND.

Racketeering is primarily a local evil. It may be that occasionally a Chicago gangster is imported to New York to carry out a nefarious piece of business, but generally the gangster stays close to his familiar haunts. The apprehension of gangsters and the destruction of racketeering should be the business of the police departments of the various cities. The Government should not be expected to interest itself in the suppression of local crime, but it can and should act when Federal statutes are violated.

In revealing that Federal officers have been stationed in Chicago since June in a campaign against gangsters, Attorney General Mitchell listed the Federal statutes under which action may be taken. These pertain to the income tax, smuggling, interstate transportation of stolen vehicles, immigration, white slavery, combinations in restraint of trade, and prohibition. The Departments of Justice, Labor and the Treasury, through the Bureaus of Prohibition, Narcotics, Internal Revenue and Immigration and the Secret Service, have had extra forces in Chicago all summer. These forces, says the Attorney General, are now to be "fortified."

Hope for relief from the menace of gangster rule lies in the result of the Government campaign in Chicago. If Federal agents are successful in the Windy City similar campaigns will be undertaken elsewhere, provided city officials invite the Government to take a hand. Thus far in Chicago considerable success has followed the prosecution of gangsters under the income tax laws and sections of the antitrust laws pertaining to illegal combinations in restraint of trade. Two prominent gangsters who were apparently more powerful than the law in Chicago have been found guilty of filing false income tax returns and have been sentenced to imprisonment. Seven members of a racketeering ring established to terrorize the candy trade were sent to jail, and eleven others fined for violating the antitrust statutes.

The fact that the Federal Government has had to step in offers a sorry commentary on the efficiency and integrity of local police forces. The Government must prosecute gangsters for comparatively minor crimes. A criminal may be sent to prison for having falsified his income tax return when he should be electrocuted for murder. But in the breakdown of police forces in dealing with racketeering the public is thankful that there is an authority that can not be corrupted nor intimidated, and which can do much to break the hold which organized gangs have gained over local governments.

PROMOTING CHILD HEALTH.

The act establishing the Children's Bureau provides that it shall investigate and report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life among all classes of the people, and that it shall especially investigate the questions of infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanage, juvenile courts, desertion, dangerous occupations, accidents and diseases of children, employment and legislation affecting children in the States. The bureau also was charged with administering the Sheppard-Towner act for promoting the welfare and hygiene of maternity and infancy, under which the Federal and State governments cooperated to reduce maternal and infant mortality. Congress allowed this act to expire recently, but it may be that the law will be revived.

When the committee on public health organization of the White House Conference on Child Health recommended that "the consolidation of Federal health activities be provided for by congressional act, specifically authorizing the transfer of the functions, together with the personnel and necessary appropriations for their support, of maternity and infancy aid of the Children's Bureau to the Public Health Service," it realized, no doubt, that it would stir the opposition of the bureau and of women's organizations throughout the country. So bitter is the opposition that there seems little likelihood that the recommendation will be acted upon during the life of the conference.

The Public Health Service is charged with the duty of assisting State health departments in improving local health conditions. If the Government is to continue to aid in promoting health conditions relating to maternity and infancy, the task seems to belong to the Public Health Service. The Children's Bureau would not relinquish its interest in the work if jurisdiction were transferred, but it would cooperate with the Health Service, much as the latter cooperates at present with the National Park Service in the sanitation of national parks.

The Children's Bureau has become an integral and permanent part of the Government activity in behalf of the people. It does an important work. If the child health activities of the Government can be more efficiently administered by the Public Health Service, the Children's Bureau, which has charge of child welfare, should be the first to recommend the transfer of jurisdiction.

REAPPORTIONMENT MUST COME.

Congressmen who are attempting to upset the reapportionment of the House of Representatives are fighting for a lost cause. There is not a chance that they can muster enough votes to suspend the Constitution again, and if they could, their quackery would be halted at the White House.

Arguments so puerile that they would be discarded in a high school debate are being used against the reapportionment. Representative Rankin, of Tupelo, Miss., announces that he will fight the law on the ground that "it would take representatives away from 21 agricultural States and give them to States with large congested centers." Are States to be deprived of just representation because they are industrialized?

The objection to allotting representatives on the basis of the entire population has been raised many times, but in view of the fact that the Constitution explicitly calls for reapportionment according to the number of "persons" residing in each State, the proposal is not worth discussing. It is revived only because a few States want to maintain an advantage to which they are not entitled and because some representatives from the losing States are afraid of losing their jobs.

Representative Dickinson, of Iowa, comes forth with a brilliant scheme to increase membership in the House by 27. Of course, that would not adjust the membership on the basis of equal representation, because the increase allotted to the rapidly growing States is predicated on decreases in the losing States. At any rate, the membership of the House is already too large. It would be a waste of time to revive that issue.

The reapportionment must stand. This petty bickering that is going on among potential lame ducks can have only one effect—interference with legitimate measures before Congress. If these disgruntled representatives want to perform a real service let them stimulate the machinery of legislation in their home States for a reallocation of congressional districts.

In States that lose representatives redistricting must be done before the 1932 primary races get under way, or it will be necessary to elect all their representatives at large. Realignment of districts will be a tremendous job. Unless it is undertaken by legislatures without delay the outworn patterns now in effect will have to be used through another election in some States and discarded altogether in others.

DEADLY WOOD ALCOHOL.

The menace of wood alcohol is attracting the attention of health authorities in all sections of the country at the season when the motorist is preparing his radiator against freezing weather. That this poison is as dangerous to human life when inhaled in the form of gaseous fumes or absorbed through the pores of the skin as it is when taken as a beverage seems to be recognized by health authorities everywhere. The latest warning is from the pen of Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, in an article in the Scientific American:

> If this substance (wood alcohol) is to be used as an anti-freeze mixture in the coming winter, employes of garages who will inhale large amounts of it from overheated radiators are likely to suffer serious injury as a result.
> Cases have already been reported in which women and children, who have used quick drying shellac or varnishes made with methanol in closed rooms have suffered harm as a result. In the great spray process used in automobile factories the spraying is done under hoods and employes wear masks, so that they are protected against the hazards. As is usual in modern industries, the name of the product has been concealed by the bestowing of fanciful names and the average person does not recognize, under the fanciful title, the old, old hazardous wood alcohol.

The Wisconsin State Board of Health has issued a similar warning, in the form of a poster which has been distributed throughout that State, in which it is pointed out that "the toxic dose is not large and is easily reached even when the amount absorbed daily is too small to induce a noticeable initial toxic effect. Methyl alcohol boils at 150.8 degrees F., a moderate engine temperature and, therefore, vaporizes readily in automobile radiators."

The industrial alcohol division of the Treasury Department should be given control over the making and distribution of wood alcohol, for the protection of the public.

DENSITY OF POPULATION.

New Jersey has jumped into second place in the list of States arranged according to density of population. Figures from the Census Bureau show that New Jersey has an average of 537 inhabitants per square mile. This ranks the Mosquito State ahead of Massachusetts, and second only to Rhode Island. The diminutive size of Rhode Island in comparison with its capital city gives that State an excellent opportunity to continue in the lead.

These facts are interesting chiefly because they indicate that some parts of America are becoming as densely populated as the Old World. New York State is now more thickly settled than France. New Jersey, Massachusetts, and some of the other manufacturing States on the North Atlantic seaboard may be compared with the Netherlands and Belgium. They have half again as many people per square mile as Germany, and twice as many as China.

Population in the manufacturing districts of America has been concentrating rapidly in recent years. But the great open spaces of the West still have so few people that it is questionable whether they should be classed as inhabited. Nevada still has fewer than one person per section, and Wyoming has only slightly more than two.

These States may never support a dense population, but the fact that America has so many undeveloped resources and so much unsettled land suggests that there will be a vast increase here in the future, in spite of the tendency toward slower growth.

GEN. SUMMERALL RETIRES.

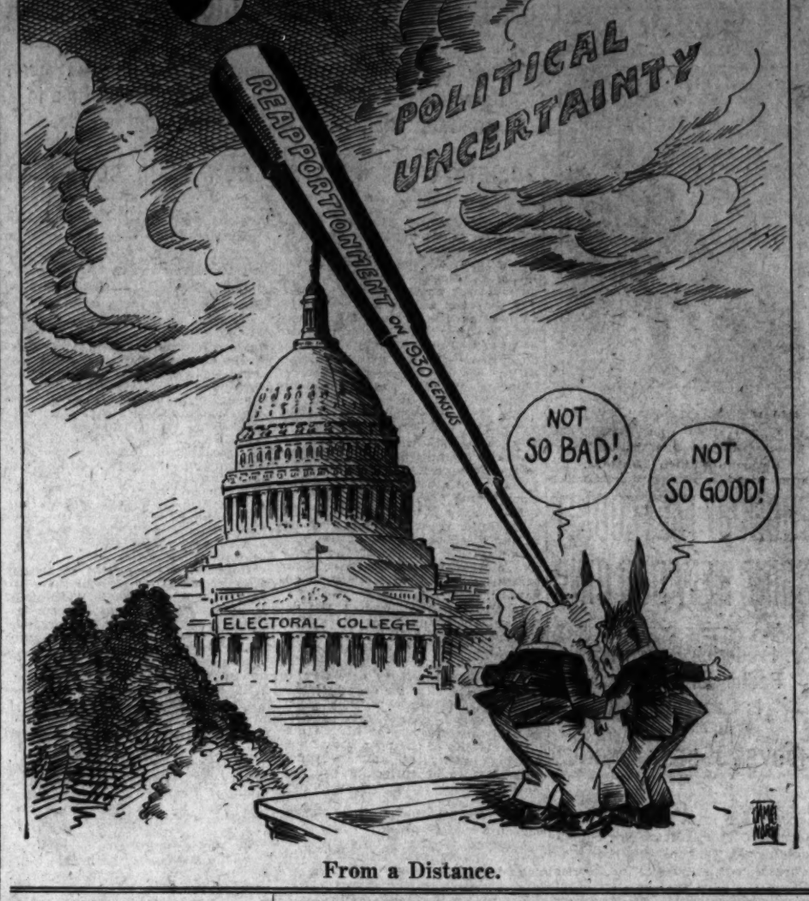
Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retiring Chief of Staff of the United States Army, has gone to a well-earned rest at his home in Florida.

Military leadership requires qualifications that apply to no other position in life. Heredity and experience molded Gen. Summerall for the work that fell to his lot. In youth he struggled with the hardships of poverty. In his young manhood he learned the grim realities of life on the battlefield. His gallantry was first manifest in the Boxer rebellion, when he advanced under fire to the gates of Peking and marked the bolts so that the artillery could destroy them. He learned the rigors, the hardness and the discipline of military life, and made the most of his experience.

As a commanding officer he became the embodiment of discipline and efficiency. Troops under his leadership in France were an irresistible machine. He bent all his energy toward routing the enemy, and was indefatigable, no matter what his difficulties were. The driving force in his nature would tolerate no hesitation, no inefficiency, and little rest from the struggle. His stern leadership and keen military intellect carried him forward to the supreme military position in the United States.

During his four years as Chief of Staff Gen. Summerall has devoted his untiring energies to improvement of conditions in the Army. He is not a man who can rest easily when there are problems to be solved and work to be done. After a life so active he may find it difficult to retire to ease and rest.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the new Chief of Staff, has also made a name for himself at the front as well as in executive quarters. The military machine for national defense remains in competent hands.



From a Distance.

PITFALLS AT GENEVA

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. N., In the Army and Navy Journal.

A situation highly dangerous to the United States has developed at Geneva. A British proposal has been made to limit armaments by the appropriations made annually for the maintenance of armies and navies. The United States refused to accept this method of limiting armaments.

The Geneva correspondent of the New York Times, in his reflection of British opinion, charges, in effect, that the United States is starting a new form of naval competition. The London treaty definitely limited the quantity of naval tonnage. Now we, with Machiavellian astuteness, are commencing a new competition in the quality of naval tonnage. If there is a failure to agree on budgetary limitations, "none here doubts much of the economy hoped for in the London treaty will not be realized, and the evils attending such quality in competition will equal those attending the previous quantity competition." Thus Mr. Clarence K. Streit endeavors to convince Americans that their Government is blocking progress in limitation of armaments by its refusal to accept a foreign proposal. Such being the case, it is proper to ask: What will be the effects of this proposal upon our national defenses? Here is our interpretation.

At the London conference, as is well known, we made many concessions. They were, so we thought, sufficient to have satisfied the other naval powers. Such apparently is not the case. For it now looks as if we are being placed between the Scylla of apparently blocking the progress of the limitation of armaments movement and the Charybdis of accepting a method of limitation which would surrender such rights as we gained at the London conference and render our Army and Navy impotent.

In exchange for our many concessions at London we gained one important advantage. Generally speaking, Great Britain and Japan will maintain their naval power at about the present levels, while we are given six years to catch up. Thus the British and Japanese may build comparatively few ships during that period, while we are permitted to build a much greater number—to counterbalance to some degree for our failure to build during the last ten years.

Obviously a limitation of our naval expenditures to an equality with those of Great Britain would prevent us from catching up with her during the period of the London treaty. Thus our one advantage of the treaty vanishes into thin air. The reason for a proposal to limit naval expenditures is, therefore, quite manifest.

But there is another, and even more important, reason. Americans pride themselves on the fact that their standard of living is higher than that of most other countries. We naturally consider this a great advantage. But, if budgetary limitations come into being, our higher standard will serve to greatly decrease, if not cut in half, our naval strength.

To begin with, it costs more to build ships in this country than in others. This results from two facts: First, our labor engaged in ship construction receives much higher wages; and second, our sailors demand a higher standard of living on their ships; larger and better quarters, steam heat, electric fans, &c. These facts apply equally to merchant and naval ships. There is little likelihood that these facts will change—nor would Americans wish them to.

Next, we must give our sailors higher pay than in other navies. This is because they are accustomed to a higher standard of living and it costs more to live in our country than in other lands. Their food is more costly than the rice diet which keeps the Japanese sailors in complete health and contentment. We give them substantially higher pay when transferred to the reserve after long service.

And finally, in our naval expenditures it is highly probable that greater attention must be given to political considerations than in a monarchy such as Japan. For example, it is quite evident that the brunt of naval reductions always falls upon the fleet, and never upon the shore establishment, though we are told that the latter exist only for the former. This observation is offered not in a spirit of criticism, but as a fact to which consideration must, and doubtless has, been given.

It is not difficult to conclude that parity of naval budgets would fail to give us parity of navies. It is certain that the budgetary system of limitation has its pitfalls for us. Possibly other nations might concede us a limit somewhat above parity with Great Britain in consideration of our higher standard of living and our necessity to catch up in naval construction during the next six years. But we very much doubt that such concession, if made at all, would be sufficient to allow us even to approach actual parity in navies. Our Government has taken the only possible attitude on this question: a positive refusal to entertain the British proposal.

As to the idea that this refusal is starting a new competition in naval armaments by increasing the quality of tonnage, it will be time enough for Lord Cecil to talk about this when the United States has begun to approach the quantity of tonnage permitted by the London treaty. We have been left so far behind in this competition that it will take us six, if not ten, years to catch up. So until then it is hardly likely that we will try to start other forms of naval competition, which other navies—not confronted with large building programs—could begin now.

But is not this idea of a competition of quality rather far-fetched? Certainly each navy is building now the very best ships it can. The actual war value of a ship is today pretty well fixed by its tonnage. I very much doubt that, if a contractor were told that he could have unlimited money, he could build a ship of 10 per cent more war value than those being constructed today. Certainly no government in these hard times has money to squander for such a slight advantage. If there is one—it is not ours.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE LAST RUNNER.

The last runner straggled in,
Dusty and spent and pale,
Lacking the strength to win,
But brave enough to fail,
Doomed at the crack of the gun
To lose beyond shadow of doubt,
But plucky enough to run
The wearisome long mile out.

Early he fell behind,
Early he knew the worst,
Long was the hopeless grind,
Followed fatigue and thirst.
Better by far were they
Who carried the swifter pace,
"Outclassed," let the jeerers say,
Still he would finish the race.

Men laughed as he crossed the line,
Long after the race was done,
Who had cheered for the courage fine
By which was the victory won.
But I thought as he straggled in,
Here's pluck of a sterner cast!
'Tis an easier thing to win
Than to come to the finish last.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

MY DEAR LOUISE: This morning's paper tells about a ship helpless in the middle of the Atlantic because something happened to its rudder. It must wait for a tow, though it has power enough of its own, for a ship without a rudder never knows where it is going.

There's an idea for you to chew your cud over. Sails or engines furnish power to drive the ship, but they are worse than useless when the rudder is gone. Without that small piece of metal the greatest of ships must wallow helplessly at the mercy of the waves—or run amuck if she tries to get anywhere.

What have you to do with helpless ships?

Well, that's the fix you'll be in, young fellow, if you try to navigate without a rudder.

In your case, and in everybody's case, the rudder is mental equipment—the faiths and convictions and principles necessary to guide you when the sea of life is rough and storms threaten.

The most unhappy people I know are the poor distraught creatures who have nothing to guide them in time of trouble.

They drift through life without anxiety while the skies are bright—never getting anywhere, of course, but content as they are—and then the clouds appear and they begin to run around in circles, frenzied with doubt and despair.

It's too late to fix the rudder when a storm comes.

And it's too late to develop standards and beliefs when you are face to face with a crisis.

The world is full of people, much older than you are, who aren't quite sure what they believe. Their standards of right are hazy. Their opinions haven't jelled. They don't know how they would behave in an emergency because they have no solid convictions. They are the kind of people who say: "I guess maybe this way is right, but on the other hand——"

Rudderless people. Without a thing to guide them through a squall.

Don't let yourself get into that predicament, my dear. Get a sheet of paper and a pencil and discover the state of your steering apparatus. Write down the list of your beliefs and standards—if any. Be honest with yourself and discover whether you have any convictions at all—any faiths and ethical rules so steel-hard that they will support you and keep you steadfast and calm of spirit though all your world is wrecked by storm.

You need that kind of equipment; and the sooner you get it and become accustomed to it, the safer you will be when the sea gets rough.

I've given you a lot of rudder material in times past, but after all you're the only one who can build the thing to fit your needs. If you haven't built it yet, better get at it. Love, DAD.

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

How Minnesota Stands.

Charles B. Cheney, in Minneapolis Journal.

Republicans have not much to crow about in the returns of the recent election, either in Minnesota or anywhere else. Yet the fact remains that nine Republican congressmen were up for reelection in Minnesota and that all nine were reelected. The one Farmer-Labor congressman was reelected too, but that was expected.

The national administration got no jolt from the voters of Minnesota. Senator Schall's close call was in no sense a Hoover rebuke. Quite the contrary. Much of the vote cast against Schall was by Hoover Republicans who did not regard the senator as a Republican at all, and who disliked his constant blocking of the administration efforts.

Prohibition played a greater part in the House elections in Minnesota than other issues, and the wets made some gains in votes. Three wet congressmen, Harold Knutson, Melvin J. Maas and W. A. Pittenger, won by big majorities. Dr. L. A. Fritsche made a good run in the Second against Frank Clague, though his vote was to a large extent a personal tribute. Erling Swenson, on that issue, nearly captured the Tenth District.

On the other hand Frank Hopkins was routed in his attempt to carry the Seventh on the issue of a return to legalized liquor selling, and in the Third District the wet candidate stood third in the vote. Silas M. Bryan did not make much headway on that issue in the Fifth.

For "making haste slowly," Uncle Sam not only takes the cake, but likewise all the cookies, and swipes the recipe book of the bakery. Nearly a year has passed since Treasury and Postoffice officials selected the present courthouse property in Jackson as site for the new Government building. Since that time the county has constructed a new courthouse at a cost of nearly a million dollars and has it almost in readiness for occupancy. Uncle Sam's new building is yet to be erected. Insofar as known, officials at Washington have not even adopted plans and specifications for the structure.

Kansas Just Wonders.

Topeka Capital.

Purchase of anywhere from 10 to 20 million bushels of wheat without forewarning by the Grain Stabilization Corporation with approval of the Federal Farm Board was a totally unexpected reversal of policy which startled the world. After all the pronouncements by the board and its chairman that attempts to stabilize prices by going into the market were futile, the corporation unannounced goes into the market in a big way. The only conclusion from this about-face is that the stabilization corporation will be a standing factor in the grain market, going in or keeping out according to its judgment of conditions. Farm organizations as well as cooperators will be braced by this action.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Retrospection of "Ex-Soak" Brings Forth Conclusion That Everybody's in the Same Boat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am one who in his day has felt the convivial joys of pre-Volstead wetness but who is now reasonably well reconciled to a dry existence. I will have to confess, however, that memories of the old times are now and then productive of a passing regret.

Even the stale but enticing aroma of the empty kegs with which the thrifty and artful neighborhood booze-dispenser used to decorate the sidewalk in front of his beer store momentarily fills my brain with a hankering for the uplift of foamy flagon and the brass rail.

And, then again, I sometimes dreamily recall such downtown oases as Hancock's, Godfrey's, Gerstenberg's, and Reuter's, Shoomaker's, Mullaney's and Tip Hoy's, in a flood of lawful liquor which was at the same time intoxicating in fact.

It sometimes makes me sad to reflect that all this is but the dream of conditions that will never return.

Yet in the ballyhoo of Literary Digest polls and scrambled elections I suppose there are many modernized wets who really believe that the status quo ante Volstead will be restored in a not very distant future.

In consideration of the desolate mournings after and fierce hangovers of the days of strong drink, perhaps it is just as well that the wets should be disappointed. And, even though they miss their chief joy in life for want of booze, they will still be in a not worse fix than the generality of their fellow mortals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Former Presidential Candidate Smith declared that the Republicans will be "compelled by circumstances to dodge" the prohibition issue. But the circumstances that compel the Republican party to dodge will force Democracy to do likewise. My prophesy is, no matter who the 1932 candidates may be, that so far as platform declarations are concerned, the Donkey and the Elephant will go pussyfooting around the ring to the crack of Ringmaster Dryvote's whip in the most diverting political circus this country has ever seen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What kind of a plan is the League of Nations disarmament budget plan, anyhow? I am not much on international-istics and would like to find out. I have seen it stated in the newspapers that the "navy budget plan" has been adopted at Geneva, although Japan, France and the United States want the "direct" disarmament plan. The direct disarmament plan sounds good to me, and the sooner the better. But if this budget disarmament plan means that other nations are to tell us that we can't spend money to build up our Navy to treaty strength, I don't like it.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A few years ago I attended one of the Shakespearean plays at the Washington Auditorium. My tickets called for seats in the twentieth row. As far as being able to hear distinctly the seats might just as well have been on Pennsylvania avenue.

BLACK ARTERIES.

To the Romans a road was a means to an end, says the Providence Bulletin. Straight as a string, built with uncompromising zeal over all obstacles; streams, marshes, mountains, other men's property, and the numerous other irregularities which lie in the path of material logic, your Roman road was designed to "get there."

The superhighways which our latter day road builders are advocating have no such simple duty. They are to be the nourishing arteries of our entire economic system, employing thousands of laborers in their construction and upkeep, stimulating hundreds of wayside industries.

There is something fantastic in the vision of America rolling joyously along the broad highways from Maine to California, bypassing the cities, hurdling the mountains, skimming the plains, consuming sandwiches and gasoline, and keeping business humming by wear and tear on apparatus.

They say—or they used to—that a hundred persons are involved in the natural life of one needle from its birth in the mine to its interment in a crack of the sewing room floor. Think of the millions involved in the eternal life of these superhighways. The conception becomes staggering under the added thought of the five-day week releasing carloads of customers over the week-end. People spend twice as much on holidays as they do on workdays.

We confess that we lack the prophetic vision to see how successfully this enthusiastic migration would solve the difficulties that confront us. But of all the panaceas which the troubled times have called forth this one of black arteries certainly makes the liveliest imaginative appeal. "We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way." Isn't such a bad slogan for a light-hearted people—at least it wouldn't be if they didn't have to come back.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

POTOMAC FIREMEN INSTALL OFFICERS

Committees for Year Named; Alexandria Kiwanians Mark Ladies' Night.

LIQUOR PENALTY UPHELD

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

The Potomac Fire Company, officially known as Engine Company No. 2 of the Alexandria Fire Department, has installed the following officers, to serve for the year ending Armistice Day, November 11, 1931: T. W. McHugh, president; R. A. Roseberry, secretary; Samuel B. DeVaughan, treasurer; A. V. Brown, captain; J. P. Butler, truck lieutenant; J. L. Gordon, engine lieutenant; L. P. Stroble, squad lieutenant; L. S. Evans, engine sergeant, and J. E. Cobean, squad sergeant. S. J. Hammersley, vice president; T. A. Wilkinson, recorder, and R. J. Poss, truck sergeant, will be installed later.

The records of the company show the election in the last two months of 18 new members, as follows: W. T. Cunningham, S. L. Dameron, R. E. Edmonson, J. R. Elliott, Charles Foote, M. L. Jaeger, A. G. Scott, E. D. Warder, Arthur Herbert, F. F. Patterson and C. C. Lamond, the last named three being granted honorary memberships in October; Frank Bryan, A. L. Evans, W. H. Foote, C. E. Lucas, M. B. Miller, E. C. Perkins and W. T. Sheffield. The company now has a membership of 109, of whom 52 are active, 25 inactive and 32 honorary.

The rescue squad has volunteered to have a man on duty at the engine house every night, the men taking this duty in turn. The president has appointed a special committee, consisting of J. P. Butler, chairman; John Gary, jr., and E. D. Warder, to investigate ways and means of organizing another first aid class as soon as possible. These additional committees also have been named:

Executive and grievance—T. W. McHugh, chairman; S. J. Hammersley, sr., R. A. Roseberry, T. A. Wilkinson and Samuel B. DeVaughan.

Ways and means—S. B. DeVaughan, chairman; A. V. Brown and L. P. Strobel.

Banquet and entertainment—W. H. Vansycle, chairman; J. E. Cobean and J. W. Clore.

House and property—J. P. Butler, chairman; J. W. Gladden and R. G. Craver.

The next meeting of the company will be held in the engine house December 10 at 8 p. m.

The annual ladies' night entertainment of the Kiwanis Club was given Thursday in the George Mason Hotel, the principal feature being a program by Jules Brazil, of the National Broadcasting Co. Approximately 175 guests were present. Robert G. Carter, president of the club, presided. Mr. Brazil was introduced by J. Randall Caton, jr. The invocation was made by the Rev. E. R. Spencer, of Trinity Methodist Church.

Special guests introduced by President Carter were Mrs. Mary Troth, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club; the Rev. Mr. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carlin, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Hill, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hutchinson, of Manassas; City Manager and Mrs. Wallace Lawrence, Michael T. Dwyer, Fred C. Goodnow, of the Rotary Club; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hellmuth and Mrs. Robert G. Carter, wife of the club's president, who was introduced by Charles B. Swan.

Policeman Allie Jones has been suspended for 30 days by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, for "unlawfully killing a dog," according to Mr. Lawrence. The dog was the property of William C. Snow, of 17 West Walnut street.

According to the report of the affair, a neighbor complained of the dog, a valuable animal. Policeman Jones was sent to make an investigation. He is said to have been bitten on the hand, whereupon he took the dog to the city dump and shot it.

Richard C. Burnett, recently convicted in Police Court of violating the prohibition law and who appealed to the Corporation Court, again was convicted yesterday. However, while the sentence imposed at the first trial was a fine of $10 and a jail sentence of 90 days, the jury yesterday increased the fine to $100 and confirmed the three-month jail term.

Burnett denied ownership of the liquor in question and a woman is said to have stated it was her property. Another appeal has been noted.

Evelyn Titus Winner Of Charity Debate Cup

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Nov. 21.—Lincoln High School, with Evelyn Titus as speaker, won the Wilbur C. Hall debating cup in the Loudoun County literary finals held at the Lincoln High School last night. The second prize went to Claudius Phillips, of the Ashburn High School. The debating cup last year was won permanently by the Lincoln High School, and the contest this year was for a new cup offered by Mr. Hall.

Other winners last night were Lucille Reynolds, Arcola; Walter Bell, Leesburg; Betty Orr, Leesburg; Anna McNealy, Ryan; Louise Schneider, McGraws' Ridge; Corinne Carson, Pleasant Valley; Louise Cornell, Purcellville; Daphne Smallwood, Leesburg High School; Dorothy Meyers, Leesburg, and Gladys Willingham, Round Hill. H. P. White, of the Lincoln High School, presided. County finals will be completed tonight at Leesburg High School.

Police Aid Asked To Halt Wedding

Note From 17-Year-Old Girl Says She Will Marry Sailor in Boston.

"When I return I'll be Mrs. Joe Baumgartner."

According to police this note was left by Miss Helen Beard, 17 years old, of Takoma Park, Md., at her home early yesterday morning. Further contents of the note revealed, police say, that Miss Beard planned to travel to Boston, Mass., by bus.

Upon arrival there, the note said, she plans to marry Joe Baumgartner, who she declared is a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Marblehead, stationed in the Boston Navy Yard. Details of how the romance began were not disclosed by the note.

Miss Beard was reported "missing" to Capital police by Bert M. Drott, also of Takoma Park, who is a brother-in-law of the girl. Police notified cities along the route to Boston to be on the lookout for her.

summary of views which already had been presented.

"The constitution, or federation, or whatever form the future Indian government may take," he said, "must meet two fundamental requirements—it must work, and it must evolve. You are not in a position to create a static constitution. As it evolves, Indian opinion and Indian experience must be more than an initiating power. But I give you this word of comfort—the case you have presented has not fallen upon deaf ears."

Then Outlines Program.

Then he outlined these tasks which remain before the conference's committees:

(1) To determine the nature of the component units which are to be fitted into a scheme of federation.

(2) The nature of the central coordinating structure.

(3) Relations of the central structure to the provinces.

(4) Relations of the central structure to the Indian states.

(5) Provisions to secure the willing cooperation of the minorities.

(6) The subjects with which the central structure will deal and, in general, its powers, functions and responsibilities.

A federal relations committee, charged with determining these six issues and with evolving some sort of federal constitution for India, consists of 32 members, representatives of all the interests concerned.

Voiced Their Views Freely.

It probably will be weeks before the Indians are able to voice their views again, as they have done in this plenary session just ended. Picturesque Eastern potentates have declared that no power on earth could sever their ties with their British king and then, within a hundred feet of the throne where King George sits in state, they have declared themselves republicans.

The despairing cry of India's "untouchables" has been raised. Indian womanhood has spoken, and, with a unanimity which has surprised and largely gratified the British delegation, India's appeal has been for a Federal government. Hitherto, the princes have opposed such a development and Premier MacDonald has said their change of front cleared away the first great problem of this conference.

Just before he spoke today, as the last of the thirty-two speakers at the Plenary session, the Aga Khan, head of India's Moslems, summed up the case for his country and declared the one point of unanimity, among all creeds and castes, was on the plea for a full measure of self-government.

Held Victory For Gandhi.

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The united demands for self-government presented by Indian delegates to the round-table conference in London, despite differences of creed and castes, represents "a complete victory for Mahatma Gandhi," Dr. Haridas Muzumdar, semi-official spokesman for the Indian Congress party, said here today.

"Delegates to the conference," he declared "were hand-picked by the British Government but we of the Congress party are delighted that those moderates have clung to India's real demand—immediate attainment of the substance of independence.

"Nevertheless we can not help but feel that they are traitors to India, since they have gone to England to plead for dominion status while Gandhi remains in prison. It is not for England to grant dominion status We shall wrest our freedom from England by the might of our soul-force, the moment we are fit for it."

Compromise Sum Paid In Action for $50,000

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 21.—The suit of Benjamin A. McDowell, of Luke, this county, against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. for $50,000 damages was compromised late yesterday after it had gone to trial. It is understood the plaintiff is to receive $17,500 and the railroad company will assume the costs of the plaintiff's witnesses. A number of medical and surgical experts were brought from Baltimore.

McDowell, a millwright, employed by the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co., while at work in the plant, was struck by a rock hurled from the rail tracks by a blast opposite the plant. He alleged permanent injuries.

HEART VERY QUICK TO ADJUST BEATS

Persons With High Blood Pressure Should Not Worry, Professor Says.

COMPENSATES FOR LEAK

Cleveland, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The reputation of the human heart for being alert to meet emergencies is increased by discoveries of Dr. C. J. Wiggers, professor of physiology at Western Reserve University's medical school.

Contrary to current belief, the heart, if injured so a valve becomes leaky, compensates immediately for the leak, Prof. Wiggers has found. On the very next beat its pumping has more force.

Current belief is that the heart requires years to develop compensation for a lesion, by enlarging.

After watching the heart's behavior for years, Prof. Wiggers believes a person suffering from high blood pressure should not worry too much about it.

Like Pumping Station.

"The heart is analogous to a pumping station supplying a garden hose," he said. "If the opening at the nozzle of the hose is diminished, the pressure may be increased at the pumping station to keep up the flow of water.

"In a case of high blood pressure, the blood vessels the heart supplies have become reduced in size and the heart automatically increases its pressure in an effort to keep up a normal flow of blood."

Prof. Wiggers referred to present research the world over to find a drug or tissue extract that would successfully lower blood pressure.

Low Pressure Dangerous.

A lowered pressure, however, he said, diminishes the supply of blood to the heart, causing it to weaken and in some instances fail.

Hence, he said, it is fully as dangerous to diminish the pressure of the blood as to permit pressure to remain high.

A picture of the way the heart compensates is obtained by Prof. Wiggers through the use of an apparatus almost unique in this country.

It consists, roughly, of a manometer which can be inserted into the blood stream of an anesthetized animal and a tube which may cause injury to a heart valve.

Attached to the manometer is a mirror that reflects the motion of the heart beat onto a moving photographic film.

HOOVER OPPOSES DEBT LAW CHANGING

time a year ago. Meanwhile extraordinary expenditures are planned to speed up public building projects and thus help the idle.

Supported at Capitol.

This situation, together with the desire for a continuance of the 1 per cent tax reduction, stirred up the agitation for a suspension of the public debt program.

It was not the first time it had been heard, however. There are some members of Congress who all along have been against Secretary Mellon's program of rapid debt retirement. They have felt that the Mellon program was placing too great a burden on the present generation when in fairness the cost of the war should be spread out over many generations.

President Hoover's statement yesterday followed statements by administration leaders at the Capitol—Senators Watson, of Indiana; Smoot, of Utah, and Fess, of Ohio—that they were opposed to any change in the sinking fund law, and also to a continuance of the tax reduction.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, believes that the sinking fund law should be modified so as to release at least a part of the money that is scheduled to be applied to the public debt.

Andrew Jackson Was Jailed Two Months Without Charges Placed.

GAINS INSTANT RELEASE

Incarcerated in the Montgomery County Jail at Rockville since September 27, Andrew Jackson, Negro, of Derwood, Md., was released yesterday when he finally hired an attorney who discovered that no charge had ever been made against the man nor had commitment papers been issued.

After languishing in the jail for nearly two months, Jackson yesterday decided to find out what it was all about. He employed Miss Vivian V. Simpson to look after his interests. Miss Simpson went to find out what charge had been placed against her client. None had. Nor could officials find any commitment papers.

Going before Judge Robert B. Peter, sr., to get a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Jackson, Miss Simpson explained the situation. Judge Peter ordered the man brought before him and when the defense claims proved true, Jackson was immediately released.

Two prisoners escaped from the Rockville Jail early yesterday morning by smashing their cots and using portions of the iron to dig a hole through the 15-inch stone wall of the jail.

The prisoners were Windsor Butler, Negro, 20 years old, who had just been sentenced to four years in the house of correction, and Roy Jones, also colored, 22 years old, his cellmate, who had been sentenced to eighteen months in the house of correction.

After digging the hole in the wall, the prisoners reached the jail yard by using bedclothes for ropes and then dug footholds in the 25-foot wall surrounding the yard to make good their escape.

Butler, police say, now has three jail breaks to his credit.

Mrs. J. Kyle Gilbert Dies at Churchville

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 21.—Mrs. J. Kyle Gilbert, 77, died Wednesday at her home at Churchville. The funeral was held this morning at St. James Methodist Church, Churchville, with the Rev. Dr. Harry M. Canter, of Staunton, presiding elder of Rockingham District, in charge, assisted by the Rev. B. F. Wright. Burial was in Green Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Gilbert was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones, of Highland County. She is survived by two sons, William C., of Churchville, and Harry J., of New York City; two daughters, Miss Blanche, at home, and Miss Alice Gilbert, of Waynesboro; a brother, B. W. Jones, of Churchville, and a sister, Mrs. R. S. Ralston, of Westfield, Ill.

SUBMARINES MADE OF "AUTOMOBILES"

Jellicoe Tells How Schwab Supplied the British Despite Ruling.

ASSEMBLED IN CANADA

Belfast, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Lord Jellicoe has just told a story of how Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Co., helped the British government get submarines during the World War—although at that time American manufacturers were forbidden to build submarines for belligerents.

Lord Jellicoe said Schwab manufactured the submarine in parts in the United States and shipped them to Canada labeled "automobile parts." Then they were assembled and sent to England.

Schwab had come over in connection with munitions which his company were manufacturing for the British war office.

Asked For Interview.

Lord Jellicoe received a message from him asking for an interview, which was granted. Schwab explained that he desired to make an immediate trip to London to see Lord Kitchener in connection with war requirements.

"I said to him," Lord Jellicoe related, "why not see Lord Fisher about things for the navy."

"What do you want?" Schwab inquired.

"Submarines and as many as you can make," Lord Jellicoe replied. "How long will it take you to fulfill such an order?"

"I will guarantee to do the job in five months."

Sent to Lord Fisher.

"Well," said Lord Jellicoe, "you go to Lord Fisher and tell him what you are capable of doing and ask him for instructions."

Schwab went to Lord Fisher and Lord Fisher gave him the necessary orders. When he went back to the United States he was met with the news that he would not be allowed to build submarines for one of the powers at war.

Not to be outdone, however, he bought Vickers shipyard at Montreal, manufactured parts of submarines in the United States, sent them to Canada as motorcars, had them assembled at the Montreal works and delivered the submarines in five months.

NEWS FROM NEARBY STATES

BALLSTON WILL GET DELIVERY OF MAILS

House-to-House Service to Start on February 2, Says Mrs. White.

GAIN IN RECEIPTS CITED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Beginning February 2, 1931, house-to-house mail delivery will go out of the Ballston Postoffice twice a day throughout the entire village, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mrs. Grace White, postmaster.

Mrs. White stated that the official notice which has come from the Postoffice Department provides that mail will be delivered to all homes where the houses are properly numbered, streets named and a suitable box has been provided.

The action taken by the department giving Ballston free delivery is based upon the fact that the Ballston postoffice, in existence for more than 27 years, has made rapid strides during the past five years. The records show that receipts of the office have grown from $3,000 to $7,000 a year during that time.

During the past year Mrs. White has erected a modern building at a cost of $7,000, which has been leased by the Postoffice Department for a term of ten years.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier announced yesterday that he is in receipt of a letter from Capt. E. N. Chisholm, jr., engineer for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, to the effect that the coordinating committee of the commission at its meeting held on Tuesday took under consideration the question of improvements to the south approach to the Key Bridge. He stated that the letter further set forth that the matter will be again discussed at a meeting of the committee to be held Tuesday, December 3, to which he has been invited.

County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, announces that the public schools will close Wednesday afternoon and remain closed until the following Monday morning for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Clarendon Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, will hold a turkey shoot at Ruff's Field in the rear of Fort Myer today. Shooting will start at 12:30 o'clock.

Arrangements for the laying of the corner stone of the Arlington Presbyterian Church on the afternoon of November 30, at 3:30 o'clock, have been completed, it was announced last night.

The corner stone will be laid by Freeland F. Chew, master of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M. In laying the stone he will use the gavel which was used by George Washington when he laid the corner stone of the United States Capitol.

The gavel, the property of Potomac Lodge, No. 5, of the District of Columbia, will be conveyed to the church by the special committee composed of Walter K. Handy and William F. Waddy, past masters of the lodge. The gavel at the proper time will be handed to Mr. Chew.

Having completed the resurfacing of Wilson boulevard at the intersection of Clarendon avenue and extending as far north as Taylor avenue and along Washington avenue to Virginia avenue, grades are now being established along Washington avenue to Hatfield for the grading and gravel surfacing of that section. The work is being done by the Northern Virginia Construction Co.

Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., announces it will hold ladies' night Tuesday night in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon.

There will be a musical program, in which Fred East, one of Washington's leading radio artists, will be featured.

Rapidly completing its work of equalizing the tax assessments in Arlington County, the board of tax equalization will hold another public hearing Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the courthouse, in the board of supervisors' rooms.

Charged with reckless driving, E. H. Campbell forfeited $15 in police court yesterday.

The Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department will hold its annual turkey shoot this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Tripp's Quarry on the Lee highway. Participants have been requested to bring 12-gauge shotguns or smaller.

Services tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at St. George's Episcopal Church will be conducted by the rector, the Rev. Henry J. Miller. His subject will be "Duty or Privilege."

Tuesday night the Margaret Hester Circle of the church will hold a luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. Chester Brown, Ashton Heights.

Morning and evening services at the Clarendon Methodist Church tomorrow will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. John H. Pearson. His subject at the morning service will be "The Good Will of God." In the evening he will preach on "Peter by the Light of Three Fires."

The vestry of Grace Episcopal Church, of Thrifton Village, met last night at the home of H. C. Roberts, Cedar street, and laid plans for the every-member canvass which will take place on Sunday, November 30.

The Ladies' Guild of Grace Episcopal Church held its monthly meeting last night at the home of Mrs. Charles Harris. The missionary session was led by Mrs. Harold M. Brown.

Funeral in Staunton For Dr. I. H. Trimble

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 21.—Funeral services were held here this afternoon for Dr. Isaac H Trimble, 81, widely known physician, who died early yesterday morning. He suffered a stroke of paralysis Sunday night. The Rev. R. L. St. Clair, of the Second Presbyterian Church, conducted the funeral. Burial was in Thornrose Cemetery.

Dr. Trimble practiced his profession for 53 years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Martha C Trimble, and a daughter, Miss Maude Trimble.

World War Veteran Dies.

Romney, W. Va., Nov. 21 (Special).—Robert A. McBride, 41, World War veteran, died at his father's home on Frankfort road. He formerly lived at Three Churches, this county. In addition to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McBride, he is survived by his widow and three brothers. He enlisted in the United States Army in 1918, and served throughout the war. Burial was made from Three Churches yesterday.

Mrs. Oliver Dies Of Short Illness

Lifelong Fairfax Resident Succumbs in Capital Hospital.

Mrs. Daisy Madelyne Oliver, 42 years old, died yesterday morning in Emergency Hospital after a short illness. Mrs. Oliver was a lifelong resident of Fairfax, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Watkins. She was married to Lewis B. B. Oliver, son of former State Senator Walter Transil Oliver, in 1914.

Two children, Jane, 13, and Betsy, 5, and the husband survive. She is also survived by her father and mother and two brothers, Harry Watkins, of Fairfax, and Frank Watkins, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held Sunday in Fairfax with burial in the family lot in the Fairfax Cemetery.

'RACKET' SUSPECTS FACE NEW CHARGES

Disorderly Conduct Counts Laid When First Report Is Not Supported.

FOUR ARE FREE ON BOND

The trial of four Mount Rainier, Md., men on charges of disorderly conduct was postponed last night to next Friday on the plea of J. Wilson Ryon, their counsel, that he had to have time to work on the case. This was the case which at first gave rise to reports of "racketeering," though later investigation failed to show the basis for the report. The men are Fred Finnegan, Frank Bowman, Grafton Wiler and Charles Sword, all of Mount Rainier.

Frank Disney, proprietor of a poolroom in the Maryland town, claims that the men came to his place of business and that he put them out. Later he found that the ignition on his car had been put out of commission. He also says that several other men, customers of a rival poolroom, attacked him and beat him slightly.

The quartet will also face charges of tampering with an automobile in Police Court next Wednesday on warrants sworn to by Disney. Bond for Sword, Wiler and Bowman was set at $500, while Finnegan, on Disney's statement that he was the ringleader, was forced to put up bond of $1,000. Sword surrendered to Eugene Plumer, chief of police of the town, last night, when he heard that warrants were out for him. He denied being a "racketeer" and said that he was not guilty of the other charges Disney made.

Depression Aids Sale of Apples

Growers' Best Season Seen Through Street Selling by Unemployed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 21.—Apple growers in the Hancock and adjacent fruit belts appear to be the principal beneficiaries of the unemployment and business depression. Harried by drought, which cut in half what appeared in the early summer to be a bumper crop, then by the English embargo and finally the business depression, the big growers were prepared for the worst.

Then somebody in New York introduced the "buy an apple" campaign and it soon spread to other cities, where the unemployed sold thousands of bushels of apples.

Suddenly the demand for apples in this section increased almost beyond the fondest expectations of growers. On the heels of this England lifted its embargo and the demand of foreign countries, combined with the domestic demand, has given growers here a hope that instead of being their worst year in many decades it may be their best.

Growers believe advertising that apples have been given by the unemployed street corner salesmen, will teach millions who never ate apples before to do so in years to come.

Parents and Teachers End Maryland Session

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 21.—The fifteenth annual State convention of the Maryland Parent-Teacher Association, in session here three days, adjourned last night. Mrs. Margaret Wells Wood, of the American Social Hygiene Association of New York; Mrs. Frederick M. Hosmer, vice president of the National Association; Mrs. Harry E. Parkhurst, editor of the Maryland Parent-Teacher; Dr. Frances Bamburger, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and Dr. Kingman Handy, Baltimore, president of the State association, were the principal speakers.

Motion pictures, censorship, and new legislation in the interest of child hygiene and education were discussed at the business session. Next year's convention will be held in Baltimore, November 18, 19 and 20.

Staunton Banks to Pay Christmas Savings Soon

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 21.—Staunton banks having Christmas savings club members will do what they can in the way of hastening in relieving "hard times" by mailing out checks earlier than usual.

In the neighborhood of $80,000 will be distributed in this city to some 2,000 club members. The first of four banks here, conducting clubs, will mail its checks to members on November 26, and the last will have "paid off" its patrons by December 5.

Hunt Club's Head Stricken in Chase

C. C. Fernsell, Ohio Steel Man, Found Dead in Virginia Wood.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 21.—Stricken with a heart attack soon after starting on a fox chase, Charles C. Fernsell, of Ohio and Virginia, prominent attorney and steel man and president of the Farmington Hunt Club, was found lifeless in the woods on the Goodman farm, 8 miles west of Charlottesville.

Mr. Fernsell went to the hunting field with other members of Farmington Hunt. The other huntsmen upon returning wondered at the absence of their companion. Julian Morris and Norris Watson began a search which disclosed the body lying in the thicket, with the faithful horse standing nearby.

Mr. Fernsell, son of C. Conrad Fernsell, of Strasburg, Ohio, was 48 years old. For many years he practiced law in Cleveland. Coming to Albemarle four years ago, he purchased a farm near Decca. He was a noted fox-hunter and had followed the hounds in England and at Pinehurst. His widow and one son, Conrad, 12, survive.

Alleged I'm Alone Owner Sentenced

Dan Hogan Is Convicted With Three Others as Smuggler.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Four men were convicted in Federal court here today of conspiracy in connection with a charge that they smuggled whisky into Virginia from off the Atlantic Coast last June and July. Prison sentences and fines aggregating $15,000 were imposed.

Dan Hogan was fined $5,000 and sentenced to a year and nine months in the Atlanta Penitentiary. Hogan's name was linked with the sinking by Coast Guardsmen of the ship I'm Alone in the Gulf of Mexico in 1929 as alleged owner of the vessel.

John M. Roach and Al Gordon also received prison sentences and fines and Cecil Baker was sentenced to six months. John A. Lyons pleaded guilty and was sent to prison for a year and a day. Ray Parks was acquitted.

Man's Arrest Believed To Have Foiled Theft

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Officers here today claimed their arrest of Bryan Clark, on a charge of stealing clothing from a boarding house here, nipped a plot to rob a business place near Winchester, Va., of $1,000.

Clark, in confessing the theft of the clothing, told officers, they said, that he and Preston Mandigan, a fugitive from justice, planned to rob the Virginia place Friday morning. Local officers communicated with Winchester authorities and Mandigan and his wife were arrested Friday. Mrs. Mandigan was also wanted with her husband for the alleged burglary of the home of W. S. Ruble, farmer near here. The proprietress of the rooming house where Clark stole the clothing, said Clark promised her $25 if she would support his intended alibi, if caught, that he was in her home at the time of the proposed robbery.

FIRST AID RENDERED CHILD, 6, HIT BY CAR

Internal Injuries Believed Received; Bladensburg Accident Scene.

RESCUE SQUAD CALLED

Possible internal injuries were received yesterday by Elizabeth Mason, 6 years old, of Bladensburg, Md., when she was struck by an automobile while crossing the street. The car was driven by James Reeds, of Mount Rainier, Md. He was not held.

The injured child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mason, of Bladensburg. In addition to the possibly serious injuries, she received cuts and bruises of the head and knee. The Bladensburg rescue squad rendered first aid until the arrival of Dr. H. T. Willis, of Hyattsville.

Damages of $5,000 are asked in a suit filed yesterday in Prince Georges County Circuit Court against Michael Sullivan, sr., of Cheverly, Md. Edward Fay, of Edmonston, who instituted the action, alleges that Sullivan and his son, Michael Sullivan, jr., attacked him last summer.

Fay is represented by John S. White. According to the papers filed in the case, the Sullivans, father and son, came to Fay's house on August 25, and assaulted him with their fists. The son is named in the suit, but is not a defendant, as he is a minor.

Convicted of transporting and possessing five cases of liquor, Joseph Warren was fined $200 yesterday, in police court, which sat at Upper Marlboro. Warren was arrested on the Marlboro pike by County Policeman Harry Robinson.

Ann Bailey and Robert L. Jones forfeited $5 each on a charge of disorderly conduct when they failed to appear for trial in the same court.

War Department engineers have just finished a survey of the flood situation in Bladensburg and are attempting to work out plans for water control, members of the Greater Bladensburg District Citizens Association were told in a letter from Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough.

A committee wrote Senator Goldsborough, asking his help in efforts to relieve the town of periodic floods.

C. W. F. Frerie, chairman of the road committee, said that he had taken up with the State Roads Commission the necessity for erecting warning signs at a sharp turn near Bladensburg on River road. The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission has installed a fire plug at the corner of River and Tuxedo roads, Frerie also said.

Charged with assault and battery, the trial of Robert J. Ennis was postponed for two weeks in Police Court in Capitol Heights. Ennis, who was candidate for mayor in the last town election, is charged with attacking Wallace Rawlings, a member of the town council. A political dispute is said to be behind the quarrel.

William Hooper was held for the grand jury by the same court. The man, whose home is in Greater Capitol Heights, is alleged to have stolen a number of chickens from Mrs. Zelma King. Hooper's bond was set at $500 by Judge J. Chew Sheriff.

Appeal in Messer Case Due Monday

Virginia's Highest Tribunal to Hear Oral Petition in Messer Sentence.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 21.—Having denied his petition for a writ of error in the George Washington Messer murder case, the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia on Monday, sitting as a whole, will hear Charles Curry, of defense counsel, argue his petition orally.

Young Messer was tried last spring in the Bath County Circuit Court for the murder of Sheriff Charles A. Gum, of Bath County, on the night of December 7, 1929, at Rhododendron Lodge, 6 miles northeast of Warm Springs on the State highway from Staunton to Hot Springs.

Messer's father, G. W. Messer, sr., also lost his life in the roadside gun battle. Messr's defense was that he shot Sheriff Gum in an effort to save the life of his father. Evidence showed that Gum shot the older Messer to death, that Messer's son killed the sheriff, and that a deputy shot and wounded the Messer boy, who fully recovered. The State claimed, and the jury substantiated this claim in its verdict of 45 years' imprisonment for young Messer, that the two Messrs were aggressors in the gun battle and that they were "looking for trouble" when Gum endeavored to place them under arrest for fighting.

Mandamus Action Is Filed on Court

Special to The Washington Post.

Franklin, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Mandamus action was instituted here against Pendleton County Court yesterday by Counsel for Second National Bank, Cumberland, Md., assignee of the Farris Bridge Co., seeking to compel the court to pay three orders issued about five years ago for building bridges in the county.

The orders, with interest to date, aggregate $18,760.18. At the same time motions for judgment were filed against the members of the county court, who were then on the court, for the same amounts.

It is contended by defendant county officials that the bridge company, and later the bank, accepted the orders for payment when the orders were not properly indorsed by the sheriff of Pendleton County, and that the bridge company was aware that funds were not available to pay for the bridges when an oral contract was made.

Quarry Blast Throws Rock, Killing Worker

Special to The Washington Post.

Connellsville, Pa., Nov. 21.—Struck on the head with a 2-pound rock while he sat under a tree eating his lunch, Albert H. Younkin, 37, shovel operator in a quarry, was fatally injured yesterday. He died several hours later in the Connellsville Hospital. He left his machine ten minutes before the accident. A blast in another part of the quarry threw the stone 700 feet in the air. Lewis M. Younkin, Hagerstown, Md., is a brother.

First Army Winter Dance Is Brilliant

Hurleys Head the Line Receiving Guests; Many Dinners.

THE Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley headed the receiving line at the first of the series of Army dances last evening at the Willard. Also in the line were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles H. Bridges, who entertained a large company at dinner preceding the dance with Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley as their honor guests.

Mrs. Bridges is vice chairman of the dance series.

The dance last night, attended by many groups of Army officers stationed in Washington, proved one of the delightful parties of the season. Color and brilliance in the gowns of the women, featured the ball, which always is one of the anticipated events of the Army set. Many guests from out of town motored in for the ball and numerous dinners preceded the dancing.

The Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Frederick H. Payne were honor guests of Maj. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower at their large dinner party.

Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Foy had as their guests at dinner Col. Fitzmaurice Day, Military Attache of the British Embassy; Col. S. J. AN ADDED TOUCH for Thanksgiving

★ Look for the Red, White and Blue Package

TURKEY for Thanksgiving, of course! Or maybe goose, duck or chicken. Whatever it is, you can greatly increase the enjoyment of the meal without trouble or expense. Have MUELLER'S SPAGHETTI instead of potatoes.

Tempting Recipes at Little Cost

Even served plain it is a delicacy, but there are also many appetizing recipes—none of them expensive. Here is a very economical one:

SPAGHETTI
Au Gratin

1 pkg. MUELLER'S SPAGHETTI; 2 tbsps. butter; 2 tbsps. flour; 2 cups hot milk; 1 tsp. salt; ¼ tsp. pepper; 2 cups grated cheese; ½ cup bread crumbs. Parboil spaghetti 7 min. in 4 qts. boiling water with 1 tbsp. salt. Drain. Melt butter; add flour, milk, seasonings. Cook until thick. Put layer of spaghetti in greased baking dish, then layer of cheese, alternating with spaghetti on top. Pour sauce over, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter. Set dish in hot water. Bake 20 min. or until crumbs are brown.

But be sure to ask for MUELLER'S, when you order from your grocer. There isn't another spaghetti to compare with it. MUELLER'S cooks up lighter and "fluffier" than any other, for it is made from a special blend of farina, according to exclusive processes. It is so easy to digest that even children just out of infancy thrive on it.

Boil for 9 Minutes

—and you will avoid overcooking, though one or two minutes more may be allowed if you want extra tenderness. Your grocer has MUELLER'S or can get it for you.

A DESCRIPTION of the Navy-Maryland football game will be broadcast today by WRC, 2:15 p. m.; the Notre Dame-Northwestern game by WMAL, 2:45 p. m., and the Yale-Harvard game by WEAF, 1:45 p. m.

Deacon Aylesworth, NBC, always quick on the trigger, is first to offer the Salvation Army coast-to-coast facilities for the Army-Navy football game December 13.

There may not be a scent in it for him, but Al Jolson is getting ready to perform on the radio for a perfume company.

BROADCASTERS had better be careful what they say over the air from now on about Congress, as Representative Wallace White, jr., senator-elect from Maine, coauthor of the White-Dill radio law has one of the new-fangled machines which can record anything broadcast.

A warning against communism will be voiced in the National Radio Forum by Representative Fish, of New York (WMAL, 9:30 o'clock).

In the cities sales of midget sets have greatly exceeded those of all other models, Powel Crosley, jr., Cincinnati manufacturer, finds, but in the villages and rural districts the larger cabinet radios are still selling best.

IN his speech to the broadcasters at Cleveland Gen. Saltzman, chairman of the Radio Commission, said:

"I have heard of a few station owners who are thinking much more of the profits than the service they are obligated to render, and for that reason resort to excessive advertising. If I know the demands of the public I should say they are for less advertising and for more education and better quality programs."

A rare bird will be captured if they succeed in getting W. D. Terrell, chief supervisor of radio, to Station WMAL at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, as advertised. One of the two original radio supervisors in this country, and the oldest Government employe in point of service in radio, Mr. Terrell, like the man who works in the restaurant but doesn't eat there, has very deftly managed to escape the microphone.

Anyway, the tube business is good! Ernest Kauer, manufacturer of CeCo radio tubes, reports sales for the current quarter of $376,115 against $159,068 for the previous quarter.

THOSE who have visited Cuba, Mexico or other Latin-American countries, will find this atmosphere faithfully portrayed in a novelty, "The Peanut Vendor," to be performed by Lew White, organist, tonight (WRC—Lucky Strike Hour—10 o'clock). Mr. White brought the selection from Havana.

He will use original Cuban instruments, such as the Cuban gourd, Cuban wood blocks and Cuban castinets, in tonight's performance.

As a sequel to this, for the two pieces are very much alike, Mr. White, who apparently has gone Spanish, will feature Ravel's "Bolero" tomorrow night, at 10:30 o'clock over WJZ and network. He has arranged and adapted it for the organ.

"What comes next?" Ernest Schelling, conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in the children's concert broadcast last Saturday morning, questioning his audience about a piece of music he had explained to them.

"The coppers," one eager little boy shouted as he raised his hand.

Dare Interprets the MODE

Economy is the mode — Clever fingers can figure out some darling Christmas tree ornaments that can be made at home!

Paris, Nov. 21.

THIS year the smart mother and the clever woman will make more of her Christmas gifts than ever before. I want to tell you a little story. "What can we give you for Christmas, Dah-ray?" say my family, friends, maids, all of those dear people who labor under the glamorous delusion that a much traveled lady of middling-sufficient means has or can have anything she wants.

And I always answer: "Anything that you make yourself!" Thinking sadly of the 52 leaflets of delightful and feminine things to make that I figure out each year for thousands of other women to follow, and never have for myself other than the unbleached muslin patterns of them that are necessary to make up before the leaflets are written.

Thinking also of the prices the women of the whole world over command and get, for anything "handmade," from the lovely hand-made Mexican laces to the hand-spun linen handkerchiefs that I bought in Madrid—that haven't boiled out of their stiffness enough to use yet. ('Tis said that they last for hundreds of years—who can doubt it!)

And that's the end of the story. Doesn't that prove to you how acceptable are Christmas gifts that you make yourself? And with the proper instructions and just the littlest bit of practice, you can make the most delightful—and inexpensive things that represent many of dollars in market value.

* * * *

And here is the discovery of the year for the Dare department! I thought and thought for weeks, positively 'n' honestly, of what would be the most helpful help of the Christmas season for my deah publik, and this is what evolved: Christmas tree ornaments; Yes, honestly and actually, ornaments that you can make at home, ornaments that will rival anything you could buy in the stores, ornaments that you can safely pack away for the following year. And, in this year of economies never more rigidly practiced than since the last war, Christmas tree ornaments that cost almost nothing to make!

Start saving your, guess? Eggshells! And send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post right this minute for the leaflet telling you how to make a whole flock of different kinds of Christmas tree ornaments.

* * * *

Our Christmas Box.

We've already started our Christmas box, have you? You know, all good Dah-ray-ites start a Christmas box rather like the hope chest idea, weeks 'n' weeks before Christmas. It saves such endless rush and worry, and no Lovely Lady is every rushed, now, you know that.

Every day, oh, almost every day, you'll see a Christmas box suggestion here, a gift for some member of the family, or friend. And right this minute buy a small note book, and why not cut out the suggestions as you see them, and paste them right in it? Then in the same book, you see, you can have a page for each person you are going to remember, write down your ideas for his or her gift on his or her page, change your mind if you please and write something else, but keep that page for that person. Then you can write down how you want to wrap this gift and what you want to buy for this wrapping—the date it has to be mailed, and the date it finally is mailed.

There you are! Now watch for our Christmas box!

And tomorrow, again, we have the weekly Dare fashion letter. So look for it in the big Sunday Post.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. There is only one danger period—from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Planetary influences on this date are rather negative, and its events are likely to be humdrum. In the evening, however, there is a decided assurance of romance; very propitious for those "in love."

A child born on this November 22 promises to be ambitious, shrewd and far-sighted, and will have the confidence of its associates. These traits will be visible during youth and, given the proper environment, its ultimate success is assured.

No one can produce great things who is not thoroughly sincere with himself or herself. This explains, in very few words, why your life has not been the success which you and everyone else anticipated. You will not look yourself squarely in the face, and you attempt, at all times, to "pass the buck," or create alibis for your failures or errors. You attribute all your lack of success to the faults of others, or bemoan your bad luck. You never admit the sole authorship of your own mistakes.

You are exceptionally gifted. You have read a great deal and, assisted by a good memory, remember what you have read. You have valuable ideas, but are often too indifferent to put them to the test. You are a spasmodic worker, although it must be admitted that when you do settle down to it—altogether too infrequently—you can accomplish much in a short time. You lose much by trying to put things over, rather than by pushing them through.

You are a poor judge of character, and are thereby often "set down." You are a law to yourself and rarely, if ever, take or ask for advice. You fortunately do not air your troubles in the home, and within its walls you are seen at your best. The emotional side of your character is very strong, and you are not afraid or ashamed to show affection and love.

Successful people born November 22:
1—Robert C. LaSalle, French explorer.
2—James C. Nicoll, artist.
3—Maud Morgan, harpist.
4—Lazard Kahn, stove manufacturer.
5—Stephen Fiske, dramatic editor.
6—George Eliot, authoress.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

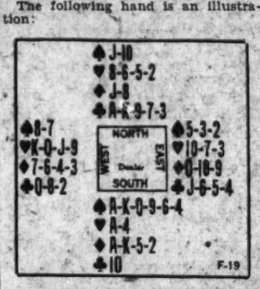
The play of trump declarations requires more skill than the play of No Trump hands in which the Declarer has to consider only the establishing of long suits and the making of high cards. Of course there are such interesting and intricate plays as holding up winning cards, developing hidden entries, and the various forms of finesse; that is all for the one purpose of winning trumpless tricks.

In the play of trump contracts there are three distinct varieties of hands, each requiring different handling; and the beginner is apt to make a mistake in failing to recognize the type he is playing.

The first variety are hands in which the Declarer draws all the adverse trumps and then plays the hand as a No Trump, he probably having one or two surplus trumps to stop the running of an adverse suit, which the Declarer delays taking out.

The next variety is the hand in trumps until he has ruffed certain of his losing cards—usually in the dummy as that is apt to be the long trump hand which should not be forced.

The following hand is an illustration:



With Spades trump and Hearts led, South should win, lead the Ace and King of Diamonds, then ruff in dummy; next lead the two high Clubs from dummy, South discarding a Heart on the second. This would be followed by a Heart ruff, and then a ruff of the last Diamond.

The third variety is the hand which is cross-ruffed, the trumps being made separately but never led.

Below is an example of the cross-ruff type of hand. See how you would bid and play it, and next Saturday I will explain the correct procedure.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS present eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address: Milton C. Work, care Washington Post.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me when to gather gladiolus bulbs, before or after frost? I have been told to pull them, tops and all, and hang them up by the leaves until spring. Is this the proper treatment? They are still in the ground. MRS. W. H. D.

Gladiolus bulbs should be left in the ground until the leaves are brown halfway to the roots. These bulbs keep on growing as long as the leaves are green, and, of course, the larger the bulbs the more flowers you may reasonably expect next spring. They should be removed from the ground before heavy frost. The tops should be removed and the bulbs stored in a cellar where the temperature remains at about 45 degrees. They will keep very nicely in any place where potatoes keep.

Please tell me whether the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf will make a desirable house plant.
MRS. RUSSELL H.

No, your plant is a funkia and quite unsuited to house use.

My begonia, only the common kind, which I am happy to say, blooms continuously and is always lovely, has leaves which persist in curling up and falling off. Can you tell me the reason and offer a remedy? MRS. M. L.

When a begonia drops its leaves it is always a case of too much or too little water, too much sun or too little fresh air. Change your method of watering it. Never permit water to collect about the crown of the plant, in the saucer or in the jardiniere. In a warm room a begonia usually requires water about three times a week. Keep the plant protected from sudden drafts and keep it in a place where there is plenty of fresh air.

I just received three dozen Easter lily bulbs, which I want to plant in the open. Please tell me the time to do this and the care they require between now and the time I plant them. MRS. E. V. V.

Of course, you can not plant the bulbs until early May. At present keep them in a cool, dry place in a box of sand. Any place where the temperature remains around 45 degrees will suit them.

Please tell me the name of the vine of which I am inclosing a leaf and its care. It grows all over our apartment house and of late has not been as thrifty as it used to be, though it has no dead branches.
MISS EMMA H. C.

Better incorporate some well-rotted manure with the soil in which the vine (ampelopsis veitchii) is growing.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NO, IT'S GOOD FOOD.

H. F. Writes:

1. Is it harmful for a young man to eat on an average of two to three eggs each day?

2. Can you suggest a fattening diet for a young man 5 feet 7 inches tall, weight 140 pounds? He wants to gain about 10 pounds.

REPLY.

1. Egg is a wholesome food, high in food value and vitamins.

2. Rest and regularity are more important than diet. In addition to a diet of plain, substantial food, let him eat a bowl of crackers and milk or sugared rice and milk at bedtime.

MANY CAUSES POSSIBLE.

Mrs. K. C. writes: I am a woman of 46 years, and at times my heart beats so fast and heavy that it seems to be pounding in my head.

REPLY.

More than one cause is to be considered. Among the possibilities are: Goiter, organic heart disease, excessive use of tobacco, nervousness.

SAFE AND CHEAP TREATMENT.

A reader writes: I have recently made a great discovery—namely, that when the nerves are upset from a few hours' strain from worry, and the famous headache is about to descend, I place my hands and wrists under the cold water faucet, and, presto! After a few minutes the nerves are as calm as a healthy babe's. Believe it or not, it works with me and it may help others, hence the contribution.

REPLY.

Your remedy is safe and cheap, at least.

Jean's Santa Claus

—By JULIE ANNE MOORE—

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS. SYNOPSIS.

Thinking it over, Jean decides to accept Mollie's invitation and go to New York. She leaves that afternoon. On the train she takes stock of her finances and discovers she has $1.22 left after buying her ticket. Oh well, she'll be with Mollie in a few hours. Arriving in New York she taxies to the store and Jean generously tips the driver the remainder of her dollar bill. One of the girls in the store informs Jean that Mollie had been married that morning and started for Missouri on a wedding trip.

Jean is accosted by an insulting stranger, but saved from an embarrassing situation by an attractive young man who introduces himself as Sandy Clause. He invites her to dinner, but she insists on paying for her own meal.

He has lost her suitcase, so after dinner she accepts his invitation to spend the night at the home of his friend, Marcia White. When they arrive, Marcia kisses Clause.

Sandy leaves. Marcia gives her some cynical advice on how to get on in the world, and two sinister men arrive. They are known as Fargeson and Slim Dixters. When she sees Fargeson embrace her hostess Jean instinctively feels that the atmosphere is dangerous and she slips out of the apartment, unperceived. In the hall she observes Clause, evidently returning, but he does not see her.

Now go on with the story.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

Jean had no idea how many weary miles she had walked, but when the clear, gray dawn found its way into that corner of Central Park adjacent to Columbus Circle, she rose from an indescribably hard bench, stretched her limbs vigorously, and yawned a pleasant greeting to the new day.

Abruptly she dropped to the bench again and with the aid of a small handkerchief, comb, powder puff and lipstick tried to make herself presentable. The result she viewed in the little compact mirror was pleasing. But she felt the need of a hot bath and fresh clothes.

"If a miracle doesn't happen pretty quick," she told herself, "I'll be sending for Phil long before Christmas morning." At the moment Phillip could have had her for the asking. She wondered vaguely why, when she had had the opportunity of marrying a perfectly acceptable young man, she had preferred to go adventuring. Hunger and weariness take the romance out of adventure.

At 7 o'clock Jean stood in Times Square and wondered if one's feet could really drop off. She was painfully tired and lack of food had brought on a feeling of great emptiness. Since yesterday morning, she reflected, she had had an egg sandwich and a cup of coffee.

All about her newsboys screamed at the top of their voices. Gradually she realized that their cries were identical:

"E-x-x-x-x-tra! * * * Bootleg King murdered * * *! Read all 'bout de * * *"

Thought Jean: "They can moider the whole bootleg royal family for all of me. What I'd like to know is, how many good jobs are listed in that paper?"

There was but one way to settle that point. With a little prayer she took the two pennies, her wordly capital, from her purse, dropped them into the open palm of a newsboy and took the paper he offered.

"Well," she mused, turning to the classified pages, "I've invested my fortune. May the market bear up under the strain."

GIRL WANTED—For packing room; must be strong and willing to work overtime when necessary. Quality Clothiers, W. 38th st. near 8th ave.

Because it sounded like the sort of a job that any girl could get, Jean marked it as target No. 1. There were countless ads for maids, cooks and housekeepers after that. Then:

STENOGRAPHER wanted, must know something about bookkeeping, not over 19, preferably new in the city, best of references required. Apply I. P. P. offices, Garner Building, Fifth Av.

"Well," said Jean to herself, "cut, dried and laid out for Jean Melba in every regard, but . . ." she shrugged her shoulders gently . . . "too good to be true. There'll be a thousand girls for that job and some of them real stenographers."

Nevertheless she marked this ad also, and continued down the column. But there was nothing else.

A policeman directed her to Thirty-eighth street, and she found the Quality Clothiers to be housed in a narrow, yellow brick structure between countless other narrow, yellow brick structures.

A sharp-featured, bald-headed man met her just inside the door. He said at once: "You answering the ad?"

Jean nodded, smiling hopefully.

"We got a girl two hours ago. What time you think we go to work around here?"

She got out as quickly as she could and shook herself as if to rid herself of the atmosphere of the place. "One narrow escape," she thought. "Think of working for a buzzard like that!"

Three policemen, a rubber-neck barker, and a newsboy contributed the total of information that finally brought her to the Garner Building on Fifth avenue.

The elevator operator let her out on the fifth floor. On the glass of every door along the corridor were the three small, gilt letters, "I. P. P." A door at the very end of the corridor drew her attention by the additional "Entrance."

She knocked cautiously. Almost instantly the door opened and a blonde young man asked politely: "Yes . . . ?"

Jean smiled timidly. "You advertised . . ."

"Come in, won't you? You say we advertised for what?"

"For a stenographer." She took the paper from under her arm, opened it and indicated the advertisement.

His puzzled expression told her that he was hearing of it for the first time. But even in the face of a second failure within the hour she was conscious of the sturdy physique and clean-cut features of the young man before.

"I hope there isn't a mistake," he said presently, "but . . . you see, I'm in charge of personnel here and . . . the truth is, we don't need a stenographer. Besides, I didn't put the ad in . . . I wonder . . ."

Jean said quickly, "It's quite all right. There must be a mistake but . . . I don't mind . . ."

"No, no. Don't go please. . . . There's just a possibility that the director ordered the ad. If you can wait just a minute, I'll call his apartment."

Jean dropped into a convenient chair and waited while he went into another room. Her heart was heavy. She simply had to have a job today . . . and money, or . . . or what? She wondered. As a last resort she could go back to Phil, beaten, and humiliated, and disillusioned . . . Oh, no! She knew in her heart that she would never do that. Somehow she would manage to hold on until Christmas. Phil would never know what she had been through. He would just come at her call . . . and take her back to Kelsey on Christmas Day.

Idly she turned the pages of the newspaper in which she had invested her wealth. The front page screamed the "Bootleg King Murdered" which had so excited the newsboys. She let her eyes wander casually through the startling headline:

GANGSTER KILLED IN
UPTOWN APARTMENT OF
PRETTY YOUNG ARTIST

The young man came back wearing an expression of deep concern. "I can't understand it," he told her quietly. "His man says he hasn't been to the apartment since early last evening."

Jean tucked the paper under her arm once more and rose to go.

The young man asked quickly: "Couldn't you come back later? He may be in at any time."

She nodded. "Yes, of course, but . . ."

The door, she saw, was opening slowly. She stepped to one side and waited.

She heard the young man behind her say suddenly: "Oh, here he is now." But it was a voice from a distance, for her whole being was focused upon the pale, drawn features of the tall figure in the doorway.

She drew back almost imperceptibly.

"Sandy——!" She hardly knew her own voice. "You're—you're ill!"

Sandy said quietly: "I was afraid you wouldn't come——" Then: "Miss Melba, Lionel—Mr. Gilman, Miss Melba."

Lionel Gilman said, "Miss Melba came to answer an ad. Not knowing anything about it, I had just tried to get you at your apartment."

"Yes," said Sandy hesitantly. "I was called out of town last evening. See that the ad doesn't run again, will you, Lionel? It's in every New York paper; or ought to be. By the way, Miss Melba isn't coming in as a stenographer. She will work with me on the miniature baby distribution."

Jean thought: "Miniature baby distribution? What in the name of heaven——?"

Lionel, equally confused, though for different reasons, nevertheless nodded acquiescence.

Sandy crossed the floor and opened a broad mahogany door. "Will you come in for a few minutes, Miss Melba?"

When he had closed the door behind them, Sandy gave Jean a chair and himself sat on a corner of his desk. Jean watched his worn, haggard face, and thought he had aged five years since the night before.

Presently he asked quietly: "What time did you leave Marcia's apartment last night, Miss Melba?"

"Why—I'm not sure. It couldn't have been more than two hours after you had gone," Jean told him. And after a moment, "I suppose you're wondering why I left—I—I'm afraid I don't know myself, except that—Oh, I wasn't easy there, that's all. I preferred to be out in the street."

Sandy seemed not to hear her. "Were you there," he asked, "when Fargeson called?"

She nodded reluctantly.

"Then . . . you were in the apartment when . . . when Fargeson was murdered . . ."

"What . . . ?" She got to her feet slowly and put a hand on his arm. "Fargeson was . . . murdered? . . . There, last night? . . . Oh, no . . ."

He reached for the paper she held under her arm and opened it on the desk. "Haven't you read that?"

With blurred eyes she reread the headline:

GANGSTER KILLED IN
UPTOWN APARTMENT OF
PRETTY YOUNG ARTIST

And then, what she had not read before:

"Big Bill Sampson Shot to Death While Visiting Marcia White."

Jean said uncertainly: "Big Bill Sampson . . ."

"Alias Fargeson, apparently," Sandy nodded. "But Fargeson or Sampson, the police are trying to find the murderer and it's inevitable that they'll want to know who was in the apartment at the time."

The question he had asked a few moments before came to her now with all its significance.

She shook her head firmly. "No," she told him: "I wasn't in the apartment when Fargeson was killed. When I slipped out . . ." she had been about to say that when she slipped out Fargeson was holding Marcia in his arms and kissing her; but she finished abruptly: "Fargeson was still there, alive."

"I see." He drummed on the desk with his fingers. "You understand, I'm trying to determine if you could prove an alibi in the event that the police should learn that you were there earlier in the evening. Could you?"

"You mean could I prove that Fargeson was alive when I left the apartment?"

"Yes," nodding.

Jean said very, very slowly: "I could . . . provided you could prove that Fargeson was still alive when you went back to the apartment."

She saw him start, nervously, saw the blood rush to his face. "I . . . I don't understand," he said quietly.

"I mean," Jean told him bluntly, "that I had just come down the stairs into the lobby when you came in from the street and walked up the stairs . . ."

For a long moment he stared at her curiously, half angrily. But presently his expression softened and he said evenly: "But I didn't go back to the apartment after I left you and Marcia."

Jean said nothing, but she felt suddenly weak and afraid.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood,—Estelle Taylor, exotic actress of the silents, who is returning to pictures after nearly a two-year absence, obtained an important role through a tryout of which she was not aware.

ESTELLE TAYLOR

She was on the beach when she saw a director taking pictures of her with a portable camera. Estelle believed he was making a collection for his family film album and she obligingly posed.

A few days later the director called her to tell her she never was more natural, that the test was great—and did she want a part?

Typical Hollywood irony: A character actor, who speaks five languages fluently, played a bit in a picture that didn't even require him to use English. He chewed tobacco, moving his jaws in time with the offstage music.

River Cure.

Directors are in supreme command during the filming of a picture. Some often assume a despotic attitude toward their players and workers, demanding and expecting unreasonable things.

The story of how one was subdued, for all time, has just leaked out.

A scene was being made on a river, just above a torrential falls. Two stunt men, who were to ride in a canoe almost to the brink of the falls, stretched safety lines to grab if they were unable to drive their craft ashore.

Just before they got into the canoe the "doubles" simultaneously decided to return to test their life lines. Imagine their feelings when they discovered the ropes had been cut.

The director severed the lines, hoping the men might go over the falls, accidentally of course, thereby giving him a hair-raising "shot."

The stunt men seized the director and put him in the canoe with them. Then they paddled toward the falls. The director it is related, promised anything to be saved.

The cure was effected when the canoe was beached after a tough struggle.

Clinches Passing.

A trend toward unhappy endings in pictures has become evident since the showing of "Hell's Angels" and "The Dawn Patrol." "All Quiet on the Western Front" probably is the classic example of this type of film.

Lewis Ayres, hero of the war picture, is killed again in "Doorway to Hell," a gangster story, and in "Men of the Sky," both hero and heroine are shot as spies.

It is an indication producers have learned that the public doesn't care for nice-nicey stuff all the time.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Horn" (also spelled "Horne") has come down to us from several sources. In most cases it was originally an old personal name and nickname meaning "the drinking horn" and "the trumpet." In a few cases it means "he who lives at the horn-shaped piece of land." It will be recalled that in early times it was customary to display signs before private homes, as well as before shops and taverns, as a means of identification. Thus the family name "Horn" may mean "he who lives at the sign of the horn." Many Irish families have adopted "Horn" as a substitute for "Horan." Many English families named "Horne" are so called because of a former residence in the parish of Horne, in County Kent. Thirteenth century English documents mention a certain Johannes Horne, a Walter Horn, a Roger de Horne and a William atte Horn.

The family name "Hornsby" (also spelled "Hornby") is found in early English records, but it is ultimately of Scandinavian origin, and means "he who lives at Horn's settlement or estate." A certain Johannes de Hornesby is mentioned in a fourteenth century English document.

The family name "Horan" is of Celtic origin and means "the descendant of the pale man."

The family name "Meissonier" is a French dialect form which means "the harvester."

The family name "Hartzell" is of German origin. It is a low German diminutive form of "Harto." "Harto" was an old personal name meaning "firm" or "bold."

Guiding Your Child

The Tomboy.

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Everybody knows the tomboy, the girl who at the age of 14 still plays with boys as if she were one of them. She never gives a thought to her looks, she pleases her parents and teachers by the fact that she is such a fine, sensible girl, so free from the "nonsense" which characterizes the usual girl at adolescence.

They are proud of the fact that she shines in athletics and rejoices in the wholesome pleasures of summer camp life. Such a girl, her parents gratefully believe, has actually succeeded in escaping that troublesome phase of development which goes with an early interest in clothes and looks and boys.

Her parents thank heaven that they have in their daughter no problem such as that which confronts the neighbors whose daughter began having dates at the age of 12 or 13.

It is true that the tomboy escapes certain difficulties which cross the path of the more usual line of development, but it is a question whether the very absence of this sort of problem in her case is not an indication of one perhaps even more serious.

It is obvious that the tomboy is pretending to herself that she isn't a girl at all, but a boy, and as such she is trying to achieve satisfaction along lines which can not take her far on the path of satisfactory life development.

Her apparently "sensible" and wholesome preoccupations are really but an indication of unconscious conflicts and a flight from the realities of her developing girlhood.

The tomboy girl deserves thoughtful consideration from those who are guiding her development. What she probably needs most of all is understanding and help in the acceptance of her own femininity.

A Holiday Dinner.

Roast Goose and Mashed Potato Stuffing
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Spinach
Bread Currant Jelly
Tomato Gelatin Salad Mayonnaise
Pumpkin Pie Coffee

Mashed Potato Stuffing

5 cups warmed mashed potatoes
½ cup hot milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon finely chopped onions
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 egg yolk
1 egg white beaten

Mix all ingredients. Lightly stuff the fowl. Never press dressings into the fowls, as this will make them soggy.

Candied Sweet Pofatoes

(To serve with roasts or fowls.)

8 large boiled sweet potatoes
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup dark brown sugar
3 tablespoons fat
½ cup water

Peel the potatoes and cut in halves lengthwise. Sprinkle with the salt and paprika. Heat fat and sugar in frying pan. Add the potatoes and water. Cover and bake slowly 25 minutes. Turn frequently to allow even browning.

Tomato Gelatin Salad

2 cups tomatoes
1 cup water
2 slices onions
4 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
2 celery leaves
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Mix ingredients. Cook slowly 20 minutes in covered pan. Strain well and add to the gelatin mixture.

Gelatine Mixture

2 tablespoons granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped pimiento stuffed olives
¼ cup diced dill pickles

Soak the gelatin and water 4 minutes. Add to the boiling tomato juice and stirr until dissolved. Cool and add rest of ingredients. Pour into a mold which has been rinsed out of cold water. Set in cold place to stiffen. Unmold, cut in slices and serve on lettuce. Top with mayonnaise.

A cheese dressing made by adding white cream cheese (¼ cup) to 1 cup of salad dressing. This makes a very good topping for the salad.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD.

Husbands and Lovers.

A HUSBAND is what is left of a lover after domestication has set in. This fact should just be accepted for what it is worth and one-half the tears shed by disillusioned wives would be salvaged for a better cause. But women accept few of the facts of life, especially those concerning husbands. Women who marry for protection and a home are usually quite contented with their lot, for most men do provide protection and a home. It is the poor misguided soul who marries to make sure of having somebody to kiss her hand when she grows old that is to be pitied. For her there is no Santa Claus. She finds out that even the man who will lose a night's sleep because she has a toothache, draws the line at kissing his wife's hand. To him that is being awfully silly. He will even bring home candy next day to try to settle the matter amicably but definitely. To all those who fondly believe that marrying a man insures hand-kissing till death we wish to break some sad news. It means the end of hand kissing for keeps.

Listen to "Bride:"

"I am married less than a year and I think it is horrid. He was the most perfect lover any girl ever had. Now everything is "silly" to him. He used to kiss my hands and lay his cheek in them. He has not done it once of his own accord since we were married. I get sick of just the routine of being married. Alarm clock. Coffee. Toast. Market. It is hateful. I am always so mad half the morning I could just pack up and get out. What do they think a girl marries for I want to know. I had a dozen lovers. I did not have to marry for a home or the fun of getting some one off to work.

"When we went out in the car, he always wanted me to sit over close to him. I could sit on the running board now and he would never know where I was. My husband is not making love to me. And I want to know whether a woman in this day is supposed to be satisfied at 24 with just having a man in the house. I am not. I told him last night that I was going to be made to love to all my life if I had to divorce a dozen men to find one who was a real lover. He said that was "a fine speech for a nice girl to make" and asked me if I wanted him to act "silly." "We are married now, not lovers, you know." What on earth sort of talk is that? Are married people never lovers? He began right away to talk about buying a house. I have wanted one ever since we were married, and he said no. Now, right off, he talks house. I said I did not want a house, as I did not think our marriage was going to take. Then he got sore. Said I never was cut out for marriage. Just because I want love. Any one who wants him can have him so far as I am concerned. What I want to know is how a woman is going to know in advance that a man who kisses her hands considers kissing hands silly. It is not just that one thing. It is the whole idea. I am not going to be household help to any man. All he wants to do is sit and yawn for an hour after dinner and go to bed. That's a fine life. All day I am alone.

No fooling, I am not going to stand this. I am dead serious about not buying a house. I do not think he is the one I want to share any house with, and that is that! BRIDE.

Brrr-rrrrr! There is at least one domesticated lover that is in for a hard winter. Poor old thing coming home at 7 o'clock, cold and tired and hungry, and a little firebrand waiting to snap his head off. Well, we wonder just how many husbands a girl would have to annex before she found one who would kiss her hands without feeling foolish. Trouble is a woman's got to choose. The ones that kiss hands usually sing tenor and choose the curtains. The ones that come up to scratch in the real things just will not kiss hands. It's a problem.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT BY U.S. IS ATTACKED

Nine Jurors Deny Charges of Intimidation Brought by Two Members.

$8,000 VERDICT IS GIVEN

Supported by affidavits of nine jurors, counsel for Paul Beale, who recently was awarded an $8,000 verdict by a District Supreme Court jury before Justice Frederick L. Siddons against the United States Veterans' Bureau, yesterday, asked the court to dismiss the Government's motion for a new trial which was based on affidavits that two jurors had been intimidated into returning a verdict for the plaintiff.

The Government's plea for a new trial was based on affidavits sworn to by Howard L. Wilkins, foreman and Donald J. Parson. Both declared that the jury had been forced to go without food and sit up all night because one man favorable to the plaintiff refused to go to eat until a verdict had been returned.

The ten jurors who support Reale's plea for dismissal of the new trial motion, however, declare that on the first ballot it was shown that ten favored a verdict for the plaintiff while the other two jurors favored a verdict for the defendant. Believing, they state, that a decision could soon be reached it was suggested that the conference continue so everyone could go home for supper.

After being recharged by Justice Siddons at 8 o'clock the jurors retired to the jury room, the affiants state, at which time Mr. Wilkins stated that since he was responsible for the jurors being out he would buy the supper.

Only three ballots were taken during the entire deliberations, and at no time was there anything like a fight, it was set out. The new affidavits show that one woman was a member of the body, and it is set out that at all times she was accorded the utmost respect. About 4 o'clock, the affidavits stated, several of the jurors began to reason with Mr. Wilkins and Mr. Parsons, with the result that finally Mr. Wilkins asked if everyone was ready for another ballot. All jurors assented, the vote was taken, and it was unanimous for the plaintiff, the affidavits declare. It also stated that the verdict was not founded "on sentiment," as charged by Mr. Wilkins and Mr. Parsons, but on the evidence.

The ten jurors who signed the affidavits are W. B. Olive, William E. Egan, William S. Rea, T. N. Waggaman, Mike C. Coakley, Dabney C. Childress, Gordon W. Clarke, Plowden T. Hickey and Louise Altenbaugh.

Attorney Walter E. Miller filed the affidavits on behalf of Beale.

Last of Trio Indicted With Bob Surrenders

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Frederick C. Russell, the last of three persons indicted with Charles V. Bob, mining engineer and promoter, on charges of grand larceny in the sale of stock, appeared today and pleaded not guilty.

Russell disappeared more than six weeks ago with Bob after flying to Chicago with him. Bob a few days ago surrendered to the district attorney, but refused to explain his absence.

Noyes Will Head Football Group

Committee Sees $40,000 as Aid for Idle in Tilt of Marines-Coast Guard.

Newbold Noyes yesterday was named chairman of the committee on arrangements for the Marine Corps-Coast Guard football game to be played December 6 at Griffith Stadium for benefit of the unemployed. The appointment was announced by Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the Commissioners' unemployment committee, which is sponsoring the game.

The committee hopes to realize $40,000 from sale of tickets to the game, it was declared by Bryan S. Morse, chairman of the publicity committee. Tickets are to be sold for $1 and $1.50 each, and all proceeds are to be turned over to the committee for its relief work.

Permission for a parade by the 1,200 Marines to be brought here for the game by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler was granted by the District Commissioners yesterday. The Marines will march from their place of debarkation to the ball park. Secretary Mellon and Mrs. Ogden Mills yesterday purchased boxes for the game.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL.

THANKSGIVING DAY, of all the holidays in the year, is looked upon as best from the viewpoint of the theater. It is essentially a day of festival which lends itself with particular facility to merry-making and the pursuit of pleasurable occupations. That is why theater managements may usually be relied upon to present the best wares they have available during the week that embraces this gala day.

Chief local interest in the week beginning today no doubt will lie in the adoption of the two-a-day policy, on a reserved seat basis, at the Metropolitan, which, incidentally, will be found to be discussed in more detail and at greater length in the motion picture department of tomorrow's Post than would be possible here.

Of the other attractions it would not surprise me to find perhaps the liveliest curiosity on the part of the theatergoing public centered in two stories that have been translated by the cameras before, but never by the microphones—"Tol'able David," at the RKO-Keith Theater, and "East Is West," at the Rialto.

"Tol'able David," the Joseph Hergesheimer story that assured Richard Barthelmess of a permanent place among the foremost stars of the cinema, by an odd coincidence now brings another Richard, additionally cyclept Cromwell, to a place of prominence in the celluloids. The role that was the first Ernest Torrence ever had played before a camera we find portrayed by Noah Beery, and George Duryea and Barbara Bedford are cast in the parts created in the earlier silent version by Warner Richmond and Dial Patterson, the present Mrs. Rupert Hughes, respectively.

In East Is West" we will see Lupe Velez, Lewis Ayres and E. G. Robinson in the roles created in the silent First National version by Constance Talmadge, William Burns and Warner Oland, reading from left to right. Monta Bell, "who used to be a newspaper man himself," directed.

It all should be very interesting—and, mind you, not yet having seen either, I only said should be.

Despite the practically ne plus ultra—or do I mean e pluribus unum?—character of Thanksgiving Day, it is Thanksgiving eve that promises to be the really big hurrah this year.

At the Metropolitan, the new policy, over which the Capital might just as well be agog as the way it is, will be inaugurated.

At the Earle, a special midnight show will be given, beginning at 11:30 o'clock, for which tickets may be purchased in advance.

At the Rialto, a special preview permance of "See America Thirst" is to be given as a benefit for Columbia Lodge, No. 174, International Association of Machinists, the proceeds to be dedicated to the District of Columbia War Memorial, to be erected in Potomac Park not far from the Lincoln Memorial.

In addition to the screening of the comedy featuring Harry Langdon, Bessie Love and "Slim" Summerville, the program will include contributions by a special orchestra, Fred East, barytone, and "Bill" Raymond, tenor, both members of this club!

The Fox, while not going in for a midnight show, plans to add an extra performance to its regular daily schedule on Thanksgiving Day proper, so that those who wish to partake of their drumsticks and stuffing at a fashionable evening hour can still reach the Fox in time to find the box-office open and a complete show going on.

By the way, what do vegeterians do on Thanksgiving?

Washington's loss is Newark's gain. After eleven years of service as a member of Loew's local orchestras, Lee Cronican, for many seasons pianist at the Palace—and a very excellent pianist, too, in passing—severed his connection with the organization after the last performance last night to assume new duties as announcer and staff artist at Station WOR in Newark, N. J. In his new post Mr. Cronican, a concert artist of experience, will take up duties identical with those of our good friend and former associate, George Ross, at Station WRC, in this city.

If Mr. Cronican is late in arriving in Newark it will be due to the heavy load of good wishes he carries with him from Washington.

In his second wek at the Palace as guest master of ceremonies, Wesley Eddy will have as costar of the Loew "Rustic Fancies" stage revue a comedian with whom he has worked many times before, in Joe Penner, one of the most amusing buffoons on the boards. Present in the flesh, Joe will have opportunity to erase much of the depressing memory of a recent short reel scren subject in which his material permitted him to be about as hilarious a source of fun as a slight recurrence of your old sinus trouble.

And up the block at the Fox, the ceremonies are being major-domoed by Mel Klee, the blackface jester, who gets consistently better as he goes along through the years.

Originally, unless I have my memories crossed, Mel patterned his chatter and his songs much after the fashion of Al Herman, dirt and all. 'Way back there, Al was a trifle smudged in his humor and so was Mel, but Al since has disappeared from the scene and Mr. Klee has kleened up his act until it is fit and funny for any man's parlor, bedroom or bath.

You will like him at the Fox—and the whole troupe he introduces.

There is a splendid idea going largely to waste in the "Mr. Courage vs. Mr. Fear" controversies that are punctuating the talking newsreels these panicky days. I say going to waste because the skits are only half baked and not argumentative enough to carry any conviction whatsoever.

The idea is that two partners in business—or maybe they are competitors, it's all the same in the end—hold opposite views on how to cope with the hard times that are not making things soft. The optimist advocates spending; the pessimist, penury. The optimist always wins.

That is as it should be, but my point is that he wins too easily. Mr. Fear is such an unconscionable "yes" man that the sketches are hopelessly denatured. Not that it especially matters.

Today, in case it had not occurred to you, marks the final publication of a picture and questionnaire in The Post's daily movie contest. There still remain, however, six days in which answers to it will be accepted in competition.

The response to the series of questions that have been published continuously during the past three weeks has been no less than tremendous. My only personal regret is that everyone who sent in answers was not a winner—it would have made it so much easier for the judge!

Better order that turkey now, while you think of it!

Lodge Treasurer Faces Indictment

Embezzlement of $5,222 of Organization's Funds Is Charged to Man.

William O. Davis, Negro, former treasurer of the Odd Fellows Hall Association, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of embezzling $5,222.02 of the organization's funds. The indictment is in fifteen counts and covers a period from November 23, 1927, to December 26, 1928.

At the same time the grand jury presented a new indictment charging Aaron Trachtenberg with violation of the national prohibition law. The indictment contains the same charges as the one returned against him Tuesday, a bill which was found to be faulty in that the man's name was misspelled. The indictment charges Trachtenberg, who has been much in the public eye of late, with sale, transportation and possession of liquor.

Assistant United States Attorney Renah F. Camalier, in charge of grand jury work, explained that the reason for the grand jury's report yesterday was because the charges against Davis would have been outlawed under the statute of limitations if delayed beyond Sunday.

Chain-Store Man Accused by Bank

Warrant Alleges Making of False Reports in Louisville.

Louisville, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and its local manager, Albert Ivison, were charged with wilfully circulating false rumors about the Stockyards Bank here today.

The action followed five days of financial stress which closed nine banks in this county, six in other parts of the State and six along the southern Indiana border. Under Kentucky law it is a felony wilfully to circulate false rumors that would embarrass a bank, and the Stockyards Bank announced it was in excellent condition. Its warrant charged that the tea company notified its local store managers yesterday the Stockyards Bank had closed. At Ivison's office it was said he would make an explanatory statement.

The list of Kentucky banks to close, beginning with the suspension Monday of the $54,000,000 National Bank of Kentucky, was brought to fifteen by failure of the Hopkins County Bank of Madisonville to open.

'Bugs' Moran Is Linked With Auto-Theft Ring

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Department of Justice agents, investigating a suspected Nation-wide automobile theft ring, said today they had indications that "Bugs" Moran, notorious Chicago gang leader, was involved. They also reported that Harry Kaufman, 19 years old, arrested here in an automobile theft, had attempted to send a telegram to "Arthur Moran" in Chicago.

Kaufman was taken into custody last night while driving a car alleged to have been stolen October 25 from Mrs. Anna Bowen, of Chicago. The youth said, however, he had bought the machine shortly before he left Chicago and attempted to sell it here because he intended to return home by train.

Col. Goddard to Test Bullets in Zuta Case

Chicago, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Down in a secluded corner of the Criminal Courts Building basement, under the eyes of five attorneys, a dozen bullets will determine just how accurate the science of ballistics has become. They also will decide whether Danny Stanton will be tried for the slaying of Jack Zuta.

Zuta, powerful Chicago gangster, was killed in Waukesha County, Wis. Stanton, also well known in the local underworld, was arrested. Col. Calvin Goddard, of Northwestern University, reported that some of the bullets found in Zuta's body were fired from the gun found on Stanton.

Bride Wants Commissioners' Secretary to Do 'Purely Ministerial Work.'

Authority for the secretary to the Board of District Commissioners to sign contracts and other papers now requiring the signatures of the Commissioners would be provided under a proposed bill drawn yesterday by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride for consideration by Congress.

The bill, which is in line with a suggestion made by Mr. Bride in his last annual report, is urged as having for its object relief of the Commissioners by lessening the "purely ministerial" work of their offices.

The measure provides, however, that before the secretary can sign such papers, they must first have been approved by the Commissioners at their regular meeting.

Brothers Who Confess Car Thefts Sentenced

Marshall B. and Howard V. Goding, brothers, who pleaded guilty last week to two charges of grand larceny, in connection with alleged wholesale thefts of automobiles from Washington streets, were sentenced yesterday by Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court to serve a year and a day on each charge, with sentences running concurrently.

The Godings, who were arrested several months ago, led the police to a place near McLean, Va., where it is alleged equipment for changing motor numbers was found. The police also reported the discovery of a cache of seventeen stolen automobiles. Oley W. Jackson, who is said to have been arrested and indicted with them, has entered a plea of not guilty.

Body on Mountain Top Not That of Crater

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The body of a man between 50 and 60 years old, apparently a suicide, was found today on a mountain near Highland Falls. The man had been dead at least two days, physicians said.

The body at first was believed that of Joseph Force Crater, missing jurist, but the theory was discarded when it was found the man had natural teeth. Judge Crater was described as having false teeth.

Big Ten Round-Up Is Set for Tonight

Presidents of Universities Are Expected to Attend Along With 400.

Invitations to presidents of Western Conference universities have been extended for the annual Big Ten round-up tonight at the Willard Hotel. Among those expected to attend are Dr. George W. Rightmore, Ohio State; Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, Minnesota; Dr. Robert G. Hutchins, Chicago; Dr. Glenn Frank, Wisconsin; Dr. Walter A. Jessop, Iowa; Dr. Alexander A. Ruthven, Michigan; Dr. Harry W. Chase, Illinois, and Dr. William Lowe Bryan, Indiana.

More than 400 persons are expected to be present when the final standing of the Big Ten football teams is posted and the dance program begins. School reunions will also mark the program, separate spaces in the Hall of Nations at the hotel having been reserved for each university.

Prizes will be awarded schools having the best attendance marks for the round-up. Cards will furnish the diversion for those who do not care to dance.

G. W. U. Students Freed Of Disorderly Charges

Sixteen George Washington University students, who were arrested Thursday night while staging a celebration in anticipation of the G. W.-Catholic University football game, were freed of disorderly conduct charges yesterday in Police Court when they were arraigned before Judge Ralph Given. Police were unable to make any specific charge against any defendant. All the youths received refunds of their $5 bills they had posted as collateral at the First Precinct station house.

The youths were taken into custody on F street during the height of the theater traffic. The arrests followed a warning of police to keep moving, which was countered with an alleged epithet.

Robinson Gold Seizure Stirs Mexican Capital

Mexico City, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Government officials here today had received no official report of charges by Theodore D. Robinson, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy for the United States, that Mexican customs guards confiscated $320 in Mexican gold from him and Mrs. Robinson.

Word of this episode came as a surprise here, in view of Mr. Robinson's prominence. He and his wife left Mexico City about a week ago for the United States. He is a close friend of Arthur B. Lane, charge d'affaires at the American Embassy here. Mexican law forbids transpotration of gold out of the country and the government recently has been very strict in this matter.

Could Hardly Do Her Work

"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly do my housework. I was so nervous and weak from Change of Life that I had to lie down very often. I heard about the Vegetable Compound in a booklet which was left at my door. I am doing all the housework for a family of four and it keeps me on my feet. I have taken six bottles and I have gained strength and flesh."—Minnie E. Hicks, R. R. #2, Rushville, Indiana.

BERRY AUCTION RULE RESCINDED BY COURT

Justice William Hitz Kills Order Permitting Sale to Continue.

ADVERTISING IS STUDIED

An order was signed yesterday by Associate Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court, rescinding an order of the Equity Court permitting Berry & Co., jewelers, of 610 Thirteenth street northwest, to hold an auction sale. The sale had been in progress since October 22.

The Better Business Bureau, represented by the law firms of Lyon & Lyon and that of Peyser, Edelin & Peyser, in bringing the action as a friend of the court, declared at the hearing that the jewelry company, despite an advertisement that it was selling stock "now in the store," had brought much of its goods to the store since the advertisement was inserted.

Jacob B. Gordon, of Boston, has been serving as auctioneer, with Levi H. David and Lucas P. Loring, receivers for the firm.

"There are certain things controlling this case that stand out in my mind," declared Justice Hitz at the hearing. "In the first place every witness testified that they went to that auction either directly or indirectly because of the advertisement."

"Secondly, Mr. Gordon testified in substance that the merchandise he sent there was not regular jewelry merchandise. Mr. Gordon stated that he never bought regular merchandse in the regular way.

"Mr. Gordon testified that with respect to certain items he could not tell how much he bid bought, although he never had any loss. Whether that is so or not, this is not such a sale as I feel should be conducted with the sanction of the Court of Equity."

CHARGES CITE TRIO IN MILK TAMPERING

Papers charging three men who are alleged to have ruined two wagon loads of milk last Sunday morning with violating the pharmacy law were made out late yesterday afternoon in the corporation counsel's office in Police Court. The men charged are Harry Maynard Rothgeb, dairy deliveryman and recording secretary of Milk Drivers and Milk Dairy Employes Local Union, No. 246; Elmer Carr Rayford, business agent for the Taxicab Drivers Union, and Richard Conte, taxicab driver.

The men were scheduled to be arraigned in Police Court yesterday morning, but due to some hitch they were not even brought into court, although all witnesses were present.

At the same time United States Attorney Leo A. Rover indicated his dissatisfaction with the food poisoning law as now on the statutes. Under the present law, Mr. Rover said, it is necessary to prove intent to kill, and declared he did not believe such an intent could be proved.

Assistant Corporation Counsel E. M. Welliver, who made out the papers charging violation of the pharmacy law, stated that he did not know when the men would be arraigned and intimated that additional investigation might be made. The men are at liberty under bonds of $1,000 each.

The three defendants are said to have confessed and to have ascribed their motive to efforts to force the two drivers to join a milk drivers' union. They are said to have admitted pouring disinfectant cut with kerosene on the tops of the bottles of milk during the absence of the two wagon drivers.

People who are running Post Classified Ads this morning will get "Today's Results Today."

The Goofus Ox put feathers in his bonnet
To make the farmer think he was a cow,
But the milkmaid called his bluff
And he surely thought it tough
When the farmer promptly hitched him to a plow.

Next to fool the cows he tried his best to bellow,
And many of them thought he was a bull
Till a young calf called him "Pop,"
When he thought he'd better stop—
Now he's thinking up another bluff to pull!

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Two of the mightiest gridiron machines of them all, Notre Dame and Northwestern, will crash head-on tomorrow in one of the football classics of the year.

Undefeated, untied and unapproached, each with seven straight victories, the two powerhouse combinations of football will collide to decide which of them will remain in the chase for the gridiron's golden fleece, the mythical national championship. They rank with the five undefeated elevens of the Nation.

By the time the first shadows of night begin to engulf Dyche Stadium, Northwestern's football arena, Notre Dame either will be rolling along toward another national championship, or will be relegated to the ranks of conquered teams. If victorious, Notre Dame still must conquer the Army and Southern California in its championship march.

Northwestern Tied For Big Ten Title.

Northwestern, already assured of at least a slice of the Western Conference championship, as a result of five "Big Ten" victories, finds itself in a spot to advance claims to national championship honors if it can do what is considered by some experts improbable—conquer the Cyclone from South Bend.

The game will be played before a capacity crowd of 49,000 with every seat sold two weeks ago and with scalpers asking as high as $25 to $75 for a ticket.

The battle will be the severest test of the year for each team, and promises to be a conflict of power and passes, against speed and deception. Knute Rockne's masterful, polished machine will enter the game a favorite because of its scintillating record. On the basis of comparative scores Notre Dame, in the judgment of the experts, is entitled to the edge because the Ramblers have tallied 217 points to 68 for its foes, while Northwestern has scored 182 to its opponents' 22.

Each Has Won 7 Straight.

When the Fighting Irish and the Northwestern Wildcats dig their cleats into the turf tomorrow, each team will be in possession of a winning streak of seven straight games. Only one of the seven teams—Indiana—was on the schedule of both elevens and the scores made against the Hoosiers were almost identical. Notre Dame beat Indiana 27 to 0, and a week later Northwestern won from them 25 to 0.

Northwestern, conquering Tulane, Ohio State, Illinois, Centre, Minnesota, Indiana and Wisconsin, never has been seriously threatened. Notre Dame had only one close call—the game with Southern Methodist, in which Rockne's Ramblers scored in the last minutes to save themselves from a tie. Notre Dame's other opponents have been bowled over easily, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Drake falling in succession.

Speed and Deception Faces Power.

The game will present the two most prevalent types of play used today, with Notre Dame flashing a shift that requires speed, agility and deception, and Northwestern employing power and depending upon superior strength. Northwestern has the strength in the line that may put the breaks on the Notre Dame speedsters.

The perfect execution of the Northwestern passing game this year has been due entirely to the fact that the husky forwards have been able to

McLarnin Defeated Easily by Petrolle

Madison Square Garden, New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle, veteran lightweight, gave Jimmy McLarnin a terrific beating in winning a ten-round decision in their feature match before 12,000 here tonight. McLarnin was floored twice for counts of nine in the fourth round. He weighed 141 pounds, Petrolle 138.

Dodd Accepts Bid To Play for Charity

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Bobby Dodd, University of Tennessee quarter back, will accept an invitation to play in the newspaper charity game for the unemployed at Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 27, Coach W. H. Britton said today.

The announcement was made by Britton in a telegram to Champ Pickens at Los Angeles.

Freyer, N. Y. World Sports Editor, 37, Dies

New oYrk, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Richard Freyer, sports editor of the Evening World, died last night in the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, it became known today. He had been under treatment for cirrhosis of the liver. He was 37 years old.

His death followed by a few hours upon that of William B. Hanna, veteran sports writer for the Herald Tribune.

Dartmouth Leaves For Game on Coast

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The Dartmouth football squad was given a rousing send-off by the student body today, as it left for Palo Alto, Calif., for the intersectional gridiron battle with Stanford, November 29.

Thirty-eight players and coaches entrained in three special cars. All members of the squad were in good physical condition except Henry Barber, tackle, and Aarne Frigard, half back. Barber had a slight attack of grip and Frigard is recovering from an infected leg which kept him out of practice all week.

The team expected to arrive in Chicago tomorrow afternon in time to get in a workout on the Oak Park High School Field. A rally of Dartmouth grads in Chicago was planned for tomorrow night.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 21.—Maryland University eleven, still on the upgrade after a series of hard battles, reaches out for a major victory today when it encounters Navy at Annapolis in a game expected to rival any other of the season in this vicinity for color and thrills. The kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

Twenty-two thousand persons, including high State and governmental officials, will attend. That number represents the seating capacity of Farragut Field. Forty thousand others would view the proceedings if there was room for them.

Navy will be the favorite. It has met stronger opposition than Maryland, which accounts, in part, for four defeats on its record. But Maryland, especially in the opinion of its students and ardent admirers, is figured to force Navy to its best if the Middies are to win.

Navy Won All Nine Previous Games.

Maryland hasn't scored a victory over the Naval Academy in nine previous football games. The closest the Old Line ever came to triumph was a 12-to-12 tie in 1906. The teams haven't met since 1917, when Navy registered easily, 62 to 0.

The chances of Maryland seem to hang on its passing game. Coach Curly Byrd has developed the most potent aerial attack Maryland has boasted in a decade. Depending mainly on George "Shorty" Chalmers, thrower, and Louis "Bozey" Berger, receiver, both of whom occupy halfback positions, the Old Liners have provided sensational overhead fireworks in every game they have played to date.

Navy admittedly has the stronger ground offense. Even with the loss of Joe Tschirgi and Swede Hagberg, both regular backs, the Tars possess more speed and drive on running plays than their guests. Also considered in this matter is Navy's line. It is more experienced. On defense it is expected to hold Maryland's ground gains to a minimum.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Georgetown was regarded a slight favorite tonight for the game with Villanova tomorrow afternoon in the Municipal Stadium, the first between the Hilltoppers and the Wildcats on a gridiron since 1905.

Georgetown's defeats of Michigan State and Boston College excel the record of Villanova, which has downed Temple and Boston College for its only major victories. Whereas Georgetown scored three touchdowns against Boston College, Villanova registered only one. Both lost to New York University, but the Capital team bowed by the slim margin of 2 points, while the Wildcats were conquered 20 to 6.

Despite the grueling struggle with N. Y. U. a week ago, Georgetown looks to be in fine physical condition as it went through an hour's drill this afternoon at Villanova. Bill Macsess, left half back, was the only Hilltopper considered unfit for action. He has a badly bruised hip.

Stuhldreher to Shift Line-Up.

Despite the success last week against the Oglethorpe Team from Georgia, Coach Stuhldreher has decided to shift his starting line-up.

Ed Donohue, a substitute end, has been moved to a post behind the line and will help Villa Nova in its ball-

Maryland-Navy Tilt Will Be Broadcast

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—A change in plans to permit the broadcasting of both the Navy-Maryland game at Annapolis and the Notre Dame-Northwestern contest at Evanston, Ill., by the WJZ chain of the National Broadcasting Co. was announced today. The former game will go to WJZ, WRC and WBAL at 2:15 p. m. (Eastern standard time) and the other to WHAM, KWK, WSM, WMC, WFAA and WOAI at 2:45.

The Yale-Harvard game at 1:45 p. m., part of which is to be rebroadcast in England, will be carried by the WEAF network. The Columbia Broadcasting system will put on the Notre Dame-Northwestern battle.

Pegler Makes Debut Before "Mike" Today

Westbrook Pegler, sports expert at large for The Washington Post and associated newspapers of the Chicago Tribune Press Service, will make his debut as a sports chronicler on the air this afternoon before, during and after the Notre Dame-Northwestern game at Evanston, Ill.

Pegler will go on the air over the Columbia Broadcasting System's coast-to-coast hook-up with his spicy rapidfire comment, supplementing the regular play by play description by Ted Husing, Columbia's star vocal reporter of sporting classics.

Shibe Off for Peru To Forget Baseball

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The long dead city of Chan Chan, whose ghosts know nothing about baseball, is the destination of Thomas S. Shibe, wealthy owner of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics. He sailed today for Peru on the liner Santa Clara, hoping to find temporary surcease from all baseball matters and to recover health impaired by an attack of diabetes.

He said that after visiting Lima he would go to Chan Chan, ancient Peruvian city.

"I hope no shades of the Incas will bob up and ask me about baseball," he said, "but I'm not so sure. Once when I was in Honolulu they had a Japanese, a Chinese and a Hawaiian baseball team and they asked me to umpire."

"Big Ten" Football Race Is Likely to End in Tie

Chicago, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The Big Ten football championship struggle closes tomorrow with the almost certain prospect of a deadlock for the title between Northwestern and Michigan.

Assured of at least a tie for the crown, Northwestern will carry on for Big Ten football prestige by attempting to defeat Notre Dame, while Michigan will tackle the only team between it and a share of the spoils, the weak University of Chicago team, at Ann Arbor.

No one granted Chicago even an outside chance of stopping Michigan's undefeated march tomorrow. The Maroons, defeated in every conference start of the current campaign, were further weakened by the loss of several men, including a pair of backfield men, Temple and Kanne.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Back of the Yale-Harvard football game in the bowl at New Haven tomorrow afternoon are traditions which lift it to high prominence no matter what has gone before and close to 80,000 will jam the stands.

Back of the Notre Dame-Northwestern game at Evanston, Ill., are no traditions but on it hangs in a way the so-called national championship but in any case national preferment. All eyes then are centered on these two engagements more particularly as teams like Dartmouth, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse, Georgia and Alabama are idle, while, with one or two exceptions, the other games scheduled are of minor importance.

Harvard like Princeton a week ago is the underdog against Yale. Only last Saturday the Crimson was badly beaten by Holy Cross, on top of defeats also by the Army, Dartmouth and Michigan to say nothing of a tie with little William and Mary.

But underdogs are the most dangerous of the gridiron. Princeton proved that just a week ago with an even more dismal season behind it than Harvard. Yale will not be handicapped by any feelings of overconfidence. The Tigers killed that destructive imp.

Past performances can be discarded as a rule when Yale and Harvard clash to settle for the year an issue of long standing. Anything can happen in a game like football when two elevens carefully pointed to this particular battle take the field. On the run of the season the Blue has the better record, but on a line through the Army and Dartmouth the two elevens are as well matched as a couple of peas.

West Point beat Harvard, 6 to 0, and played Yale to a tie. Dartmouth beat Harvard, 7 to 2, and played Yale to a tie. Not much there on which to hang a prediction more particularly as the Tigers slightly outplayed the Blue and all but hobbled the elusive Booth a week ago when Holy Cross was beating the Crimson. Thrills are promised and a stiff battle with a chance that Harvard will rise from the depths to beat its dearest foe for the third year in succession.

the line with himself and Otts Kriemelmeyer doing the heavy work.

George Washington should have piled up a larger total as it was within scoring distance no less than three times other than the occasion of its success.

FIRST QUARTER.

G. W. received and Kriemelmeyer punted on the first play 48 yards to his own 48-yard line. Sheary and Whalen hit the left side of G. W.'s line for 8 yards and DeMello punted 18 yards outside on the Colonials' 22. Kriemelmeyer punted 34 yards. DeMello and Sheary made 10 and a first down through the line. DeMello gained 8 at his left end and then punted to Fenlon on the 5-yard line. Kriemelmeyer punted to his 36-yard line. G. W. was penalized for offside and with a short gain C. U. got first down on the G. W. 24. Whalen and Sheary made 4 between them. Whalen's pass was knocked down by Kriemelmeyer and G. W. took the ball on its 21-yard line. Carlin and Fenlon failed at the line and Kriemelmeyer punted to the 50-yard line. Whalen got 2 at end. Sheary punched a hole at center for 3. DeMello punted 40 yards to Fenlon, who was nailed in his tracks. Kriemelmeyer punted 28 yards, DeMello returning to the Colonial 36. Whalen took a lateral from Sheary and ran to the 18-yard line through a broken field. Sheary hit the line for 5 in two tries and DeMello got 1 at end. Chambers jumped up to bat down Whalen's pass to the goal line, G. W. taking the ball on downs at its 11-yard mark. Fenlon, on a fake reverse, gained 19 at C. U.'s right end. Berkowitz and Fenlon between them picked up 7. Carlin, with a wide hole ahead of him, slipped. Kriemelmeyer kicked 34 yards, DeMello receiving on his own 30-yard line as the quarter closed.

Score—C. U., 0; G. W., 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Galloway threw Whalen for a 3-yard loss. Sheary made it up through G. W.'s right tackle and G. W. was penalized 5 yards for offside. C. U. getting a first down on its 33-yard line. DeMello got 5 at end and Whalen broke off his own right side to run 62 yards to a touchdown. It was a brilliant piece of open field stepping, and C. U. gave the ball carirer fine interference. DeMello's place-kick for extra point went wide.

Score: C. U., 6; G. W., 0.

Fenlon, for G. W., returned the kick-off 49 yards to C. U.'s 45-yard line. Kriemelmeyer plugged the line for 5. C. U. was offside and Kriemelmeyer made first down on the Cardinal 34. Fenlon, on a fake reverse, gained 7. Kriemelmeyer got 2 and G. W. made another first down on a C. U. offside offense. Kriemelmeyer hammered the line for 4. Fenlon fumbled and Blasi recovered for C. U. on its 13-yard line. C. U. was thrown back 5 yards for taking its fourth time out. DeMello, from behind the goal, punted outside on his 46-yard line. Fenlon bucked the line for 4. Carlin, on a double pass behind the line, got 10 and a first down. Carlin made 3 at C. U.'s left side, and Fenlon ran off the same side for 15 and a first down on the 15-yard line. Fenlon plunged through center for 5 and then 2. Catholic braced and took the ball on downs on its 5-yard line. DeMello, from behind the goal, punted out to the 35 and Fenlon returned. Fenlon slid off the Cardinal right side for 8, and Fenlon made first down on the 17-yard line. Wells went in for Berkowitzin, the G. W. back field, and gained 2 at tackle. Kriemelmeyer, in two tries, made first down on the Cardinal 7-yard line. Fenlon was stopped and Kriemelmeyer pounded his right guard for 2. Carlin lost 5 on a lateral. Mulvey caught a pass from Wells for 5, but this failed of a first down. DeMello punted to his 40-yard line. A long pass by Wells was knocked down by DeMello. Wells passed 11 yards to Carlin for a first down. Wells ran his left end for 8. DeMello broke another long pass by Wells. Fenlon went off tackle for 4. Kriemelmeyer hurled the line for a first down on the Cardinal 17. Wells dropped back to his 30-yard line and passed to Sturtevant in the end zone for a touchdown. Kriemelmeyer's place-kick for extra point was blocked as the quarter closed.

Score: Catholic U., 6; George Washington, 6.

THIRD QUARTER.

Wells for G. W returned the kick-off to his 29-yard line. Fenlon went off the Catholic left side for 8. Wells broke off the Cardinal right side for 37 yards, being hauled down from behind by Sheary on the C. U. 38-yard line. Fenlon lost 2 yards on the end run. Catholic drew an offside penalty. Wells whipped a low pass to Carlin who ran 20 yards to a touchdown. It was on the fourth down. Kriemelmeyer's place kick was wide of the posts.

Score—G. W., 12; C. U., 6.

DeMello returned the kick-off to his 28-yard line. Whalen broke off his right side, reversed his field and streaked 47 yards to the G. W. 25 where he was hauled down by Galloway. Sheary hit center for 3. DeMello was stopped. Sheary got 2 and then took a pass from Whalen on a trick formation to run 15 yards on a zig-zag course for a touchdown. DeMello put Catholic in the lead by place-kicking the extra point.

Score—C. U., 13; G. W., 12.

Fenlon took the kick-off and returned 5 yards. Kriemelmeyer punted outside at the 50-yard line. Sheary and Whalen gained 5 between them. DeMello punted to Fenlon on the G. W. 18-yard line. Kriemelmeyer punted to De Mello on the Cardinal 45. Sheary and Whalen failed at the line and Sheary broke through guard for 9. DeMello's punt was returned 25 yards by Fenlon to the Colonial 30. Wells made 2 on a spinner. Fenlon ran the right end for 3. Blasi intercepted Fenlon's pass and despite failing prostrate, got up and ran 100 yards to G. W.'s 41. DeMello in two tackle thrusts gained 10 and a first down. DeMello and Sheary picked up 4 between them. Whalen recovered a bad pass from center and got back to the scrimmage line. Whalen's long pass fell untouched and G. W. took the ball on downs at its 28-yard line. Carlin ran his left end for 5 as the quarter closed.

Score—C. U., 13; G. W., 12.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Fenlon crashed off his right side for 9 and first down on the G. W., 43. Wells gained 3 at the same spot. Fenlon was stopped for no gain. Carlin, on a reverse, went off the left side for 6. Kriemelmeyer added the necessary yard for a first down. Carlin hit the lift side for 4 and Fenlon broke through a quickly opened hole at right tackle and ran 45 yards unmolested to a touchdown. Kriemelmeyer place-kick was low.

Score: G. W. 18; Catholic U. 13.

Whalen returned the kick-off to his 37-yard line. Whalen twice failed to connect on passes, Catholic drawing a 5-yard penalty. DeMello lost 35 to the Cardinal ... Sparky gD 5 on a punt formation. DeMello punted 40 yards to Fenlon who returned 35 to the Cardinal 29. O'Brien C. U. right tackle who started the game with a shoulder injury, was carried from the field. Billinger tossed Carlin for a 6-yard loss. Kriemelmeyer made up the loss and Felon added 8. Felon's pass was grounded. Catholic regaining the ball at its 27-yard line. Sheary passed to Whalen for a first down on the Cardinal 41. Lannon recovered a fumble by Whalen on Catholic's 43. Felon and Wells gained 5 but G. W. was penalized 15 for holding. Notre Dame, Yale, Maryland Picked to Win by Lou Little

By LOU LITTLE.
(Head Coach Columbia University).

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A real indication that the present football season is pretty well drawing to a close is the fact that we find that only about half of the teams are playing this Saturday, finishing their schedules, while others are resting and preparing for their final on Thanksgiving Day or the following Saturday.

There are two games that perhaps are the center of all eyes, the Harvard-Yale game at New Haven and the Notre Dame-Northwestern encounter at Evanston.

Yale seems to be the general favorite to win. Of course in this traditional football classic almost anything might occur. If I remember correctly, Yale was a top-heavy favorite a year ago, but still Harvard won. The New Haven team was not exceptionally impressive last Saturday in the game with Princeton, while Harvard, who was looked upon to upset Holy Cross without a great deal of trouble, suffered a humiliating defeat. One of the largest crowds of the season will witness this encounter, and I would not be a bit surprised to see both teams come into their own and the result will be a hard-fought game.

National Title at Stake.

The Northwestern-Notre Dame game is practically going to decide which one of the two will be declared the national champions of the present season. A victory by the Irish will send them against the undefeated Army team which they should defeat, and then to one of the best teams in the country, Southern Cali-

REPLEVIN SCORES AT BOWIE IN SENSATIONAL FINISH

Four Horses Cross Line As Team

Blanket Finish Has Fans Doubtful as to Winner.

Frumper Placed Second, Nicotine Third in Feature.

By J. B. SNODGRASS,
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 21.—M. Lowenstein's Replevin, outsider, won the Wildwood Purse, feature here today, in a sensational finish, in which three horses were noses apart, and the fourth a head back. The crowd thought Nicotine had won but she was placed third, with Nyland H. New's Frumper second. The winner was $32.10 for a $2 ticket. Nicotine was the favorite and came fast on the outside. Time 1:17 4-5 a mile and a sixteenth.

There was much activity about the Sanford Stud's filly Mild, making her first start since Saratoga and she was backed from 15 to 5, according to the approximate figures. Mild took the lead at the gate and maintained her advantage to the stretch, Jollan, which finished fourth, was always close to the pace.

Horses' Heads Appeared Glued Together at End.

Replevin moved up from third to second on the back stretch. He was ridden by A. Adams, who had been suspended for three days for rough riding in the first race. But he managed the Lowenstein entry well in close quarters to get his nose in front of Frumper at the wire. Nicotine was a trailer to the eighth, when she began to move up. Then began a struggle which took the breath of those who were making the noise out on the lawn, for the four horses whose heads seemed glued together made the finish too uncertain for boasting during the last sixteenth.

G. B. Fenwick's filly Sapphire Sky, won the first race for 2-year-old maidens and her running mate, Salisbury, carrying S. W. Labrot's colors, was third, the two running as the trainer, J. F. Adams entry. Samuel Louis' filly, Sweet Call, was second. A length separated the first and second and the same distance divided the second and third horses. The winning entry was favorite and paid $4.90.

The start was good for all but Bobby Folsom Ruth Tidings; in the field group, led from the barrier, with Sapphire Sky in close attendance. Midway the bend turning into the stretch, Sapphire Sky took the lead and George Field had easy sailing on the winner from there to the finish. Fourteen 2-year-olds started and four horses were in the field. The weather was cloudy and a heavy mist hung over the field. The track seemed dead.

Hackey H. Repeats, Paying $24.10 for $2.

J. P. McGovern's Hacky H., which established the longest price of any winner of the meeting, came back today, with Morrison up and won again, this time showing the fastest time of the meeting, running 6 furlongs in 1:11 1-5, which was a fifth of a second faster than Jock's time yesterday. But the McGovern gelding got a close call, for M. Stern's Gun Royal, coming with a rush on the outside, was a nose behind him. French Lass, the favorite was third, a length and a half behind the leaders. Hacky H. paid $24.10 today, after the warning he gave in his last race when he paid more than 34 to 1. Hacky H. soon overhauled Panguitch going to the first turn, pursued by Irish Polly, with French Lass third Irish Polly stopped as usual at the stretch and Hacky H. was drawing away from French Lass when Gun Royal bounced into the picture.

Dixiana Farm's Sweep All, in winning the Lochhavene third on the program, ran the fastest six furlongs of the meeting, displacing Hacky H's time in the previous race and running the distance in 1:11 flat, within two fifths of the record, set by Greenock some years ago. Colitietti kept Sweep All in front all the way and he finished two lengths in front of C. V. Whitney's Magnifico, while J. P. White's John F was third, a nose in front of Dunlin's Lad and two lengths behind Magnifico.

Sweep All Sweeps All Opposition Away in Stretch.

Most of the race was nip and tuck between the Dixiana and Whitney horses, but in the stretch Sweep All drew away. John F was third all the way, except for a short distance when Dunlin's Lad headed him. Workman had the mount of Magnifico. Sweep All is by Sweep—Nettie Hastings. The race drew the best 2-year-olds now in training. The Dixiana Farm is owned by Charles T. Fisher, of Detroit, automobile magnate. The winner was favorite and paid $3.80.

Aziz, which has lost only one race since she graduated from the maiden class at Pimlico, triumphed in the Meadows, fashioned for fillies and mares, fifth on the program, and hosed out the Wheatley Stable's Adequate, the favorite, adding another close finish to other half-raising stretch battles of the afternoon. Rocket Glare, closing fast, was third, and Fleche d'Argent fourth. G. L. Stryker's filly led all the way, her close call coming at the last jump. She was away from the barrier in front of Pious. The Salmon filly was the contender to the stretch, when she quit.

G. C. Winfrey's Light View, 7-year-old chestnut gelding by Rock View—Tread Lightly II, was an easy winner of the sixth, a mile and a furlong contest for 3-year-olds and upward. He had been little fancied by the bettors and paid $21.30 for $2. Paula L, another outsider, finished second, and Sun Friar, the "good thing," ran third, with Swatter, the favorite, finishing fourth.

Raucona, 4-year-old filly owned by F. Eaton, scored in the final race of the program today under a well-judged ride by Louman, beating Danger Signal by a half length with Ducat third, a neck back, in the mile and sixteenth test which found 14 platers at the barrier. Raucona was better than 7 to 1, paying $16.90 in the two dollar straight mutuels.

Raucona was always a contender with Ducat the first to make the pace, closely followed by Isostasy, the winner, and Danger Signal. Louman sent Raucona into the lead on the back stretch and then brought the filly back to follow the pace again. It proved a wise move. The pace told on Isostasy and he dropped out of contention, Raucona going to the front again on the stretch turn and finishing gamely to score over Danger Signal, which ran an even race, saving ground in the stretch.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAPPHIRE SKY, $7.90, $3.80, $4.50; SWEET CALL, $15.80, $7.80; SALISBURY, $4.50.

SAPPHIRE SKY moved up stoutly on the outside in run down the back stretch, were RUTH TYDINGS down rounding the far turn and drew away, but was tiring at the end and driving hard to stall off SWEET CALL. Latter, a forward contender from the break, lost ground when she went wide entering stretch. SALISBURY closed with a game effort. JIMMY D. began slowly and, outrun in early stages, saved ground entering stretch and finished going the fastest of all.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:35½. Off at 1:41½. Winner, J. P. McGovern's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HACKY H., $24.10, $11.60, $6.80; GUN ROYAL, $13.60, $5.30; FRENCH LASS, $2.90.

HACKY H. broke fast and, quickly assuming command, made all of his own pace, raced PANGUITCH into submission in run down the back stretch, tired at end and was driving hard to stall off GUN ROYAL. Latter, slow to begin, gained steadily and finished full of run. She was wearing the winner down after being carried wide entering stretch. FRENCH LASS began slowly. BETTY BEAU saved ground at stretch turn, IRISH POLLY quit when put to a drive.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Loch Raven. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:10. Off at 2:15. Winner, Dixiana Stable's b. c. (2), by Sweep—Nettie Hastings. Trained by F. M. Burch. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 4-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEP ALL, $3.80, $2.50, $2.50; MAGNIFICO, $2.90, $2.70; JOHN F., $7.70.

SWEEP ALL, showing a high flight of speed from the break, carried MAGNIFICO along at a fast pace, shook off latter entering home stretch and drew away last furlong. Coltiletti was looking back at the end. MAGNIFICO ran to his top form. JOHN F. and DUNLIN'S LAD fought it out all through the home stretch, for the show. MARSABIT broke and wheeled at gate, leaving the stalls and unseated his rider.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,600. The Wildwood. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:44. Off at 2:47. Winner, M. Lowenstein's b. g. (5), by Brown Prince II—Tanais. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $1,150; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 1:14 2-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:47 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REPLEVIN, $32.10, $10.50, $4.50; FRUMPER, $6.50, $3.50; NICOTINE, $2.40.

REPLEVIN, a forward contender from the start, saved ground all the way and hung on well in the final drive. FRUMPER moved up with a rush rounding far turn, where he disposed of MILD. He finished between the winner and NICOTINE. Latter began slow and went wide all the way. MILD showed lot of early speed, but stopped as if short.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,400. The Meadows. For all ages, fillies and mares. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:16. Winner, G. L. Stryker's ch. f. (3), by Trojan—Accara. Trained by L. Campbell. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $225; third, $125; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:47 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AZIZ, $9.30, $3.30, $2.30; ADEQUATE, $3.10, $2.20; ROCKET GLARE, $2.80.

AZIZ, showing good speed from the start, outran her field to first turn and was rated under slight restraint until final furlong, saved ground entering stretch and just lasted long enough. ADEQUATE began slowly and worked her passage up on the outside. She went wide at top of stretch and was steadied by veering the winner down. ROCKET GLARE saved ground at top of stretch and finished on the rail. PIOUS, used up forcing the early pace, collapsed in the stretch run.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:49. Winner, G. C. Winfrey's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIGHT VIEW, $21.30, $13.80, $7.80; PAULA L., $15.00, $8.60; SUN FRIAR, $7.90.

LIGHT VIEW went to the front with a rush on back stretch and, after racing VIMONT off his feet, drew away and raced well in hand last quarter. PAULA L. was taken to outside entering stretch and finished with splendid courage. She was up in closing strides to beat SUN FRIAR. Latter tired after making his effort rounding the far turn. SWATTER tired under a drive in stretch.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:21. Winner, F. Eaton's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RAUCONA, $16.90, $7.80, $6.40; DANGER SIGNAL, $8.90, $5.20; DUCAT, $4.20.

RAUCONA moved up stoutly in run down the back stretch, where she went to the front, was given a breathing spell rounding far turn and came again when called on in stretch. DANGER SIGNAL raced strongly all through making turn for home, but hung last sixteenth. DUCAT broke well and went to the front rounding the first turn, but Fields took him in hand on back stretch. He came again at the end to finish going strong. GADALONG, shuffled back going to first turn, was pulled up.

ACES WANT FOE.

The Washington Aces have an open date Monday night at 8 o'clock, and permission to use the Central High Gymnasium. Teams interested, call Manager Frank Xanton, Columbia 6054-W.

SEAT PLEASANT TO DRILL.

$30,000 RACE AT BOWIE TODAY

Sun Beau Likely Favorite Over Classy Field of 14.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Sun Beau and fourteen other of the leading horses in training are down to fight it out for the $30,000 added purse in the Southern Maryland Handicap, at the Bowie track tomorrow afternoon.

Although it has been the Bowie custom to drop into the overnight list of entries most of the horses eligible for the event at one mile and a sixteenth, it looks as though most of the horses named this morning will go to the post.

Sun Beau to Be Favorite, Despite 127 Pounds.

Sun Beau, of course, will be favorite in spite of his impost of 127 pounds. The field will include the Rancocas Stable's Mokatam, winner of the Prince Georges fall handicap on Monday; Starpatic; Dr. Freeland and Petee Wrack, winners at Pimlico; Ned O., Lady Broadcast, a Western filly; Jock, which seems out of his distance; Jim Dandy, the horse that beat Gallant Fox; Inception, winner of the Bowie handicap; Spinach and Phalanx, Marshall Field's smart English three-year-old. Sun Mission and Polydor also are eligibles.

Sun Beau's recent work of a mile in 1:39 1-5 was an impressive one and he will fancy the distance better than he did the mile and half of the Bowie. He also will be favored by an outside post position, having drawn fourteenth, with Inception on the outside.

Spinach Carries 122 Pounds, From Rail Position.

Spinach, which will carry 122 pounds, in on the rail. Starpatic, Dr. Freeland and Petee Wrack are leniently treated in the handicap weights and, as they also have worked well for the event, it should be a horse race all the way.

toting chores. Donohue displayed great form on offense last week and proved valuable in forming interference for the Cats and this caused his change to the back field although he has had little experience in lugging the leather. Harry Geisler and Ted Casey, who have shared the post taken over by Donohue, are certain to see action during the contest.

Johnny Highfield who received a fractured collarbone in the game with Gettysburg, will return to the line-up and should bolster the Cats' offense.

Georgetown's line-up will be virtually the same that has carried the Hilltoppers' colors through their schedule and the brunt of the attack will be borne by Johnny Scalzi.

fornia. Northwestern has an opportunity to reach the highest possible pedestal of 1930 football.

LITTLE'S SELECTIONS.

HARVARD-YALE: On records, Yale should win. Traditional game and almost anything might happen. CARNEGIE TECH-TEMPLE: Temple should win, although game will be very close. NORTHWESTERN-NOTRE DAME: Here is a game which will go a long way to decide national championship. Notre Dame to win. NEW YORK UNIVERSITY-RUTGERS: New York University by two touchdowns. FORDHAM-BUCKNELL: Not much doubt but what Fordham will finish with a victory.

ALBRIGHT-WESTERN MARYLAND: Western Maryland will still be undefeated. BOSTON COLLEGE-BOSTON UNIVERSITY: Boston College by several touchdowns. BROWN-NEW HAMPSHIRE: Brown should win quite easily.

CALIFORNIA-STANFORD: Stanford seems to be moving quite nicely. They should win. HOLY CROSS-LOYOLA: Just a breather for Holy Cross in preparation for the Boston College game. ILLINOIS-OHIO STATE: Illinois not far enough advanced, but will prove troublesome. IOWA-NEBRASKA: Iowa should win this one. LAFAYETTE-LEHIGH: Lehigh by a narrow margin. MICHIGAN-CHICAGO: Michigan to win, and this will tie for conference championship.

MICHIGAN STATE-DETROIT: Believe Detroit has edge. MISSOURI-KANSAS: Kansas should win. PURDUE-INDIANA: Purdue too strong for Indians. UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY-URSINAS: Another rest period for the Army. UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY-MARYLAND: Maryland is going to surprise by winning this one. VANDERBILT-ALABAMA POLY: Vanderbilt should win. VILLANOVA-GEORGETOWN: Georgetown coming strong and should win. WEST VIRGINIA-WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON: Generally a hard-fought contest. West Virginia has the edge.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

STANISLAUS ZBYSZKO, the mighty Polish wrestler, had his perfect record broken when he met "Strangler" Lewis in 1917. Zbyszko held the world's championship at the age of 54.

A young snake is a bird? I thought that would get a rise. Well, so are young fish and insects. If you don't believe me look up the definition of a bird.

It must be downright painful to be in style in the Philippines. The art of filing the teeth to sharp points is practiced by both sexes. Yet this is not as bad as the familiar "duck-billed" women of Africa who knock all their teeth out in order to make room for huge discs with which they stretch their lips.

A flatworm sometimes gets mixed up. Sometimes when severed a tailless head will grow another head instead of a tail and vice versa. Nature takes care of her tiny creatures.

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21.—The high point in the Bowie meeting comes with the $30,000 added Southern Maryland Handicap, as the fifth race tomorrow, and if all of the field of fifteen face the barrier the winner will profit by $40,000. The race is a mile and a sixteenth, for 3-year-olds and upward. This is the richest handicap in the country for older horses, as most of the large turf prizes in the United States are for 2-year-olds and 3-year-olds.

The Agua Caliente Handicap, run just outside of the United States border, has a larger purse, but draws no such field as has been attracted by the Southern Maryland.

This renewal of the famous handicap seems to be an entirely open affair. While SUN BEAU, with 127 pounds, will inevitably be the favorite, if the track remains fast, his last race was a bad one, and the same can be said of the recent efforts of SPINACH. It has been a peculiar record that SPINACH has made, as he seems to alternate with a good race and a bad one. Rogers Caldwell's fast Western filly, LADY BROADCAST, can not be denied a chance on her record, and JOCK, now at the peak of his form, has a chance with the light impost of 107 pounds.

But it seems there is some new blood in this race that can not be overlooked in Marshall Field's PHALANX, which made his only start this week, and while it was a maiden affair for 3-year-olds, with ordinary company, there was nothing ordinary about his performance. He won at 6 furlongs by eight lengths in 1:12, and Thurber tried in vain to restrain the horse. He is by Phalaris, leading English sire, and was imported with his dam as a weanling. He was entered in several large stakes and if he is sound he will be hard to catch in this handicap with only 110 pounds. He is selected to win.

The W. S. Kilmer horse, SUN BEAU, naturally will be favorite, for he stands at the head of the handicap division now in training. His 127 pounds is not heavy compared with 122 on SPINACH, a 3-year-old, if age counts anything—and it does with the official handicappers—but these horses have had a hard campaign all year, and have beaten each other, and it is possible they need a rest. The last race of SPINACH did not look good. On the other hand, some fresh horses have come upon the scene, like PHALANX and STARPATIC. The Sanfords paid $35,000 for STARPATIC. He is a sound horse, very fast and it is probable he was a bargain at the price.

The first four horses finishing in this race may be PHALANX, SUN BEAU, STARPATIC and JOCK. The Sanford horse will figure in the race prominently. STARPATIC started once at Laurel, as did SPINACH, but both were far out of it. In his last New York race, STARPATIC beat Sun Edwin.

LADY BROADCAST may be underrated. She gets in with 110 pounds and has beaten such horses as Pigeon Hole and My Dandy, but it is believed she is outclassed in this race. It appears the handicapper put enough weight on SUN BEAU to make him fight hard for what he may get, and turned a very fast hand loose after him with light impost.

FIRST RACE—This event is for maiden 2- and 3-year-olds, with two or three good ones and several very ordinary platers. The Audley Farm entry of ELEGAN

WASHINGTON-LEE AERIALS BEAT CENTRAL HIGH

Goodwin Hero In 18-to-0 Victory

Central Outplayed by Ballston Team in "C" Club Game.

"Little Generals" Score in Every Period But Third.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE whip-like arm of Allen Goodwin, capable of hurling those sizzling over-the-line passes just barely out of the reach of all but his own men, spelled defeat yesterday for Central High in the fourth annual "C" Club game and placed Washington-Lee High, of Ballston, well on the top of scholastic elevens in this section of the country.

Goodwin hurled his team to an 18-0 victory before 1,000 spectators at Central Stadium, all but a few of whom seemed to have been brought by the Virginians. The W.-L. Band entertained with frequent renditions of the Washington and Lee Swing.

Central Makes Poor Showing.

Central, true to its steady demoralization since the beginning of the season, looked its worst yesterday in its final game of the unhappy year. DeLisio, Koscis and Morgan were the only men in the Central line-up who had seen service since the beginning of the season.

Central's line work, excepting the charging offensive work of Koscis, was rather woeful. DeLisio was the only Blue and White back able to gain at all, getting loose once in the third period for a 35-yard dash, but he fumbled on the next play and Central's lone challenge of the day was dissipated.

W. L. presented a fair rushing exhibition, its aerial work gaining most of its ground. Two passes, both from Goodwin to Mortimer, carried the ball from midfield to the first touchdown, after Central had been held in midfield for downs. Mortimer missed the kick.

A pass from Goodwin to Chase and Mortimer's 25-yard end run put W. L. in position to score the second touchdown. Chase battered over from the 1-foot line. Goodwin missed the kick.

W.-L. Steps Out Again in Final Period.

Central held fairly well in the third period, but W. L. was resting on its passing laurels. W. L. continued its not too effective rushing until near the end of the game, when Goodman again lashed one of his low-roofed threws to Chase for a 35-yard gain. Goodwin took the ball over from the 8-yard line, while Via missed the try for the extra point.

22,000 WILL WATCH MARYLAND AND NAVY

oddest games of recent weeks, again will be called on by the Tars to bear the brunt of their running attack. Kirn is equal to the task, too, for he seems to thrive on hard work and admits a liking for the toughest sort of going.

While Maryland's aerial game looms menacingly, the Navy is ready to fight back with passes, and in Johnny Gannon will present a master of the short, quick toss which finds its mark directly over the line of scrimmage. The short pass features the Tars' overhead attack. The Old Line specializes in long passes, having in Chalmers a passer of deadly accuracy at distances ranging from 15 to 40 yards.

Three Capital Boys In Line-Ups.

Three Washington boys will be the starting line-ups. Weston Byng, former Central High and Devitt Prep luminary, will hold forth at right end for Navy, while Berger, formerly of Tech, and Faber, a product of Eastern, will occupy the righ half and center positions for Maryland. Other Washington natives are among Maryland's reserves, notably Bill Evans, who will play at full back and call signals if he goes into action.

Maryland incidentally has a string of victories to protect and increase. It has won its last five starts, beating St. John's of Annapolis, V. M. I., Virginia, Washington and Lee and V. P. I. Victory today doubtless will be worth two or three of the earlier successes in the minds of College Park adherents.

2,000 Cheer Navy Team In Final Drill for Md.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21.—The Naval Academy Football Team is on such edge for the Maryland game tomorrow that the drill this afternoon consisted mainly of limbering up. The team did not even run through any great amount of signals and soon left the field entirely to the "B" squad which has begun work on Pennsylvania and West Point formations.

On the eve of the battle, Navy is more confident of victory than at any time this season, despite the absence of "Big Oscar" Hagberg, regular full back. Hagberg is injured, and Joe Tachirgi, shiftiest of the running backs, is not table to play long, if at all, as he is in none too good shape from injuries sustained in the Ohio State game. He will be nursed along especially for Pennsylvania and Army.

The Tars had lots of pep this afternoon as they went through plays in a final tune up. Inspired by the presence of the band and a large part of the regiment of 2,000 Middies, who sang and cheered madly, the players seemed set to change the gloomy aspect of the current season. Navy hopes to bring its mark to a 50-50 basis, the team having lost 4 of its 7 games to date.

Navy's line-up is a matter of speculation. Head Coach (Navy Bill) Ingram has drilled three complete teams all week and every member of each team is ready with the exception of the two aforementioned injured regulars. It is generally believed, however, that the back field will consist of Dalebauer, quarter back; Lou Kirn and Jack Gannon, half backs, and either Jack Castree, Tom Hurley or Campbell, full back.

There is an even chance that Antrim will begin at full back, as he carries the most weight in a back field which is probably the lightest in Naval Academy history. While Gannon does most of the passing and is most adept of the group in the aerial game, Kirn and Campbell may also take tosses tomorrow.

Navy expects to make much of its gain through the air and due to this will likely start Johnny at half, with Byng and Torgeson on the flanks, although Elliott is down in the tentative line-up in place of Byng, whose pass sharing is first class. Tuttle, who outclassed both the Ohio State and Southern Methodist pivot men, will be at center; Underwood and Gray are the likely guards; Capt. Blimp Dowstrom will play left tackle, and either the youngster Chalmers or Bryan, normally the regular, will be his running mate. Navy's line will be slightly outweighed by Maryland's forward wall, all of whom, except for Faber, at center, are 6 feet tall, and average better than 183 pounds. In the back field, Navy will be outweighed 8 pounds or more to the man.

WOODBERRY ELEVEN DEDICATES FIELD TODAY

HARDBATTLE IS SEEN FOR WEST VA.

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., Nov. 21. With both teams endowed with speedy backs and lines of only average weight, the twenty-ninth meeting of elevens representing West Virginia University and Washington and Jefferson College on Mountaineer field here on tomorrow afternoon is expected to develop into another "wide open" battle such as that which the Mountaineers and the Kansas "Aggies" put on November 8, and which West Virginia won 23-7.

The Presidents will outweigh the Mountaineers slightly in the line, but the back field will line up with practically the same weight and ability for speed. Washington and Jefferson has not pinned herself down to one back field quartet, having used the veteran Butler and two sophomores, Port and Shaffer, at quarter back; the veterans Smith and Armstrong and Sophomore Zagray at left half, and Maury Rush and Lewis at right half, with "Stew" Wilson and Kaiser, two veterans, doing the full backing.

Wilson, a 198-pounder with exceptional speed for his size, is the kingpin of the Presidential quartet, and with any of the others endowed with enough speed to be dangerous when in the open, the Presidents' attack is considered potent.

West Virginia has been using the back field combination of Sebulsky, quarter back; Doyle and Bartrug, halves, and Dotson, full back, with much success. In Homer White, quarter back; Brawley, Parriott and Drobeck, sophomore half backs, and "Tarzan" Glenn, veteran full back, also available, the Mountaineers figure to equal the Presidents in back field ability.

An exceptional punting duel is anticipated when Wilson and Bartrug meet in what will be the final home game for the Mountaineer team and the last which Bartrug will play for West Virginia on Mountaineer Field. Last year it was Bartrug's superiority over Wilson with his punting of a muddy ball that figured principally in West Virginia's 6-0 victory over W. and J.

Woodberry-Episcopal Await Annual Battle

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodberry Forest, Va., Nov. 21.—On the eve of the Woodberry-Episcopal High School game, all is ready to settle one of the outstanding games in Virginia this year. Probably no prep school game in the South is quite so important. The teams are evenly matched and are ready for the fray. Alumni from all over the country and Gov. Gardner, of North Carolina, whose son is a star on Woodberry, are here and he and Gov. Pollard, of Virginia, will assist in dedicating Hanes field tomorrow before the game.

Alexandria Celtics to Use Regulars Against Apaches

Virginians Stick to Line-Up Which Has Run Up 133 Points to 13 for Opponents; Expect to Triumph.

RUMORS to the effect that the St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, would pad their line-up for their clash with the Apaches tomorrow at Griffith Stadium definitely were dispelled yesterday when Coach Rube Hayman, of the Saints, announced that the same players who had carried the Celts to victory in their last three games would oppose the District champs.

The Alexandrians are considered to have the best chance in years of knocking the Apaches off next Sunday. Hayman has developed a high-scoring, smooth-working machine which is bound to cause the Apaches plenty of trouble. In four contests so far the Celtics have run up a total of 133 points to a mere 13 for their opponents. Several weeks ago they trounced the strong Seamen Gunners, 20-0, an outfit which last Sunday upset the Northern Redbirds, 6-0.

Outstanding performers with the Virginians this season include Dick Allen, quarter back; Lester McMenamin, Sally Hanback, Eliett Cabell and Buddy Houston, half backs; Rube Hayman, full back; Nick Colosanto and Dan Shields, guards; George Moore, Storm and Jim McQueen, tackles; Billy Padgett and Ralph O'Neill, centers, and Joe Bush, Tony Wood and Bottles Cox, ends.

The Apaches have added two players to their roster this week. They are Johnny Zimosky, former Georgetown University lineman, who was reported to have signed with the Mohawks, and Clinton Price, star end of the Northern Athletic Club last year. With the signing of these players, Manager Hall said last night that the Apaches have completed their personnel.

C. U. PASSERS LIST 22 GAMES

Seven Contests Arranged With D. C. Court Teams.

SEVEN games of strictly local color are included in a schedule of 22 arranged for Catholic University's 1930-31 basket-ball team. Maryland, George Washington, American, Gallaudet, and Benjamin Franklin will be the Cardinals' local opponents. G. W. and American will be met on a home-and-home basis, the Cards playing these teams once each in the Brookland gymnasium and visiting the G. W. courts.

Under the direction of Chick Gagnon, who has supplanted Fred Rice in the coaching role, the Cardinals will open their basket-ball season on December 16, with Maryland State Normal furnishing the opposition in the Brookland gymnasium.

This will be the only home appearance of the Cardinals before the new year, a Northern trip calling for three games being listed in between.

Maryland will invade the Brookland court on February 6. George Washington will be the Cards' guest on January 14, while American will visit on January 19 and Gallaudet on February 4. Gagnon's team will play at American's floor on March 3 and at George Washington's on March 6, this being the concluding game for the Cardinals.

Following is the complete schedule:

December 18, Maryland State Normal at Brookland; 19, Rider College at Trenton, N. J.; 20, Manhattan College at New York City; 22, Knights of Columbus at New York City.

January 8, Benjamin Franklin at Brookland; 10, Geneva College at Brookland; 14, George Washington at Brookland; 17, Loyola at Baltimore; 19, American University at Brookland.

February 4, Gallaudet at Brookland; 6, Maryland at Brookland; 9, Rider College at Brookland; 11, Duquesne at Pittsburgh; 12, Geneva College at Beaver Falls, Pa.; 17, Loyola at Brookland; 19, Baltimore University at Brookland; 23, Seventh Regiment National Guard of New York at Brookland; 25, St. John's at Brooklyn; 27, Seventh Regiment National Guard of New New York at Brooklyn; 28, Seton Hall at South Orange, N. J.

March 3, American at American University; 6, George Washington at George Washington.

SINGLE POINT VICTORY FOR WESTERN

Gonzaga Beaten, 7-6, on Foes' Late Rally Overhead.

BURLY Stan Amidon, battering ram of Western High School's grid team, beat Gonzaga yesterday afternoon at Gonzaga Field by clawing his way over for the fatal extra point which sent the Purple home on the barely short end of a score, 7 to 6.

Western won in dramatic fashion and again by dint of staking everything on its well developed aerial attack. Trailing at 6 to 0 until within reaching distance of the end of the game, Amidon and Webb buried passes all over the lot, two of which plopped into the arms of Webb and Cochran and accounted for a 50-yard run from midfield to the tieing touchdown.

Western's attack was desperate, with penalties coming regularly at the failure of the second consecutive pass. The Red lost 40 yards on passing penalties in the last half.

Ernest Viau, Coach Mitchell's big full back, gave Conzaga its long-lived margin by streaking 52 yards to a touchdown on the second play of the second quarter. Benjamin's try for the fatal extra point failed.

Gonzaga showed a slightly better defense, holding the rushing propensities of Western well. But, on the other hand, Gonzaga could gain little.

Georgetown Frosh Down Maryland U. Cubs, 12 to 0

Young Hilltoppers Score Both Touchdowns in 4th Quarter in 1st Contest Between G. U. and Old Liners in 20 Years.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S Freshmen eleven defeated the yearlings of Maryland University yesterday, 12 to 0, at College Park in the first athletic contest held between the two local rivals in more than 20 years. The Hilltoppers put over two touchdowns in the fourth quarter on a pass of their own and an interception.

The game was fought on a fairly even basis for the first three quarters and three minutes of the last had elapsed when Dick Lutz for Georgetown returned a punt by Knott to the Maryland 44-yard line. A line smash by Lutz and an end run by Trippany placed the ball on the 32-yard line where the Hilltop cubs scored on a pass, Trippany to Small. The latter ran about 18 yards after catching the pass.

Bradley Intercepts Pass for G. U. Touchdown.

Shortly after Maryland received the ensuing kick-off, Bradley intercepted Knott's pass and streaked down the sidelines to the goal 50-yards away. Bradley made the run unmolested as the Old Liners were unable to "cover up" before he got under way.

Maryland made only one threatening gesture, reaching Georgetown's 18-yard line by dint of passing in the second quarter. Aerials from Knott to Rittenhouse and from Sothern to Benner negotiated an advance of 26 yards after a Georgetown fumble had been recovered by an alert Old Line lineman.

HARD DRILLS BY VIRGINIA ELEVEN

Meet N.C.U. Turkey Day; Rival Captains at Prep Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 21. Virginia will practice tomorrow without the presence of Capt. Hunter Motley. The Cavalier leader will go to Woodberry Forest School to attend the dedication of Hanes Field and the football game with Episcopal High School.

Capt. Motley and Capt. Strudwick Nash, of North Carolina, who will also attend the dedication, played together on the Woodberry Team of 1926 that won the State Preparatory School championship. They meet again as former teammates at the alumni reunion tomorrow.

Oppose Each Other on Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving afternoon will find Motley and Nash on the opposing sides of the scrimmage line in the thirty-fifth annual Virginia-Carolina football game. They've played against each other three former seasons, once as freshmen and twice in varsity contests. The first year game was a scoreless tie; the two varsity affairs went to the Tarheels. Motley has hopes, however, that this may be his time to be on a victorious team.

Virginia's varsity is now drilling at top speed in preparation for the fall's finale against the Carolinians. The last strenuous workout is scheduled for tomorrow. After a rest Sunday the men will be permitted to taper off until Thanksgiving.

Virginia's first-year football squad left this afternoon for Chapel Hill, where it will close the season tomorrow afternoon against the North Carolina Freshmen.

Young Cavaliers Have Lost Three Straight.

The young Cavaliers started the fall with a rush by defeating V. M. I., 19 to 6, but after injuries sapped the strength of the squad it lost to Maryland, Washington and Lee, and V. P. I. It hopes to close with a victory over the Carolinians.

Coaches McConnell and Randall will probably start Moore and Bence on the ends, Berger and Coles as tackles, Moncure and Payne in the guards, and Wager at center. Harris will call signals, with Baird and Abramson as half backs, and Adams, who has recovered from an injury in the opening contest, at full back.

V.M.I. and V.P.I. Rule Cross-Country Favorites

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Virginia Military Institute and Virginia Polytechnic were favorites tonight as ten teams awaited the annual conference cross-country run tomorrow.

North Carolina, winner for four consecutive meets, was a dark horse, pinning its hope of a fifth victory on a group of fast but inexperienced youngsters.

Other teams, each consisting of seven runners, will set out over the 5-mile course, represent Georgia Tech, Virginia, Duke, Florida, Washington and Lee, Tennessee, and Georgia.

Tank Eleven Routed By Quantico Marines

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., Nov. 21.—The Quantico Post Team ended a perfect season today by defeating the Fort Meade Tanks, more commonly known as the champions of the Third Corps Area, United States Army, to the tune of 75 to 0. This is the windup of one of the most successful seasons that Quantico has seen, although being defeated by the powerful American Legion eleven in the last two minutes of play.

Bobby Resio was the outstanding player of the Marines, going over the last chalked line four times for touchdowns. Booth and Butler showed fast playing and in the line Byrne, fast end, stopped many Army plays.

Zeher, triple threat man of the Marines, continued his long kicks and passes.

Newark Bull Fight Called Off by Director

Newark, N. J., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—The Toreador song became a swan song today when William J. Eagan, director of public safety, called off the widely heralded bullfight after receiving protests from all over the country.

A State law prohibiting the baiting of animals was given by Egan as the reason for cancelling the event, scheduled for November 30. He said he permit for an exhibition of that kind would be given and the possibility of unforeseen accidents was too great.

He pointed out that Sidney Franklin, who fought bulls in Spain, might have to kill the bull to save his own skin. Franklin comes from Brooklyn.

ALEXANDRIA HIGH WINS, 19 TO 0

Culpeper Team Bows as Twins Specialize in Line Bucks.

CULPEPER, Va., Nov. 21.—Alexandria High School today defeated Culpeper High School, 19 to 0, completely outclassing the Culpeper boys, both on the offensive and defensive. Few outstanding gains were made by either side, but the Alexandrians gained consistently through the line, making from 1 to 5 yards on nearly every play, while the Culpeper boys made only about three first downs.

Lindsay made the first touchdown for Alexandria, advancing the ball about one-half yard through the line after Luckett had made a good gain on a forward pass from Haywood. The try for the extra point on this play failed.

The second touchdown was made by Luckett, the Alexandria quarter back, on a pass from Routzahn, the left half.

Travers made the third touchdown, going through center for 8 yards, and Lindsay made an extra point with a placement kick.

Humphries was the biggest ground-gainer for Culpeper, running the ball back 40 yards from the kick-off in the second half, and intercepting two of the visitors' forward passes, making substantial gains on both plays. His gains through the line were also good and Coach Miller, of Alexandria, said that Humphries was an unusually good high school back. Huffman, Culpeper big tackle, was the defensive star, stopping many of the Alexandria plays.

Cochran Increases 18.1 Lead Over Hoppe

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Welker Cochran, the Hollywood, Calif., challenger, increased his lead over Willie Hoppe, the titleholder, tonight by winning the tenth block of their match for the 18.1 balkline billiards championship, 30 to 279. Cochran now has a margin of 3,000 to 2,267.

In this afternoon's ninth block, Hoppe, in his best form of the match, beat Cochran in nine innings, 549 to 300. Hoppe had high run of 160 and another of 118.

"Yells" of La. State Protested by Women

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Resolutions protesting football yells at Louisiana State University were adopted today by the Women's Missionary Union of the Judson Baptist Association. Ministers were asked in the resolutions to join in the protest.

The women were asked what yells were objectionable. They replied they would not repeat "usch words."

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 21.—Alexandria High School basketers will begin active training for the 1930-31 season on December 1, it was stated today by Athletic Director Maurice Given.

Only two veterans, Hugh Travers and Louis Schriener, are out for the varsity squad. Travers made the all-District team last year as a guard, while Schriener is a flashy forward. Much is expected of him this season.

The "Twins" have a tough schedule. They will play around 26 games.

Manager Ruocco, of the Iroquois Athletic Club, has arranged a contest with the G. O. P. Federals to be played on Guckert's Field Sunday.

"We will stick to our regular line-up for the game with the Apaches," Rube Hayman, St. Mary's Celtics coach said today. "This is our big game of the season and we hope to come out with a victory."

Buses will leave Baggett's Stadium at 1 o'clock to convey Alexandria fans to the battle, which, by the way, will be played in Griffith's Stadium. Judging from reports, around 1,200 Alexandrians will see the fray.

The Virginia Juniors are after a contest for Sunday. They will meet the Apache Cubs on Thanksgiving Day.

The St. Mary's Celtics Baseball Team tendered a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Bussey Brenner last night at the residence of Mrs. Ruth Kidwell, 1424 Duke street. Brenner was just recently married. He plays short stop on the Green and Gold Team. A handsome floor lamp was presented the couple by Coach-elect Art Dudlow, of the 1930 team.

"BIG" GAMES FEW TODAY IN DIXIE

5 S. I. A. A. Contests, 2 Conference Ones on Program.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Most of the heavier guns along the Southern gridiron front will be silent tomorrow as the lighter Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association artillery carries on the battle of passes and punts.

Five S. I. A. A. engagements are booked, with five other association teams playing outside the loop. Two games are arranged between Southern Conference teams with three other elevens playing nonconference foes.

At Nashville, Tenn., Vanderbilt and Auburn resume a rivalry dating back to 1893, with Vanderbilt a heavy favorite. North Carolina State and South Carolina come to grips at Columbia, S. C., in the last game of the year for the North State Wolf Pack.

North Carolina State Ends Season Today.

Centenary, one of the few unbeaten teams in the S. I. A. A., risks its record against Louisiana Tech. Other association games bring together Eastern and Western Kentucky at Richmond; Wofford and Erskne at Spartanburg, S. C.; Southern and Stetson at Deland, Fla., and Birmingham Southern and Howard in their annual clash at Birmingham, Ala.

Centre travels to Manhattan, Kans., to face Kansas Aggies, a team coached by the Praying Colonel's former star quarter back, Bo McMillan. Randolph-Macon engages Drexel in Philadelphia. Maryland hopes to avenge its defeat by the Navy in their last meeting in 1917 as these teams meet at Annapolis.

Sewanee closes its season against Southwestern in Memphis, Tenn., and Duke continues its drive for State honors against Wake Forest at Wake Forest, N. C. Other games include Mercer and Oglethorpe at Macon, Ga.; the Citadel and Furman at Greenville, S. C., and Louisville and Earlham at Louisville, Ky.

MARYLAND'S BIG TEAM.

Eight of the Maryland football players stand 6 feet or more in height. The team averages 176 pounds in weight.

W. MARYLAND READY FOR ALBRIGHT

Reading Team Earns Respect of East's Unbeaten Club.

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 21.—Yesterday found the Green Terror's eleven in the midst of very energetic preparations for the game with Albright at Reading, Pa., tomorrow. That the Terrors are holding Albright in great respect is evidenced by the fact that Head Coach "Dick" Harlow has scouted the Reading team in every game they've played this season.

Albright has been the only aggregation to receive such attention from Harlow, who rates them above Maryland in order of tough assignments for the Green Terror eleven.

"Doggie" Julian's gridiron charges at Albright have built up an enviable reputation. Last year they came out third best of the high scorers in the East, scoring a total of 276 points in the nine games played. Out of the seven battles played so far this season they have dropped only one, taking the last five in a row with ease. Among their victims is listed the strong Davis-Elkins outfit who went down in defeat before the Readingsters two weeks ago.

Harlow to Use Same Line-Up.

Harlow will probably use the same line-up against Albright that met St. Mary's in the annual homecoming game in Westminster and kept the bacon home—last Saturday, earning a 33-0 victory. Harold Kopp, sophomore full back, furnished ample proof, if proof were needed, that he can hold down his berth to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Capt. Paul Bates displayed his usual end plays, playing par excellence on both offense and defense. This is one Maryland gridman who seems to be pointed on the path to All-American glory this year. Picked for last season's All-Maryland eleven, the All-Eastern and the All-American second team as chosen by the United Press, Bates is easily the outstanding football light in the State of Maryland this year.

After tapering off a bit toward the end of last season, Floyd (Goose) Doughty has staged a real comeback during the current campaign. He has become the best triple threat man which Western Maryland has ever known, passing, punting and galloping around the flanks to carve a real name for himself in football history.

Perkins, Glass High Back, Out for Season

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 21.—Frank Perkins, half back on the Glass High School Team, who was counted upon to share the half back burden during the remaining three games of the season, is out again and will not be able to play this year. He suffered another fracture of his collarbone while at practice, this being the third time he has fractured that bone this season. Last year after playing three games Perkins fractured a leg and was out the rest of the season.

HANDLEY HIGH WINS.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 21.—Handley High School swamped Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, 26 to 0, here today. Clark and M. Garber, featured in line drives for Handley, while T. Brown's defensive work was best for Randolph-Macon. Handley scored 20 points in the second period and 6 in the third quarter.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS LED BY RAIL GROUP

Several Issues Close 2 to 5 Points Higher, Despite Late Profit Taking.

AMERICAN TOBACCO UP

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Stocks, wheat and corn all took courage from the absence of important selling pressure today and moved rather confidently higher.

Shorts in the railroad shares got a red light in the last 15 minutes of trading on the stock exchange. They backed up so hurriedly that those issues piled up the best gains in weeks and the entire market was jolted out of a profit-taking decline. Final prices were 1 to 5 points up, which meant a new high for the recovery.

The later rally in rails came swiftly and mysteriously, sending several of the stocks 2 to 5 points higher. It was based, perhaps, on a belief that October earnings, now beginning to appear, would show considerable improvement over September. Chesapeake & Ohio, one of the first to report, disclosed a small gain in net operating income over October of last year. In addition, a financial news agency carried an announcement that Western carriers had been holding conferences in regard to a move for higher rates, a development which confirmed a growing belief that the railroads were contemplating a stand in their own behalf.

Accretions to the list of bank closings in the interior failed to cause a ripple in stock market quarters. Other news that might have been construed as unfavorable included a decline in construction contracts for the week ended November 14, a sharp gain in commercial failures for this week and the inability of the weekly trade reviews to report much, if any, tangible improvement.

Rails Halt Profit Taking.

The stock market, however, seemed committed to the advance. Prices displayed familiar heaviness in the early dealings, but soon were back on the upgrade, with U. S. Steel, American Telephone and American Can reaching new highs for the rally. Motor and accessory shares, as well as specialties and chemicals, figured prominently in the movement which reached its peak at midafternoon. Profit taking in the last hour was quickly arrested by the strength of the rails and the entire market was again on the rise at the close, although final prices for the industrials and utilities were under the day's best figures.

The improvement in wheat futures, amounting to slightly more than a cent a bushel on the average, was reported to have been accomplished with little or no help from stabilization buying. Export demand was better and the market was also helped by unfavorable weather in Argentina. Corn gained about a cent in response to smaller receipts and firm Southwest markets. Cotton here was a trifle easy, closing unchanged to 9 points lower.

Dun's review on business said it was encouraging that sentiment had made some gains, "largely in response to improved financial markets." It added that "the adjustments which are being quoted upon to establish an effective basis for ultimate recovery are proceeding steadily." In Bradstreet's opinion, warm weather during the week affected retail sales adversely, while some setbacks in industry seemed to "fairly balance what forward movements have developed."

B. & O. Gains 5 Points.

The spectacular rally by the rails had the appearance of a professional move. Shorts who sought to cover found offerings scarce and had to bid actively. New York Central shot up 5 points to 140, but quickly lost half its rise. However, Lackawanna, Pere Marquette and Baltimore & Ohio closed 5 points higher, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Union Pacific, New Haven, Alleghany Corporation, Chesapeake Corporation, Erie and Missouri Pacific were up 2 to 3 and Atchison and Delaware & Hudson 4. St. Louis Southwestern preferred failed to recover from a 15½-point break that sent it to a new low.

United States Steel's top price was 149½ and the final quotation of 148¾ represented a net advance of 1¼. General Electric, Du Pont, International Harvester, American Water Works, International Telephone, North American, Montgomery Ward, Bethlehem Steel and American Tobacco "B" gained 1 to 1¾ net. Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Simmons, Allied Chemical, American Can, Eastman Kodak and Vanadium 2 to 3, and J. I. Case 5.

Trading was light until the last half hour and total sales aggregated only 2,244,610 shares.

London exchange rates sagged, cables easing about an eighth of a cent. The Spanish peseta was soft.

With the association Mr. White served as member of the committee of commercial trades activities for four years, 1925-26 and 1928-29. For two years he was vice president for the National Bank section of the American Bankers Association, 1927-28 and 1930-31. From 1929 to 1930, he served as a member of the protective committee and for 1930-31 as chairman of auditor's section and member of the credit bureau committee. He has also served on resolutions and other special committees.

Canadian Sugar Beet Plant Planned, Claim

Winnipeg, Nov. 21 (A.P.). — The Winnipeg Free Press today said: "Announcement of the establishment of a sugar beet plant in Manitoba, costing $1,500,000, is expected with the visit to the city November 28 of executive officials of the American Sugar Beet Co., of Denver, Colo.

"While confirmation of the report could not be obtained from the Industrial Development Board of Manitoba today, unofficially it was learned the company has definitely decided to extend its business to Canada by the erection of a huge plant to employ several hundred men here. Experiments with the growing of sugar beets in Manitoba, conducted during the past summer, have proved highly satisfactory, it is stated."

DANVILLE INFORMED STRIKE IS NEAR END

Peace in Three Weeks Now Predicted as Dynamite Shakes Two Homes.

WORKER'S HOUSE FIRED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 21.—Two dynamitings, with arrests made, an incendiary fire and word running through Danville's business district that the textile strike probably would be over in three weeks were outstanding features of the labor tie-up today.

Two bombs, tossed into the yard of James Swann, Negro worker in the mills, tore a hole in the earth but failed to damage the house. Four men were arrested by State police half an hour later in an empty filling station. They were R. I. Cook, C. B. Barrow, L. L. Yates and Floyd Setliffe, all union men according to Chief of Police Cole, of Schoolfield. Swann is alleged to have identified the alleged dynamiter.

Shortly after these arrests, Dan Setliffe was arrested at his home charged with possessing dynamite. Police Detective J. C. Lewis says he witnessed the purchase by Setliffe of ten sticks of dynamite yesterday at the Danville Hardware Co. Setliffe, in making the purchase, gave the name of D. B. Surler and said he needed the dynamite to blast a well, according to Lewis.

Commonwealth's Attorney P. J. Hundley, of Pittsylvania County, will determine tomorrow whether he will ask for a special grand jury. Under the Virginia code conviction on the charge of dynamiting a dwelling at night may be punished by death.

The house of J. G. Seay, whose dependents work in the mill, was set on fire last night, but the fire was soon put out. Police found signs of kerosene on the building. The home of Ed Lillie, nonunion worker, also was shaken by a dynamite blast.

From a source close to the mill management today it was learned that this week's pay roll at the mill will be larger than that of the week preceding the strike.

Reports bearing on the termination of the strike have been circulated in connection with the employment of more people in the mills and arrangements to meet current liabilities for foodstuffs with which the strikers are being supplied.

Harvey Boyter, who yesterday went to jail in default of paying a fine of $50 for intimidating a nonunion worker is to offer additional testimony in police court tomorrow. Convicted of a second offense a few days ago and ordered to jail for ten days, Boyter asked that the case be reopened and that he be permitted to offer further testimony.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

International Telephone.

H. L. O.—I have been holding on to International Telephone. Please enlighten me as to the outlook for the shares.

Answer—International Telephone is one of the few stocks which failed to reach a new low this month when the rest of the market was decidedly weak and registered a new bottom level. The company is expected to earn its $2 dividend this year, even if by a scant margin. Considering its steady decline from a high of 140¼, reached last year, to the low of 25½ this year, reached in October, the stock is regarded as being thoroughly liquidated.

The company, with its controlled properties, supplies telephone service in 9 countries and electric communication of various type to 47 countries. In addition, it is one of the leading telegraph, cable and radio operators in the world, and while near-term prospects may be somewhat uncertain, the long-term outlook for the stock is considered good.

Borden.

K. G.—I am thinking of investing some funds in Borden, but before doing so I would like some advice from you.

Answer—The stock, argund its current price, offers good investment value and a yield of about 4½ per cent, which is supplemented now and then with rights and stock dividends. Operations are carried on in the United States, Canada, England, continental Europe and South and Central America.

Expansion has been rapid in recent years. Earnings this year may reach $6, which would compare with $5.50 last year. Dividends distributed are $3 a year and a 3 per cent stock dividend was paid last January. Borden is in good shape financially, with $7,484,109 cash and $11,883,373 marketable securities, as of December 31 last.

Texon Oil & Land; Eisler.

H. J. T.—Would like a late report on Texon Oil & Land, also on Eisler Electric.

Answer—Latest report of Texon Oil & Land, that for year ended December 31, 1929, showed net income of $2,494,963, or $2.64 a share. Last previous report showed net of $546,793, for year ended March 31, 1928. Earnings gain in 1929 was due to a 5 per cent increase in production and a 30 per cent reduction in expenses. Financial condition at close of 1929 was excellent. Current assets were $5,454,866, of which cash and call loans were $4,995,537, while current liabilities were only $294,676, leaving net working capital of $5,160,190. On August 27, 1930, directors declared an extra of $3 a share and regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common.

Initial dividend on no-par common of 25 cents was paid July, 1930. Eisler Electric reported for six months ended June 30, 1930, net income of $20,619, equal to 7 cents a common share. This compares with net of $600,221, or $3 a common share, for corresponding period in preceding year. An initial quarterly dividend of 37½ cents was paid February 28, 1930; a similar dividend was disbursed June 14, 1930. Dividend due September 14, 1930, was passed. On June 30 current assets were more than five times current liabilities.

Hoe & Co.

J. A.—Will you please give me some information concerning the stock of the Hoe (R.) & Co., Inc., what dividends are paid and if you would consider the stock a good investment?

Answer—Class "A" stock listed on New York Stock Exchange, but very inactive. By no means looked upon as a good investment, as no dividends are now being paid on issue. In fact, none paid since October 15, 1925. However, owing to a substantial increase in volume of company's business over previous year, operations for 1929 showed net profit of $609,478, equivalent to $6.35 a class "A" and $1.27 a common share, compared with net loss of $79,281 for 1928, equal to deficits of 83 cents and $2.90, respectively, on class "A" and common shares.

Stated that economies possible from operations at company's new plant are expected to be reflected in earnings for 1930. Nevertheless, since incorporation of present company in 1924 generally unsatisfactory earnings have been reported. Net in first half of 1930 equaled $2.05 a class "A" share, comparing with $2.11 in corresponding 1929 period.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership for $231,000, an increase of $5,000 from the previous sale.

Thompson Products Corporation has received an order for 200,000 automobile valves from the International Harvester Co. Other large orders received recently were from Chrysler, Marmon and Oakland. The firm reports sales of replacement parts slightly on the increase and export orders steady.

Directors of Armour & Co. of Delaware and of Illinois, declared today the usual dividends of $1.75 per share on the preferred stock of the two companies, payable January 2 to stockholders of record December 10.

Cotton goods were quiet today, with prices easier on Gray cloths. Printed wash goods were selling moderately. Rayon guarantees to hold prices 60 days are now general. Demand for rayon yarns was light. Wool goods were slow and dress goods less active. Burlaps were steady and in light demand. Raw silk was quiet. Cables showed 109,770 bales of raw silk held by Japan government, and 27,950 in free stock in Japan. Silk goods were quiet.

Raw silk futures closed firm; sales, 1,280 bales; December, 230; March, 228; May, 226. Open market quotations (60-day basis), Shanghai, steam extra B, 275; Canton, double extra A, 14-16s, 190; Japanese crack double extra, 265.

Commercial failures for the week totaled 569, contrasting sharply last week's total of 495, and the 472 defaults for the corresponding week a year ago, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. Except in the West, where there was a reduction of 13, failures increased in each geographical section this week over last week's figure. The rise in the East and the South being especially pronounced. Compared with returns for a year ago, increases were shown in every section.

William C. McDuffie, president of Pacific Western Oil Corporation, said that the action of Richfield Oil Co. in cancelling crude oil purchase contracts does not affect Pacific Western's contract, which is noncancellable, with eight years yet to run.

Control of Crown Central Petroleum Corporation, which operates oil producing, refining and pipe line systems in the Southwest, has been acquired by the Blaustein interests of Baltimore. Louis Blaustein, president of the American Oil Co., will become chairman of the board of Crown Central. W. A. Williams will continue as president. The announcement stated that control of Crown Central was acquired in behalf of the Blaustein interests individually, and not for the American Oil Co.

J. Edward Jones, of New York, has acquired control of the Royalty Corporation of America and the Tri-State Royalty Corporation, both with headquarters in Tulsa, Okla., through purchase of the stock holdings of W. E. Brown, president of both corporations, and his associates. The two companies have royalty interests in more than 125,000 acres of oil lands in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and New Mexico. Mr. Jones is to take over the management immediately and plans to move the offices to New York. Both corporations have stockholders in Buffalo, N. Y., and New England.

Stone & Webster, Inc., today reported for the twelve months ended September 30 consolidated net profit of $6,901,714, equal to $3.70 a share on the average number of common shares outstanding during the period. In addition, a profit of $794,844 for the period, realized from the sale of securities acquired from the predecessor company on organizing, was carried direct to surplus. Including this item, total net profit for the period amounted to $6,996,558, or 4.17 a share.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., for the 28 weeks ended July 12 reported net loss of $657,090, including profits and loss credits of $96,736, representing income on pictures which previously were the subject of charges to surplus or special reserve because of excess book values as of April 21, 1928. This compares with net profit of $524,336 in the 28 weeks ended July 13 last year.

Rather nervous and irregular fluctuations have occurred in the cotton market during the past week with declines at the beginning of the period reflecting liquidation and increased selling which appeared to result from the unsettling influence of developments in the wheat market, the liquidation of December contracts in preparation for possible notices on Monday that labor disputes were developing in the British railroading and coal mining situations. Offerings were absorbed by covering and a renewal of trade buying on the decline and slight rallies followed, but the near month liquidation continued and the reports of small bank suspensions in the South had an unsettling effect on sentiment. These factors evidently restricted demand, while the bulges met increased offerings from one source or another and prices toward the end of the week worked still lower. Generally speaking, business was only of moderate volume and much of it was in the form of exchanges from December to later positions or otherwise connected with the December liquidation. The original expectation in the trade here appeared to be that a good many notices would be issued on Monday, but there was such heavy switching from December to later deliveries at the existing differences that expectations of this character were modified to some extent later in the week.

The Cuban Mill Owners Association today reported sugar exports for the week ending November 15 totaled 107,000 tons, the highest of any week during the year excepting the four weeks from April 19 to May 17. The total included 12,000 tons to the United Kingdom. Receipts also were heavy, amounting to 84,000 tons, and stocks at Cuban ports now total about 987,000 tons. The local market was entirely inactive, no sales being reported during that week.

Directors of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co. today omitted the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the preferred stock.

BROKER, WORRIED BY BUSINESS, ENDS LIFE AT HIS HOME

James R. Ellerson, Jr., 39, Leaves Farewell Note and Shoots Self.

HAD CLOSED OFFICE TO JOIN EASTMAN, DILLON

Mother and Brother Survive Victim, Who Was Well Known in Society.

James R. Ellerson, jr., 39 years old, socially prominent real estate broker, committed suicide yesterday in his home on R street near Twenty-first street northwest. Business reverses are given by relatives as the reason for his act.

In a pocket of his coat was a letter addressed to his mother, and brother, Dr. Edmund M. Ellerson. Neither would divulge the nature of the message except to say that it was a farewell note.

Acting Coroner Joseph D. Rodgers said that he would issue a certificate of suicide.

The broker had removed all the covering from a bed on the third floor of the Ellerson home. He was fully clothed when found by William Prayer, a colored butler in the Ellerson home.

Gun Bought Yesterday.

Mrs. Ellerson, the victim's mother, had returned from services at St. Albans. The family houseman was sent to his room when Mrs. Ellerson failed to receive a response to her call.

In Ellerson's right hand was a 38-caliber revolver. One shell had been discharged which went through his skull and imbedded itself in a wall.

Detective Sergeant Joseph Waldron, who investigated, found a box which had contained a pistol. The gun had been purchased by Mr. Ellerson earlier in the day, police learned.

Ellerson was a member of a prominent Fredericksburg, Va., family. He had only recently closed his real estate office, operated under the name of Ellerson & Wemple, as established by his father, to become associated with Eastman, Dillon & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange with offices in Washington.

Conferred on Position.

The house in which Ellerson shot himself was the family residence for many years. During the World War it was considerably damaged by a bomb planted next door at the home then of Attorney General Mitchell A. Palmer.

Mr. Ellerson is reported to have conferred yesterday with officials of the local branch of the Eastman, Dillon & Co. regarding a new position. He was educated at Woodbury Forest School at Orange, Va.

He is survived by his mother and brother, Dr. Ellerson, of Washington. Mr. Ellerson was unmarried.

Belvedere Apartments To Be Sold at Auction

The eight-story Belvedere Apartment Building, at 1301 Massachusetts avenue northwest, will be offered for sale by the trustees at public auction at 920 Pennsylvania avenue northwest December 2. The property will be offered subject to a prior deed of trust for $465,000. Peter A. Drury and Austin C. Waller are the trustees.

The building, of reinforced concrete, brick and terra cotta, contains 112 apartments and was erected in 1923 for the Edmund Burke Corporation by R. P. Whitty. B. Stanley Simmonds was the architect. The estimated cost was $625,000. District building records show it to have been owned successively by the Burke Corporation, Azrael Furr, Lewis W. Hirsch, Harry D. Nicholson, Lewis W. Hirsch and the Colonial Trust Co., Inc.

All Boy Scouts in the District council are eligible to participate in the annual bugler contest to be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Wilson Normal School, according to an announcement issued yesterday by Boy Scout headquarters. In addition to being designated as the official bugler for the council during the new year, the winner of the contest will receive a silver bugle. The second place winner will be given a bugle cover.

Calls used in the contest will be chosen from among sixteen specified bugle calls.

Thirty-Year Sentence Assessed Over Slaying

Harry Brown, Negro, who was convicted several days ago on a charge of second degree murder in connection with the death of James P. Taylor, Negro, was sentenced by Justice Oscar R. Luhring, in District Supreme Court yesterday, to serve 30 years in the penitentiary.

Brown, according to testimony, stabbed Taylor to death during a quarrel over the latter's wife, at a house on B street northeast, near Fifteenth street, last August 1. Brown was indicted and tried on a first degree murder count.

Stationery Firm Named In Bankruptcy Petition

Involuntary bankruptcy action was instituted yesterday in District Supreme Court against Livingston, Inc., stationers, of 930 H street northwest.

Three creditors, Wilson-Jones Co., Inc., of Chicago; Borum & Pease Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Sainberg & Co., Inc., of New York City, appear as petitioners. They allege that the local company has committed an act of bankruptcy by showing preference to a creditor. Attorneys Musgrave & Sightler appear for the petitioners.

Child Suffers Burns While Starting Fire

While making a fire with kerosene at her home at 3102 M street northwest, early yesterday morning, Annie Corbin, 13 years old, was seriously burned about the face and neck when her clothing caught fire.

Members of the family extinguished the flames and called for an ambulance from Emergency Hospital. The girl was taken to that institution, where she remained after receiving treatment. Her condition was not considered as serious.

MACARTHUR GETS RANK FLAG

M'ARTHUR SWORN IN AS CHIEF OF STAFF

One of Youngest to Hold Post Takes Oath in Hurley's Office.

ONLY 50 YEARS OF AGE

Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who commanded the Rainbow Division in the closing days of the World War, earning two American and five foreign decorations for gallantary and distinguished service was sworn in as chief of staff of the Army yesterday, succeeding Gen. Charles P. Summerall, whose four-year term of office has expired. Gen. MacArthur is 50 years old and one of the youngest officers to attain the highest post in the Army, the temporary rank of a full, four-star general.

The ceremony took place in the office of Secretary of War Hurley in the presence of the assistant secretaries and staff officers, the oath being administered by Maj. Gen. Edward A. Kreger, judge advocate general.

Is Son of General.

"You are succeeding a man with an unusually brilliant record," said Secretary Hurley in congratulating the new chief of staff, "but your own brilliant career in the Army gives assurance that you will uphold the high standard set for you in this office."

Gen. MacArthur, who is the son of the late Lieut. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, a medal of honor man of the Civil War and veteran leader for American forces in the War with Spain and the Philippine Insurrection, graduated from West Point with the highest honors of his class in 1903. He served continuously in Engineer Corps, including a tour of duty as assistant of the engineering officer in the Vera Cruz campaign until 1917.

Was West Point Head.

In August, 1917, he was made colonel of infantry in the national Army and went overseas on the staff of the Forty-second (Rainbow) Division, being wounded at Neuvilley early in 1918. Quick recovery saw him in command of a brigade of the Rainbow Division, again sustaining a wound at Exermont in October. He assumed command of the division early in November and led into the Sedan campaign and into Germany.

After the war he served, with the rank of brigadier general, as superintendent of the Military Academy and as commander of the District of Manila in the Philippines. He was promoted to major general in 1925, and commanded successively the corps areas at Atlanta and Baltimore and the Philippine Department.

His American decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross, with oak leaf cluster, and the Distinguished Service Medal. In addition, he was awarded Silver Star citations for personal gallantry in action and the following foreign decorations: Commander of the Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre, with two palms and a gold star; Italian War Cross, commander of Belgian Order of the Crown, and officer of the Order of Leopold.

MAN SAID TO ADMIT FIVE TAXI HOLDUPS

Police Rouse Virginian From Bed to Arrest Him and Claim Confession.

TRACED BY TELEPHONE

Carroll Ellsworth Burkitt, 27 years old, of U street, near First street northeast, was said by police to have confessed yesterday to robbing of five taxicab drivers here last week of $44.

Burkitt was arrested about 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning while he was sleeping at the home of his mother near Hatfield Station, Va., when Detective Sergts. Michael Dowd, Lawflaherty and Private Joseph Caw surrence O'Dea, Jerry Flatherty and Private Joseph Caw surrounded his home.

According to the detectives, Burkitt readily admitted the thefts, and has given them a detailed statement of his activities. He also admitted being the man who forced Millard Newman, 920 D street southwest, to drive him to Weaverton, Md., about 40 miles from the District and hand over $20, police say.

List of Victims.

Those whom Burkitt is said to have admitted robbing were Victon Knott, 807 F street northeast; Themistocles Plakos, 710 F street northeast; Thomas W. Anglin, 1411 Eighth street, and Joseph Perrone, 1102 Seventh street southwest. He denied holding up Charles Lettow, 13 Evart street northeast.

Police say that the man was traced through the keen memory of a cab driver who remembered dialing a telephone number for Burkitt while he had him as a fare. The driver, whose name police did not reveal, was said to have reported that the man was suspicious looking, and that he had taken him to Anacostia and back downtown about midnight last Friday.

After reading the bandit's description in the newspapers the driver was said to have communicated with police, telling them the man's description fitted that of the person he had driven to Anacostia, and also telling them the telephone number he had dialed for him. The number was traced to an apartment on Seventeenth street, and police lay in wait for him there.

Police Raid Apartment.

After several hours of waiting without results, the apartment where the call was answered was raided and four persons taken and held for questioning. Those arrested were: David Kaplan, 28 years old, of Seventh street near O street; Ruth Myers, 24 years old, Hebe Dantilo, 28 years old, and Dorothy Keyes, 23 years old, all of Willard Court northwest.

From them it was learned where Burkitt's mother lived, and through her the police learned of the Virginia address where Burkitt was subsequently arrested.

Police say that two of the drivers have identified the man as being the well-dressed person who held up and robbed them. It also was learned that Burkitt had been a taxi driver himself until a few weeks ago.

PYROMANIAC IS HELD INSANE BY ALIENIST

Second Confessed Firebug Put Under Observation by Mental Expert.

FIRE SET CAUSED DEATH

One of two suspected pyromaniacs, apprehended recently, was declared insane yesterday while the other was placed under the observation of Dr. D. Percy Hickling, District alienist. Both dispositions were made by Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court.

Lingan A. Butler, 47 years old, former employe of the Hub Furniture Co., who is under indictment on two charges of arson in connection with two recent fires at the company's warehouse on North Capitol street, was adjudged insane by a lunacy jury. Justice Luhring committed him to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Entered Guilty Plea.

James Hickson Williams, Negro, who pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree murder and four charges of arson as a result of fires in three apartment houses and a combination store-dwelling, faced Justice Luhring for sentence, but the justice declined to send the man to jail until after he had undergone mental examination. Dr. Hickling was authorized to make the examination.

Williams is charged with setting fire to the Denver Apartments, Fourteenth and Chapin streets northwest, a tenant, lost her life in the blaze and as a result the Negro was indicted on a charge of first degree murder. However, he was permitted to plead guilty to a charge of second degree murder.

Arrest Follows Blaze.

The Negro also pleaded guilty to firing the Denver Apartments and to charges of arson in connection with fires at an apartment at 1840 Varnum street northwest, the Balfour Apartments, 2000 Sixteenth street northwest, and a vacant store-dwelling at 2204 Fourteenth street northwest. He was arrested at the Balfour Apartments while rushing through the halls crying "Fire!"

Butler was arrested shortly after the fire which destroyed the Hub Co.'s warehouse, September 24, and is believed to have confessed to firing the warehouse on July 29. He was indicted in connection with both fires.

His hearing yesterday followed action of the court in asking Dr. Hickling to examine the man. At the hearing yesterday the alienist testified that the man is suffering from a mild form of dementia praecox.

Assistant United States Attorney Irving Goldstein appeared for the Government in both the Butler and Williams cases.

Round-Trip Plane Rates To New York Reduced

Reduction of rates on the New York, Philadelphia and Washington Airway Corporation, effective Monday, were announced yesterday by C. T. Ludington, chairman of the corporation's board, following a meeting of the board in its offices in the Washington Building.

"The new schedule of rates offers round trip passage between Washington and New York below the cost of rail plus Pullman accommodations," declared Miss Amelia Earhart, vice president of the company, in commenting on the action. "Since the line has been operating at approximately 95 per cent capacity since its inception, it is now considered advisable to introduce the new scale of prices that are said to be much lower than those available for the same distances even on government subsidized European lines."

Capital Baker Obtains License in New York

John German, 48 years old, proprietor of a bakery, of 4821 Georgia avenue northwest, and Miss Lottie Ellen Casady, 34 years old, who gave the same address, yesterday obtained a license in New York City for a marriage they said would be performed there.

Mr. German was divorced from his first wife in 1928. Miss Casady is a native of Harrisonburg, Va., the daughter of Jacob and Anna Gladwell Casady.

COL. DANIEL J. CARR DIES ON FRENCH TRIP

Retired Army Officer From Washington Succumbs While in Nice.

SAW FOREIGN SERVICE

Col. Daniel J. Carr, U. S. Army, retired, of 1809 Varnum street northwest, widely known in service circles here, died suddenly Thursday night in Nice, France, according to Associated Press dispatches last night.

Col. Carr, whose seventieth birthday would have fallen on next Tuesday, left Washington in apparently splendid health about a month ago for a pleasure trip to the French Riviera. He had planned to return here in a few weeks.

The news dispatch was the first information of the death conveyed to the widow, Mrs. Helen T. Carr, who remained at home here with the two daughters, Miss Helen Carr and Miss Catherine Carr. Two sons, Daniel and James Carr, are attending Swaveley School in nearby Virginia preparing for entrance to West Point.

Col. Carr, a native of Connecticut, entered the Signal Corps as a young man and remained in that branch of service continuously until his retirement on November 25, 1924. He attended Columbian College, now George Washington University, and obtained the bachelor of laws degree in 1896 and the master of laws degree in 1896.

He saw service in Cuba during the Spanish American War, and later served in the Philippines. He was on duty at various intervals in the office of the chief signal officer of the War Department here, and at the time of his retirement.

MRS. LILY CLEMENTS DIES.

Services for Deceased Will Be Held at Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Lily M. L. Clements, widow of John H. Clements, of St. Louis, Mo., and a resident of Washington for several years, died early yesterday morning at her residence, 2101 Sixteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Clements was born in St. Louis in 1856. She came to Washington from New York, where she made her home for a number of years. The survivors are two daughters, Mrs. G. Fuller Winters, of this city, and Mrs. Frank Grant Crowell, of Kansas City, Mo. Both daughters were with Mrs. Clements at the time of her death. Services and interment are to be held in Kansas City, Mo.

Countess Is Defendant In Suit Over $1,611 Bill

Countess J. D. DeBenque, of 2430 Wyoming avenue northwest, was named defendant in a suit filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by Rizik Brothers, of 1213 F street northwest, operators of a ladies' clothing establishment. The plaintiff seeks to recover $1,611.92, which is claimed to represent the unpaid balance of an open account.

In an attached bill of particulars, the plaintiff asserts that the countess opened an account in January, 1925, and the total of her purchases amounted to $8,891.32. This figure, however, was reduced by payments and credits to the amount sued for, the bill sets out. Attorney Fred S. Rizik appears for the firm.

Coast Schools' Alumni To Hear Western Game

Graduates of the University of California and Stanford University will attend a dinner at Meridian Mansions at 6 o'clock this afternoon to hear radio reports on the football game between the two institutions at Berkeley, Calif. About 230 Stanford alumni are in Washington, while graduates of the older university in and about the city are said to number even more.

In addition to President and Mrs. Hoover, Stanford's local alumni include Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business; Senators McNary and Hayden, and a half dozen or more representatives. Among California's alumni are Senator Hiram Johnson, seven years Governor of California, and Representative Kahn.

Thieves Get $7 From Club.

Thieves who broke into the clubhouse of the Red Triangle Outing Club on the Potomac River at Newcut road northwest, secured $7 in cash, police of the Seventh Precinct were told last night. Members of the club were making a further check to determine the full extent of the loss.

Jury in Shore Case Learns How to Tell 'Pure Scotch'

Also Informed by Expert That Even in Days Before Volstead, Gin Was Mostly Synthetic; Closing of Trial Expected This Forenoon.

Jurors in the District Supreme Court who are trying Frank Shore, former operator of a tire shop at 1223 New York avenue northwest, on the charge of violating the customs laws in connection with the alleged importation of intoxicants were treated to a dissertation yesterday on the ways and means of telling pure Scotch and Irish liquor. They also were told that even before prohibition gin was mostly synthetic—just as post-Volstead days.

These were the features of the day's sessions, although other developments included the close of the Government's case, the overruling of the defense's motion for a directed verdict, the decision of the defense to present no testimony and the understanding that arguments will be limited so the case can go to the jury around 10 o'clock this morning.

Counsel agreed on an hour for argument, which, since the defense offered no testimony, will give it the opening and closing pleas. Justice Jesse C. Adkins is presiding.

The same array of choice liquors—or choicely labeled liquors—again was put in view of the jurors yesterday. Dr. James L. Young, Government chemist, held the spotlight with his lecture on "Real Imported Liquors, and How to Tell Them."

He spoke with the decisiveness of a connoisseur, describing graphically the differences in the taste of American and European brands of Scotch, Irish and rye. He also explained the various "Eaters" and "Constances" by which their foreign origin could be determined through chemical analysis.

"Now, take Scotch," said the witness. "Scotch, that is made in the hills of Scotland, can be definitely determined not only by its taste—which has a decided flavor of peat—but its chemical properties can be so separated in the laboratory that there can be no question." The witness explained that the use of peat in the distillation of Scotch in the Highlands has been handed down through the ages and that the peaty-smoke flavor permeates the product during distillation.

Thereupon the witness, shown a bottle bearing the label "Alex Ferguson, Leith, Scotland" said, "That's real Scotch liquor." Later this bottle was identified as having come from the trunk seized last January in Shore's tire shop by prohibition agents.

The doctor gave other testimony dealing specifically with the way to make Irish whisky as the Irish do it but was unable to state whether the contents of a bottle shown him actually had been made in Ireland, although he declared it was "pure" Irish whisky and had been distilled according to the inimitable Irish formula.

Other witnesses described the manner in which liquor was smuggled into this country in crocus bags, and identified bags said to have been found in the trunk as fair examples.

Testimony also included the statement by Clifton E. Young, head of the Prohibition Bureau's import department, that no permits for private importation of liquors had been issued since 1921, except for the bringing in of sacramental and medicinal wines.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

BOBBY JONES AND THE PICTURES.

ROBERT INVINCIBLE JONES has retired from competitive golf. It was either that or building a home big enough to hold additional trophies.

• • • •

Bobby will go into the moving picture where the biggest mental hazard will be a check for a quarter of a million or more for twelve sittings.

• • • •

A quarter of a million is a lot of money in many industries but it is not even a full backswing in the flicker trade.

• • • •

The Maharajah of Mashies, High Potentate of the Putter and Ahkoond of Swat will earn a fortune making a dozen pictures, none of which will impose as much strain as would be required to get out of a sand trap and acquire a perfectly useless silver cup.

• • • •

After what Mr. Jones has been through in competitive golf, nothing that Warner Brothers will ask of him can possibly seem any more difficult than sinking a three-inch putt.

• • • •

And a great thing about the movie industry is that when you go through the magnates' bankrolls you are not expected to replace divots.

• • • •

Mr. Jones had to retire from golf on the theory that by becoming a movie actor he would abandon his amateur standing. This is ridiculous. You merely have to attend a few movies to realise that almost without exception the standing of the actors as amateurs is secure.

• • • •

Bobby has always been an amateur in spirit but a pro in skill. He probably could have split hairs and contended that his appearance in twelve How To Play Golf pictures for the American public would not make him a professional golfer. And he very likely would have won out. But Mr. Jones realized that he had no clubs that would make it possible for him to hole out of the ensuing argument.

• • • •

AND Bobby Jones had no more worlds to conquer in golf, anyhow. He had taken all the championships, amateur and open. The old home at Atlanta was so filled with loving cups that he couldn't maintain it much longer without operating his own metal-polish plant.

• • • •

Photographs, flashlight powder, reception committees and cheers had become a bore. And the greatest golfer in the world had reached a point where his reactions after a victorious tournament were those of a mechanical rabbit at the end of the whippet race.

• • • •

To the Emperor Jones it had become a trained seal act, and he was sick of catching all the fish.

• • • •

For twelve years Bobby had toiled over fairway and green for silverware, a helping of chicken a la king, a few bottles of ginger ale and all the country air he could inhale. And now, by a curious contradiction, when he decides to quit the game he automatically becomes able to use thousand-dollar bills for score cards and tape his fingers with certified checks.

• • • •

But it will be a bad thing for America. Merely hearing about Mr. Jones has filled the multitudes with the illusion they might play a good game of golf. When they see these slow-motion lessons they will become crazier than ever.

AND THEY BOAST SOPHISTICATION!

BELIEVE it or not, New York is sensing symptoms of a horseshoe pitching craze. Several stores about the city have been turned into horseshoe pitching establishments, and those falling hardest are reported to be typical New Yorkers.

"Market Drop Finds Everybody Satisfied."—Headline. Oh, yeah?

If sex appeal is necessary in Bobby Jones' pictures, the first name that comes to mind is Lya De Putti.

Wallace Cox reports discovering a fellow who thinks a "blue plate" has something to do with the industrial depression.

It is reported that another movie company, not in the best of financial shape, to say the least, was negotiating with Mr. Jones. It considered him the one man in the world to get it out of a hole.

HENRY OPENS FIGHT TO GET REINSTATED

Ousted Smith Trustee Files Affidavits Accusing His Successor.

SIGNED BY PITTS' GUARDS

Samuel J. Henry, former president of the F. H. Smith Co., who was removed last August as trustee of the Fairfax Apartments, opened his battle for reinstatement yesterday in the District Supreme Court when he filed two affidavits containing sensational charges.

These are signed by Henry and Anthony Senes, former bodyguard of G. Bryan Pitts, one-time head of the board of the Smith Co. Both documents were presented to the court by Attorney Harry S. Barger.

Senes, in his affidavit, charges that the American Security & Trust Co., appointed by the court as substitute trustee, has placed the actual management of the Fairfax in the hands of H. C. Maddux, who is under indictment with Henry and others in connection with alleged use of the mails to defraud in Smith Co. operations.

Henry's removal as trustee followed statements that he was under indictment and that the publicity given to his indictment was injurious to the future success of the Federal Capital Hotel Co., which owns the Fairfax.

Senes avers he was told at the trust company that Maddux was acting as its manager in the management of the Fairfax, and states that when he talked with representatives of Maddux, who is head of the Maddux Hotels, Inc., he was told to communicate with a Mr. La Porte, of the Roosevelt committee for the Protection of Smith Co. Bondholders.

He also declares that at a conference later, attended by Attorney Barger, Mr. La Porte and others, the Roosevelt committee's representative admitted that Maddux is managing not only the Fairfax but also the Cavalier and the New Amsterdam, bonds of which also were sold through the Smith Company.

Henry, in his affidavit, asserts that from information which has just come to his knowledge, "he believes and expects to prove, if afforded the opportunity, that Maddux is managing and conducting the Fairfax and other properties for the trustee under some agreement or arrangement" between them and the so-called Roosevelt bondholders committee.

The former Smith president also tells the court that he is ready to give bond for faithful performance of his duties as trustee, or to act under the orders of the court itself.

UTILITY TO REFUND $830,000 TO PUBLIC

Potomac Electric Power Co. Estimates Amount of Excess Profits.

$102,000 GAIN IS SHOWN

Another conference yesterday between representatives of the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the Public Utilities Commission resulted in agreement on $830,000 as the approximate amount of the company's excess 1930 profits to be refunded to consumers by rate reductions next year.

This was a gain of $102,000 in favor of the public over the sum of $728,000 which the company had estimated as its probable maximum excess, and means that instead of getting its electricity in 1931 at 4 cents per kilowatt-hour, as at first expected, the public should be able to buy current for 3½ cents or less.

The amount of rate reduction is governed by the consent decree issued by the Supreme Court in 1924, ruling that the company must cut its charges sufficiently each year to constitute a refund to its customers of one-half of all earnings in excess of 7½ per cent of its fair valuation.

In a written statement yesterday Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, pointed out that the principal dispute now is over the company's demands that it be permitted to include in its value figure all money spent in building or acquiring new properties during the year regardless of whether the property had actually been put into service. The commission holds that property must be in actual use before it can be computed into the value.

The statement declared that within a short time the company will submit a new rate schedule to the commission for approval. The rate for domestic consumption will depend on how much of the excess the commission rules shall be marked off to cover domestic rate reductions and how much for other schedules. If all or most of the available fund is applied to domestic rates, consumers could buy their electricity for 3½ cents next year.

Last year the company was permitted to apply about one-third of its returnable excess to domestic rates and the remaining two-thirds to other classes of service. If the same ratio were to be followed this year, it still would mean that the domestic rate would be not more than 4 cents.

DELAY TO BE URGED ON 'GAS' TAX BOOST

Report of Traffic Advisory Council Puts Other Problems First.

OPPOSES ROTARY TURN

Tentative decision to delay consideration of proposed increases in gasoline taxes was confirmed by the executive board of the traffic advisory council at the meeting yesterday when the council's official report, for submission to the District Commissioner Tuesday, was completed.

The report, based on a survey of local conditions by Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard University, will contain numerous recommendations for improving Washington's traffic situation and make traffic regulation and control here conform more closely with that of other cities, as embodied in the code of the National Highway Safety Conference.

Because of the widespread public protest aroused by the proposed gasoline-tax increase and that in the cost of motor vehicle registrations, the committee decided to schedule these and other controversial matters for consideration after the problems of the traffic situation have been solved.

Both Are Held Taxation.

The opinion of the committee also was that both the gasoline tax and registration fees properly come under the head of taxation, and the report to the Commissioners will hold that these matters both should be considered in connection with other tax problems rather than as traffic.

The report, studied closely by Dr. McClintock following submission of his own report on his traffic survey here, is in two parts. One relates strictly to traffic questions. The other deals with allied matters, such as gasoline taxes and registration fees and the proposal to centralize the work of registering and licensing motor vehicles and their operators.

One recommendation in the report will provide for expansion of the traffic director's office, with more attention to the engineering problems of the traffic situation. This is in line with changes sought for some time by William H. Harland, director of traffic.

Would End Rotary Turn.

Abolition of the present rotary left turn and substitution of the standard left turn, from the center of the intersection at controlled corners, also will be recommended, together with other minor revisions of the District's traffic regulations, to make them conform with the code of the national conference.

In the matter of periodic inspection of vehicles to determine their mechanical fitness for operation, the committee's report will recommend further study until an adequate method of inspection is devised. A subcommittee report has recommended that the personnel of the Traffic Bureau be augmented to provide for such inspections, thus placing the matter under direct supervision of the Police Department.

$45,600 Is Sought On 1928 Collision

Negligence Is Alleged as Cause of Accident Injuring Two.

As a result of an automobile collision December 20, 1928, on R street northwest, near Fifteenth street, in which they claim to have suffered serious injuries, James C. Adkins and his wife, Mrs. Virginia Adkins, both of 3102 P street northwest, filed suits yesterday in District Supreme Court for a total of $45,600 damages.

The suits are directed against George H. Spooner, jr., of 3083 Sixteenth street northwest, and Eleanor M. Conley, whose address is given only as Washington. Spooner, according to the two declarations, was operating a car belonging to the defendant, which crashed into the automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Adkins were riding. Negligence is alleged.

Mr. Adkins seeks $30,600 damages for loss of his wife's services, his own injuries, medical expenses and damages to his automobile. Mrs. Adkins asks $15,000 damages for personal injuries. Attorneys Frank P. Nesbit and Charles E. Pledger, jr., appear for the plaintiffs.

Probation Given In Census Forgery

Hoyt Gains Liberty After He Confesses Taking Other Clerks' Pay.

Preston S. Hoyt, the 42-year-old clerk, who pleaded guilty to forging the names of three fellow clerks in the Census Bureau to pay-roll sheets, was placed on probation for two years yesterday by Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court.

Hoyt, according to secret service agents who investigated the shortage in pay envelopes last September 2, is alleged to have drawn his own envelope and then to have resumed his place in line, signing successively the names of three clerks who were on leave that day.

According to the report of the probation office to Justice Luhring, Hoyt is a graduate of Yale University and served during the World War as a lieutenant in the Army. It was stated that a brother had made restitution to the clerks whose names were forged.

Washington Bar Group Names Howard Head

Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman from Mississippi, last night was elected president of the Washington Bar Association, composed of colored attorneys, succeeding Charles E. Robinson, who had served two terms. The association indorsed Judge I. R. Hitt and Judge Kathryn Sellers for reappointment to the bench.

Other officers named were Augustis W. Gray, vice president; E. B. Peterson, secretary; G. A. Toms, treasurer; Ambrose Shief, corresponding secretary.
